SEINE RIVER DISTRICT

Gold Properties on the Seine River Which Give Evidence of Being Very Rich.

Five Large, Well Developed Veins, Carrying Free Gold, on the Butchart Properties.

An Interesting Trip Two Hundred Feet Underground in the Great Foley Mine.

Bell City, Ont., May 28.—(Special correspondence of The Herald.)—The other night W. W. Butchart and John B. Campbell were stretched out on the bar room floor at the Pioneer hotel, trying to woo sleep. They were not there through over-indulgence, but because the house was filled with ledgers clear to the ridge pole, and the bar room floor was more comfortable than the log door step. A dim lamp back of the bar relieved the darkness just a trifle, and in the opposite corner an inebriate prospector had spread his blankets. That day the fellow had failed to sell a mining claim to a visiting capitalist, with the result that he attempted to drown his disappointment in the flowing bowl.

About midnight the two Duluthians were attracted by mutterings over in the prospector's corner. There, in the semi-darkness, sitting upright, was the sorrowful owner of the embryonic bonanza, talking to himself and industriously examining a piece of quartz through a magnifying glass.

"By blankety blank," said he, in beery and almost tearful accents, "any man who wouldn't bite at that proposition must be a blankety blank sucker!"

That incident full well illustrates the situation here in the Seine River district—everything crowded, the gold question uppermost in all minds, with plenty of strong drink on the side.

I expected to spend a week here this trip, but delays at Rainy Lake City and Ft. Frances and connections for Rat Portage, where I shall attend the mining convention, cut the time down to three nights and two days. As a result, I have been able to cover but a limited territory. What I have seen, however, tends to convince me that the Seine River district is all in a mining way that is claimed for it.

I left Rainy Lake City last Monday night on the steamer Lloyd and reached Fort Frances at 9 p. m. I was obliged to remain in Fort Frances until Wednesday morning, when I took Capt. Coates' steamer, the Maple Leaf, for the Seine River.

AT FORT FRANCES.

Fort Frances is a small, quaint place, replete with interesting features and characters. It was founded about 125 years ago, when the Hudson Bay company established a post there and named it after Lady Frances Simpson, the wife of the governor of the Hudson's Bay company. It is situated on the Canadian side of the Rainy river, right by the 28-foot falls and directly across from Coochiching. The site is an ideal one for a town, and some day a place of considerable size ought to occupy it. Owing to the falls all boats from Rat Portage and Lake of the Woods cannot pass here into Rainy lake. About twenty years ago, at an expense of $150,000, the government constructed a canal around the falls. A change in the ministry stopped the work and it never has been completed. From $30,000 to $50,000 would put in locks, and a movement is now on foot to take that step. The town is on the old Dawson route, and there is some talk of asking the government for an appropriation to rebuild the bridges and put that historic overland highway into shape, all the way from Port Arthur to Winnipeg. The proposed railroad from Port Arthur to Winnipeg also runs through Fort Frances, and the future of the place is not without hope and prospects. I met "Gold Bug Jimmy," "Chief Never Wash," Abe Baker and other local celebrities, but a future article will be necessary to tell all the interesting things connected with the place.

Professor Winchell was slow to admit the existence of gold in paying quantities in the Rainy Lake country until he became financially interested in the townsite of Coochiching, across the river. It is a beautiful site and the water power on the American side of the falls is wonderful. The place is very dead just now. It contains a post-office, a couple of cowboys, a saloon and a disorderly house. The saloon was recently started by "Curley" Bedford, who has some valuable mining claims in the Seine River country, but who fears a Canadian jail too much to cross over to them. "Curley" is a good-natured, daredevil sort of a fellow, and last winter, while intoxicated, saw Col. Blackwood, of Mine Center, on the street. "I have a notion to hit that old duffer behind the ear, just to wake him up," said Bedford to a boon companion.

"You don't dare," was the taunting reply.

"I don't, eh?" ejaculated "Curley." "I'll show you."

With those words the half intoxicated fellow started for Col. Blackwood and biff! went his fist right against the jaw of the father of Mine Center.

Of course such an unwarranted assault on so prominent a citizen meant an arrest and trial. "Curley" was found guilty and sentenced to six months in the Fort Frances jail. He got tired sleeping behind the bars, so one day he yelled to the jailer, "Bring me some matches," and then commenced to busy himself at some imaginary work behind the cell door.

"Here they are," said the jailer, as he unlocked the door and stepped in.

"Please put them on the table," said Bedford from behind the door, where he seemed to be absorbed in his work.

The jail keeper did so, and before he could turn around Bedford sprang out, pulled the door shut on the keeper, ran like a deer to the river, sprang into the ice-cold water and swam across to Uncle Sam's side, where he now closely stays.

Not long ago a miner visited the disorderly house in Coochiching. He lost $10 by theft or otherwise and demanded its return by one of the inmates, but was met with a refusal. Waiting until nearly morning, he hit half a stick of dynamite and threw it into the kitchen through a window. The explosion nearly wrecked the kitchen, blew every pane of glass out of the whole building, and for a few minutes the whole outdoors was full of shrieks and half-clad figures.

In Fort Frances I met A. E. Clive, formerly of Duluth. He represents the Rat Portage steamboat lines at this end as well as the C. P. R. Of course he picks up a mining claim now and then. I also met A. C. Jamison, of Duluth, here on his way to Rat Portage after a visit to the Seine River country. Charles Starkey is located here and the Lloyd boys, George and Joe, make it their headquarters.

The first "city" you meet in this district on the route of the Maple Leaf is Seine City. It now has four or five houses, a good wharf, a deputy customs official, and is leaving place for the Canadian mail that is sent by a private service to Kettle Falls and the Tower route.

MINE CENTER.

Next comes Foley's mine and then Mine Center, and with it is found a goodly number of Duluthians. Among cans, in fact, seen almost to dominate the Seine River country. In Mine Center Paddy Liston, who is in partnership with George Rutledge, has a saloon and hotel, the Central house. Next week Murdoch McDonaldo of West Duluth, and N. H. Murray, formerly of the Norris house, take charge of the hotel part of the business.

At Mine Center I met T. R. Mayo, ex-deputy sheriff under Butchart. He has picked up some good mining claims and runs a barber shop to catch the small change in the camp. Fifty cents for a hair cut and 25 cents for a shave are his prices, for he has a monopoly. He always "pans" the hair and whiskers and sometimes gets $5 or $10 from one clipping. On the queen's birthday a lady at the hotel said: "Mr. Mayo, this is the queen's birthday. I suppose you will recognize it?" "Madam," replied Mayo, in his blandest tones and with that Chesterfieldian bow of his, "I recognize but one queen, and when we are at home we share the same bed and board. That queen is my wife." Just now Mayo is organizing a camp of the Patriotic Sons of America and a monster Fourth of July celebration.

Frank Fowler, Ed Fitzgerald and Jim McCoy, the contractor, were other old Duluthians I saw. George Gamble also is here, and F. C. Dunnette was camped here until a day or two ago, but just now he is out on a prospecting trip. I have not seen Col. Blackwood, as he is in Toronto. The foundation of his new hotel is being laid, and each trip the Maple Leaf brings up a scow load of lumber for it. Other improvements are under way, and there is a boomy sound in the air.

Here at Bell City the townsite is being rapidly cleared, but building is progressing slowly on account of lack of lumber. Eight or ten buildings are up or under way, but were it not for the lumber famine, double that number would now be in existence. Thomas Bell's new store is at a standstill because of that, but Andy Lunn's Pioneer hotel is receiving a large new addition, as the walls are made of logs. The structure is two stories high, and when the addition is on, the whole space will represent a building eighty-eight feet long. The work is being splendidly executed, and when completed, the additional room will fill a long felt want. Now, the public scarcely can be accommodated. One night three of us slept in the cabin on the Maple Leaf. C. J. Stone, a civil engineer from Duluth, is here, and will work for McCullum, a surveyor at Mine Center. Last night he slept on a tool chest, and the night before up in an attic, amidst the hotel supplies, and where all sorts of female garments were hanging on the walls. Every night men sleep in the office and barroom, and in many cases furnish their own blankets. Good meals are served, and great pains are taken to make all as comfortable as circumstances will permit.

This morning I found N. A. Wishart, William Henry and C. L. Lewis at the hotel. They have been looking over Seine River properties, and go down to Fort Frances on today's boat, and from there home. W. W. Butchart also will accompany them.

THE BUTCHART PROPERTIES.

Yesterday forenoon I visited the locations A. D. 2, 3 and 4, owned by the A. D. 2 Mining company. W. W. Butchart is president and treasurer of this company; John Campbell, general agent and William Fawcett, the secretary, has charge of the branch office in Duluth. The camp is only three miles from here, and reached by a splendid government road. There I found Butchart, Campbell and "Abe" Falconer, who will have charge of the development work now just commencing.

This property was located in April, 1894, by John B. Campbell and William Fawcett, and was the second survey made in this region. A. D. 2 comprises forty acres; A. D. 3, eighty acres, and A. D. 4, forty acres. A patent is held from the Ontario government. The properties were transferred to the A. D. 2 company the 14th of the present month.

These properties are in a wonderfully rich belt, and while I have not examined all the locations and mines in all the districts by any means, nor am I an expert, the showing here is really wonderful. On the south and east is the Hillyer property, known as the Lucky Coon. On the east is the much-mentioned and rich Ferguson mine, and cornering on the northeast is the famous Randolph property, which was purchased only a couple of months ago by the Seine River and Rainy Lake Exploration company. To the south and west are the rich Wiegand properties.

There are five large and well defined veins on the property, all carrying free and visible gold, besides several smaller and less distinct ones. With one exception they are in protogene formation, with the strike from northwest to southeast. That exception is a contact vein, known by that name, and the only one in that vicinity. It is six feet wide, half a mile long and circles northward and westward around and down the side of a high bluff to the base, where it runs into the Gem vein. This contact vein also is found on the Ferguson property, where it is being worked with rich results. The ore is solid quartz, and on the surface pans free gold. Assays show an average of $12.50 per ton. The hanging wall is decomposed slate, and the footwall is protogene.

The Gem vein has a width of three feet on the surface, and is eighty rods long. It carries galena and free gold, and an assay gave $108.08 in the yellow metal. The walls also are smooth and well defined. This vein runs onto the Hillyer property, where a 10-foot shaft has been sunk, with the showing that the width increases with the depth. Assays of ore from across the face of the vein averaged $50.55, and a test run of two tons in the Hillyer stamp mill yielded $66 in gold. An assay from the vein on A. D. 2 ran up to $108.08.

The Big vein is 100 feet west of the Gem, runs parallel with it most of the way, but at the base of the bluff to the northward, where it is fifteen feet wide, nearly runs into the Gem. It cuts the company's property for sixty rods, and disappears in a little lake. It also runs onto the Hillyer property, where it has a 46-foot shaft and a face width of eight feet. This, like all the others, is a true fissure vein and at a reasonable depth, most likely unites with the Gem. A mill test of ore from this vein gave $18 in gold per ton.

The Lucky Coon vein is eight feet wide, and has a shaft 13 1-2 feet deep. It also comes from the Hillyer property, where a 70-foot shaft makes a splendid showing. A mill test made last fall gave $13.50 per ton. An assay made at one time for C. E. Markell from this vein gave $72 in gold per ton.

The fifth vein is the Cuckoo, which runs across the southwest corner of A. D. 4. It is two feet wide on the surface, and perfectly lousy with free gold. The walls are smooth and well defined. Several shots were put in while I was present, and after each one any number of pieces were picked up, showing specks and little nuggets of virgin gold on the faces of the fractures.

In all my travels I have not seen a more ideal site for a stamp mill. Near the north line of location A. D. 2 the surface makes a rapid descent for a distance of 100 or 150 feet. At the base, as stated, these massive veins practically unite on the surface. One runs along the side of a higher elevation, with one side exposed. If desired, thousands of tons could be quarried and run into the top of a stamp mill without a single pound of power being expended in its elevation. At the bottom of the bluff is a broad, level place that could not be improved on for locating the stamp mill and power house. Within 200 feet of the site for the stamp mill is a little lake, with a never-failing supply of water for the mill. It also contains fish in some quantities. Aside from the lake there is a little stream purling down the bluffside, which would furnish almost enough water for the mill. On different parts of the three locations are quantities of pine, large enough for shaft and mine timbers, and other woods suitable for fuel. To the eastward of the mill site is a slightly sloping tract of several acres, with abundant room for dwelling houses for the mill hands, and soil suitable and deep enough for gardens. Near by is the government road, leading out from Mine Center and Bell City, which is kept in good condition, thereby making easy access to the towns and the freight docks on the water front.

Development work has already been commenced on this property, and will be pushed all summer. By fall, the company expects to have a mill of not less than ten stamps in operation. By sinking about fifty feet they can drift on at least three veins, and have from 200 to 250 feet overhead for stoping. I am informed David T. Adams remarked, after he had gone over this property: "If this don't make a mine, then in a year and a half there will not be a stamp mill running in all Western Ontario." Neil McInnis also was highly pleased, as all must be, after seeing the plain and remarkable showings.

The Hillyer property, known as the Lucky Coon, is idle. Last season a stamp mill was erected, but so far from water that it could not be kept steadily running. One run of nine tons yielded $284 in gold, and undoubtedly much escaped in the tailings. As soon as Hillyer secured a deed the mill was closed down, and now the property is in litigation. Alec Robinson, William Campbell and John Mosher sue for the interest they sold, on the grounds that the contract to run a 5-stamp mill steadily, so long as there might be ore in sight, has been broken. Hillyer claims that he stopped because of lack of capital, and not because he wanted to play a game of freeze out. The chances seem favorable for lawyers getting the whole thing, and the litigants getting nothing.

FERGUSON MINE CLOSED.

The Ferguson mine was shut down some weeks ago and every employe discharged. Many rumors and reasons concerning this have been heard, but no one seems to be sure of the real cause. Mr. Ferguson died in March and it is said that his father, who is a Liverpool banker, wishes to settle his son's estate by disposing of the property. Another story is that the shut-down is to discourage adjoining holders so that they will sell cheap. When the shut-down first came, it gave many people the blues, because they imagined that the failure of the mine to produce gold was the cause. The ore, while it's richness runs in streaks and is not so uniform as in some mines, bears gold in large quantities. Several shafts have been sunk to a considerable depth, buildings erected, a small test mill of three stamps put in and estimates place the amount expended for development and improvement as high as $100,000. I did not have time to make an inspection of the property, so cannot go into details. Men were engaged in pumping out the man shaft. One story is to the effect that the directors of the company wish to carefully examine the property which comprises locations A. L. 110, 111 and 112, 160 acres, and another is that representatives of a couple of strong English mining syndicates wish to examine it with a view to purchase it. If that be the case and a purchase is the result, adjoining property holders may have a chance to make some good deals.

In April, the Seine River and Rainy Lake Development company purchased two locations, A. L. 114 and A. L. 116, the famous Randolph properties. The selection was made by Edwin Ward. The company has its business headquarters in Duluth and comprises, among others, Thomas Merritt, A. E. McManus, William Burgess, Jack MacDougall and Mr. Hubbell, of Manistique, Mich. These two locations, comprising eighty acres, are not far beyond the Ferguson and in company with C. J. Stone I went out to see them. I found Wilbur Merritt in charge of development work. He had been at it barely a week and had only four men at work. Despite that, one shaft was down on the big vein sixteen feet in one place and about half that distance in another in the edge of the bluff a hundred feet or so away. In the deeper shaft, water had got beyond control without the use of a windlass and bucket—so, amidst many disadvantages, a windlass and bucket were being rigged up.

This property was located Aug. 21, 1894, by Ed Randolph and Neil Berger. The formation is galeo and the veins cut it at right angles, the strike being a little west of north. Of the principal veins discovered and prospected somewhat up to date, the larger is from five to eight feet in width across the surface and the indications are that it will increase in width as the depth increases. The deeper shaft is located near the center of the vein and the width there is five feet. The surface has been shown up five or six hundred feet. Lesser veins will be prospected later.

I talked with Mr. Randolph, who was interested in the property previous to its sale to the Seine River and Rainy Lake Exploration company. Last fall in the absence of his sons, the old gentleman went out to the river and took 100 pounds of the free milling sugar quartz from the surface. He crushed that quantity in a mortar by hand and washed it out in a pan. From the washings, he secured gold that was melted into a button valued at $7.35. This quartz shows visible gold, but not to such an extent as some. I am informed that the mineral in it is very uniformly distributed and that the gold is not so coarse as some, but is rather fine. That fineness is an advantage in milling, for it causes the yellow metal to amalgamate more easily with the quicksilver plates. The rock pans well and is first-class in general appearance. From several assays that Mr. Randolph had made, results ranged from $3.50 to $260 per ton. Nine assays of ore taken from the big vein ranged from $3.50 to $31 per ton. Professor Merritt, of Kingston, made two assays which gave $8 and $26 respectively.

The coming week Wilbur Merritt will have his development machinery in order and will increase his force to 100 men so as to sink night and day in the main shaft on the big vein. At fifty or 100 feet a splendid showing should be the result. After sinking a distance in the second shaft, he probably will drift into the bluff on the same vein.

THE FOLEY MINE.

I spent last Thursday at the mine of J. C. Foley, the Stratton of the Seine. So much has been said and written about the Foley mine that I hardly know what to say additional. I saw so much that was new to me that I hardly feel competent to describe it. Despite the assertion that I write exactly what I see and hear in the gold fields, many Duluth people seem loth to believe my writings and to feel that I am writing boom articles. Such, I wish to say again, is not the case. In the main, I aim to give facts and then let the public draw its own conclusions. If they are not contented with that, then the only thing to do is to visit this big country and decide things for themselves, after personal investigation.

To begin with, then, perhaps what I say will have a better effect when I state that the day after I was at Foley's camp, he had a clean-up, and that the next day—this morning—he started to Duluth with gold bricks valued at $6500. These bricks represented a run of something less than a week and prove that the mine for that time, at least, produced close to $1000 for every twenty-four hours.

I met Mr. Foley at Fort Frances on his way back from Rat Portage, where he cured the sore eyes of the few doubting Thomases by exhibiting in broad daylight, a dozen or a dozen and a half genuine gold bricks. No one in Rat Portage ever, or rarely, gets sight of a gold brick from the Sultana mine. The week's cleaning-up is carefully brought into town every Monday morning and sneaked into the back door of the Imperial bank. It does Canadians, as well as Americans, much good to see a genuine gold brick and J. C. Foley is just accommodating and enterprising enough to let them satisfy their desires in that direction. If there were more men like J. C. Foley, not only would gold bricks be easier to see, but there would be more of them produced in these Canadian Eldorados.

In the forenoon last Thursday, I first visited the mill with its twenty industrious, noisy, resistless stamps. Foley has 4400 feet of trestle work, some of it fifteen or twenty feet above the ground. Over that from shafts 3000 and 4200 feet away, ore cars come rolling down to the stamp mill, loaded with three or four tons of gold-bearing quartz. Gravity carries the car down, but a steady, nervy old gray horse, walking high above the ground where most horses walk, along the narrow trestle, unrailed and with cross pieces of round timbers, hauls back the "empties." Before long, matters will be arranged so that old Whitey will ride down the trestle behind a loaded car, which will relieve him of using his feet one way.

The speed of the car is controlled by a man who stands on behind and manipulates a brake with a handle something like the crank on a street car brake. The ore rolls into a covered shed at the top of the high mill and is dumped into a big bin beneath. It is next run through a crusher with one big round, cast iron tooth in the center, with grooves on its sides, which pushes the chunks of ore up against cruel cast iron ridges until the gold laden rock is ground into pieces more about the size of hard coal, six tons an hour if desired, and then drops into hoppers beneath, ready to be fed to the never-tiring stamps with their hungry thump, thump, thump.

There are twenty of these stamps and they are arranged in rows or batteries of five each. No two stamps in a battery fall at the same instant, and the batteries are arranged so that all or a part can work at the same time.

Each stamp drops eighty-four times a minute for a distance of five and a half inches with a weight of 850 pounds. Before long, Mr. Foley intends to make each one fall 100 times every sixty seconds for a distance of six inches. Now they only pound up about thirty tons a day. Then they will have to increase the amount to fifty tons, which, with savings that will be made, will cause the noisy monster to lay a golden egg each day that will be worth not less than $1000. In a year, 365 of these golden eggs will drop into the nest and Mr. Foley's bank account will increase by $365,000—perhaps more. At that rate, it will not take him many years to become a millionaire miner with his twenty big iron hens. If he increases them to fifty or 100 in number, as a nervy, hustling man like him is apt to do, he'll have to start a bank of his own to hold the yellow eggs. If he does, all Duluthians will hope that he start it in the Zenith City. Several Duluth citizens, in fact, can probably tell the millionaire miner where he can get two or three bank outfits "just as good as new."

As the stamps pound and roar away, moved by the powerful engine and making a noise like the roar of a huge waterfall and the thumping of the heels of an opera house full of giants at a political rally, streams of water run through the boxes and wash away the fine, powdered rock. About 70 per cent of the gold, some of which is as fine as flour, stays in the boxes, as it is heavier than the powdered quartz and other minerals and sticks tight and fast to quicksilver, which is spread in a thin coating over copper plates in the bottom. The quicksilver sticks to the plates and the gold to the quicksilver and it takes a smart fellow and a lot of tricks to get them apart and even then he has to stop the battery and, perhaps, the whole mill to do it.

The water runs out of the boxes with the powdered rock, pulverized minerals, such as galena, copper and iron pyrites and others onto broad stoping copper plates, also covered with the greedy quicksilver which hangs to the copper with one hand and grabs for the very fine gold with the other. Even then it misses a little of the fine gold and all that which is combined chemically with the galena or pyrites. The water keeps pushing along the pyrites and the little of the gold that remains. All next goes onto the vanners, big, broad rubber belts with little fine creases in them, something like those on a washboard, with the edges pointing uphill, so to speak. The vanners run at an angle instead of horizontally, and as they crawl slowly along the water washes out more of the fine, powdered quartz and then when the little creases on the vanners roll underneath the framework upon which they are placed, a tank of water washes off such of the pyrites and fine gold as remains. The water bearing the waste matter runs off through spouts to the beach on the lake, where the mineral matter is deposited, just as lime was deposited in beds ages and ages ago and thereby forming limestone. This waste matter is called "tailings" and every ton of rock treated sees $3 in gold go out in the tailings. Later on Mr. Foley expects to reduce the $3 to $1 and some day he will scoop up the mineral matter that goes out to waste and extract the gold by a chemical process.

The pyrites and minerals that are not picked up by the quicksilver are called "concentrates" and are sent away to have the gold extracted by clever chemical processes. Just now each ton of rock sees $3 of gold go into the concentrates.

After the greedy, miserly quicksilver gets all the gold it can hold in its grasping hands, or when it gets "sick," an amalgam is formed which must be scraped from the plates by hand or mechanical devices. The amalgam is retorted and the gold separated from the quicksilver. The yellow metal is then run into bricks more or less pure and ready for the mint or artisan after more or less refining.

DOWN INTO THE MINE.

In the afternoon I went down into the mine 200 feet underground. Capt. Conway showed the way. He wore rubber boots and a miner's yellow hat with a candle in front. He stuck some extra candles into his bootleg and got onto the big iron bucket. I got on beside him, he gave the sign, the engineer started the machinery and down, down we went, right into dampness, darkness and queer sounds far below. We stopped on the first level, 200 feet from the surface. The shaft is down 210 feet and will be sunk another 100 feet as fast as possible. This, I must explain was in the Bonanza vein shaft. At 4200 feet from the big quartz mill. There are three levels in this shaft. On the third 216 feet of drifting have been done along the vein. On the second level, 150 feet down, 231 feet of drifting have been done. On the first level, 100 feet down, the drifting amounts to 210 feet. There are four winzes in ore, passageways from one level to another, aside from the shaft, and more or less stoping has been done on all. On the second level a crosscut has been made south of the shaft from a drift on the Bonanza to a parallel vein 104 feet west. The second vein is 4 1-2 feet wide and at a reasonable depth it is not improbable that the two come together.

The Bonanza vein is about 2 feet wide on the surface, but it steadily increases in width until it measures 8 feet. The ore is a beautiful quartz, high grade and gives about $15 in gold off the

The Great Aquatic Event In University Circles During This Year.

Crew Race Between Yale, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia.

In Predicting the Result, the Best Experts Have Selected Cornell.

New York, June 5.—The greatest boating event in university circles this year will be the five-crew race between Yale, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Cornell and Columbia, which is to be rowed the latter part of this month at Poughkeepsie, on the Hudson river. Outside of the personal interest in the success of the different colleges, most attention will be focussed on Yale's work, as it will represent a change in the principles of rowing that will be of vital importance.

Bob Cook, the coach, in 1875, brought back from England and applied some English rowing principles. Yale expected to win at Henley last year, but she simply made a good fight. Since the Henley experience, Capt. Cook found that he would have to go back to the long body reach and the long pull through the water, which he taught Yale twenty years ago, and which its oarsmen have since gradually drifted away from. When he started in to coach the crew this year, he had determined to make changes along this line and go back to his first principles. From the start he met with obstacles. The most serious was that the men among the candidates for the crew who had rowed under the old methods seemed hard to handle. If Yale wins this year it will tend to put a quietus on the tendency among American college oarsmen to ape English methods.

On the other hand, Harvard will be looked upon as a representative of English ideas. It imported R. C. Lehmann from London some six months ago as coach, and its men have been trained on the lines he used in his development of English crews. So, while Yale, like the man in "Rob Roy," is trying to un-

English itself, Harvard is taking in British ideas in the biggest doses possible. Cornell, Pennsylvania and Columbia will go along in the old way, although a strong English flavor is said to be noticed in Coach Courtney's work since his trip to Henley in 1895.

Last year Yale was not in the races, declining to row unless invited. The other four crews declined to do this, insisting that Yale should make application. Last winter the affair was patched up, and bygones have been buried. Last year Cornell won with such evident mastery that her friends believe that she will defeat everything this year. The last half of the race she had everything her own way and showed a stroke that was said to be the finest ever used by an American crew. Here is the way three of the crews will sit at the start:

Yale—Bow, Rogers; No. 2, Whitney; No. 3, Campbell; No. 4, Greenway; No. 5, Capt. Bailey; No. 6, Allen; No. 7, Griswold; stroke, Langford.

Columbia—Stroke, Pierrepont; No. 7, Longacre; No. 6, Carter; No. 5, Shattuck; No. 4, McKay; No. 3, Lewis; No. 2, Capt. Dressdrick; bow, Putnam.

The Harvard and Pennsylvania crews have not yet been placed, an unusual amount of shifting having occurred the last few days.

As to predictions of victory, the best of experts hold to Cornell, as she has been trying nothing new, and has simply striven to keep up to the standard of last year. In the Yale boat there has been much wrangling. Simpson and Coach Cook had a falling out, and Simpson withdrew from the crew. Then his friends tried to oust Cook, but Capt. Bailey stood by him, and he decided to stick. Now, it is said, Bailey is the worst man in the boat, but Cook won't part with him for fear of losing a backer. Harvard's plans have gone awry, the new English shell proving unsatisfactory, and other hitches occurring in the training.

Probably Pennsylvania is in as good shape as any other crew. This year Ellis Ward has been working steadily with the men and with a new kind of rowlock, and a fine new shell the boys hope to surprise their friends.

A GREAT REMEDY

For Sufferers From Piles.

Dr. Redmond, a specialist in the study and treatment of piles and rectal diseases, recently stated that the Pyramid Pile Cure, the new discovery for the cure of piles, was the most remarkable remedy he had ever seen or tried in one respect, and that was, the instant relief experienced in all cases, no matter how severe, from the moment the remedy was applied. This was the more surprising to him because he had carefully analyzed the preparation and no trace of opium, cocaine or similar poison could be detected.

Physicians look with great favor upon the Pyramid Pile Cure, because it is rapidly taking the place of surgical operations and because it is so simple, so easily applied and contains no mineral or other poisons so commonly used in pile cures.

Dr. Esterbrook reports that the Pyramid Pile Cure not only cures the various forms of piles, but never fails to give immediate relief on the first application, no matter how severe the pain or discomfort may be.

People who have suffered from piles for years are often astonished at the instant relief experienced from the first application. Another important advantage is the fact that anyone can use the remedy without detention from business or intereference with daily occupation. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

AMONG THE SPORTS.

Next Friday afternoon the field and track team of the Duluth High School Athletic association will leave for Minneapolis, where it was to meet the team from the Minneapolis Central High School Saturday afternoon. They were to have gone yesterday, but the field day was postponed one week. There are sixteen members of the team, and they will be accompanied by Principal John Loman, Trainer Henry Meining and a number of high school boys. The Minneapolis men, in their recent meeting with the St. Paul team, showed enough proficiency to cultivate awe in the breasts of a good many athletes. While it has not had that effect upon the Duluth boys, they recognize the fact that they are going against rather a hard proposition. This will only spur them to make their best endeavors, and it is hoped that victory may yet perch upon their banners.

The Ashland field day was again postponed, and it will now take place next Saturday, June 12. The Duluth boys expect to attend.

J. W. Nelson has presented the Central Gun club with a handsome gold medal which will be hung up for this season's shoots. It will go to the man who has the highest score at the end of the season, providing that the winner must have participated in a least ten shoots. The medal is a pretty one of solid gold, ingrained on one side with a marksman taking aim at a "mud pie."

The Gun club held a meeting Thursday evening at J. W. Nelson's new store at 5 East Superior street, and a number of new members were received. The regular shoots have begun, and the season's medal contests will soon be under way.

There were two amateur and junior baseball games during the week. In one the West Duluth team, which is starting out the season strongly, defeated the Zenith City club by a score of 8 to 7, making its fourth victory.

In the East End the U. S. nine and the East Enders played a game in which the U. S. won by a score of 26 to 5.

"Napoleon Ives' is not likely to astonish billiard enthusiasts with his wonderful shots. He is suffering from consumption and is in a most deplorable condition," said Clarence Green in Chicago the other day. Mr. Green had just returned from an Eastern trip, taking in New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Baltimore. "While in New York last Wednesday," he said, "I called at Ives' room and was told Ives had departed for the Adirondacks the day before, accompanied by his wife and guides. His manager expressed grave doubts as to the possibility of Ives recovering sufficiently to ever wield a cue again. Schaefer was not at his room, and I understand does very little practicing, evidently not expecting any chances for a match to arise. Slosson is the only one of the big trio who is in active training, and is anxious for a match. It is just possible he may be accommodated, as there is a strong talk of a visit from Maurice Vigneaux, M. Fournil and Albert Garnier during the coming fall. In case they do come America's three best men will meet them in two tournaments, one in New York and the other here in Chicago.

"The shortstops will be given unusual advantages to display their skill. A purse of $1000 has already been raised by the roomkeepers of Philadelphia for a shortstop tournament, to start in that city Nov. 1. Roomkeepers all over the country have united, and are in favor of tournaments by the second raters. Arrangements have been made to have the Philadelphia match as the first of a series to be played in the different billiard centers throughout the East and Middle West. The list of cities in which tournaments are an assured fact includes Philadelphia, New York, Boston, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Cleveland, St. Louis and Chicago. The entries will probably be limited to the men who competed in last spring's event held in my room. Slosson would like to enter, and is willing to play eighteen-inch balk-line to the others fourteen-inch. While in New York I made a strong effort to arrange a match between Clem Ellison and Foss, the New York amateur champion. The matter will be finally settled inside of a few weeks.

"The New Yorkers claim Foss is sure of an average of twelve, but I am confident of Ellison's ability to defeat him. Billiard business in the East seems to be slow. I offered to match George Sutton against Maurice Daly, but was unable to arrange it."

The famous crew of girls who have upheld the honor of Wellesley college in rowing for years have a rival this season. Cornell girls are hard at work training, and this fall will probably see an intercollegiate rowing match of girl students, in which Ithaca hopes to win.

For about three years rowing has been somewhat of a fad with the Cornell girls, but they never settled down to hard work until this year. Early in the spring a crew was organized, and Coxswain Colson, trainer of the regular crew, was engaged as trainer. The girls went at the rowing machines in the gymnasium weeks ago, and now they at work on the water. Already the good effects of the exercise have become apparent, and the girls of the crew are becoming strong and heavy. Before the racing season opens they expect to be trained down to as fine a point as are the boys of the 'varsity crew.

The Cornell crew is now composed of Miss Dunning, bow; Miss Jewell; Miss McNary, captain; Miss Whipple, Miss Kellar, Miss Walt; Miss Whipple, stroke, and Coxswains Miss Young and Miss Rhodes. The weight of the crew ranges from 130 to 160 pounds, the average beng about 145 pounds, and "not an ounce of fat in the boat," as one terribly earnest young woman expressed it.

Speaking of the possibilities of a race with the Wellesley crew, the same student said: "It would mark an epoch in the sports of college girls. Heretofore all the games have been between different classes of the same colleges, but these competitions lack the zest and excitement attending a contest between colleges. Such a contest would certainly provoke a spirit of rivalry, and every student would do her level best to force her college into first place. Athletics would become more of a serious business than they are today, when most of the girls just take them up as a matter of course, and not with the determined purpose of accomplishing something.

"If we do have a race I don't think it would be for more than a mile, as most of the girls go to pieces after rowing that distance at a stiff pace. Under favorable conditions they can cover the mile in pretty close to seven minutes, and that is doing pretty well for girls.

"One of the hardest things for members of the crew to learn is to look straight at the back of the head of the girl in front. Most of them want to glance about at scenery or see what is going on around them, and that, of course, adjoints the machine-like work that is a first essential, for if the whole crew doesn't work with the precision of a single oar not much in the speed line can be accomplished."

If Cornell meets Wellesley it will also, in all probability, meet defeat, as athletics at the Massachusetts college have reached a more advanced stage than in any other institution of learning for women in the country. Class crews have been maintained there for six years and, under the tuition of Miss Lucile Eaton Hill, all branches of outdoor sport have prospered among the girl students. Rowing has been one of the chief means adopted by Miss Hill for strengthening the physical structure of her charges, but she is strongly opposed to all kinds of severe contests, and for that reason it is quite possible that if the Cornell girls issue a challenge it will be politely declined. Miss Hill believes that the present system of athletics in the great universities, by which the men resort to extreme measures to excel, is all wrong. No record is kept at Wellesley of high jumps, vaults, running or rowing races or of feats of strength. Nothing is done to build up one particular set of muscles at the expense of all the others. Miss Hill's aim is to perfect the body as a whole. Only those young women who are completely healthy and strong are allowed to compete with each other and then the contests always cover a wide range of athletic sports.

Miss Hill has some strong ideas on the subject of dress, and if she had her way the students would wear the same costume in the classroom that they do in field sports—that is, a short skirt reaching to the knee, full knickerbockers and a sweater or Norfolk jacket. In the gymnasium the girls dispense with the short skirts, also when in the racing shell, so that should it happen to capsize they could more easily swim than if hampered by the weight of skirts.

The dual anomalies of the present league race is the playing of the Cincinnatis and the Chicagos, although they are widely different. The Cincinnatis opened up by trouncing the Chicagos three straight, supplementing this with three straight from Cleveland. Then Pittsburg happens along and takes the only game of their series the weather permitted on the Queen City grounds. After these contests the Cincinnatis made a brief swing around the Western circuit, dropping two out of four with Chicago, one out of two with Cleveland, and three straight to the Smoky City Pirates. Then they returned home, and after lambasting the Louisvilles in a Sunday game, proceeded to polish off Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore three straight each. This led the cranks to believe that Brooklyn would follow suit. But she did not. She simply caught the Porkopolitans by the nape of the neck and slack of the pantaloons and wallowed them around the diamond for three straight themselves.

So much for Cincinnati. With Chicagos it is different. Anson's crew has proven the most woeful disappointment of all the league teams, and that too after they had been tipped off as odds-on favorites for a neck-and-neck chase with Baltimore for the pennant. On paper there really were no stronger teams, six of the aggregation ranking with the crackajacks of the profession. But what has been the result? They have been licked so often and so thoroughly that they are now struggling with St. Louis to keep out of the last hole. With the other teams in the race, luck has been more evenly distributed, and while the race is still a runaway affair for the Orioles, every one of them, barring Washington and Louisville, has a chance.

With the college championship baseball season now fairly initiated, the Princeton students are taking account of stock and figuring on the probability of retaining the championship for another year. The uniform success of the Tiger team, so far as the season has advanced, has inspired confidence in their ability to repeat last year's brilliant record, and one hears all sorts of will talk from the Princeton campus of lowering the colors of Yale and Harvard on their own grounds and closing the season without a defeat. There never was a season when Princeton students had more confidence in their team. Every undergraduate is a hilariously enthusiastic rooter for the team and every wearer of a Princeton baseball uniform is a hero. Caspar Whitney's statement that the present team is the strongest that ever represented Old Nassau is hailed with delight by the old Princeton boys everywhere.

The agitation of the rowing question at Princeton has aroused some opposition. The Princetonian editorially speaks in disfavor of a 'varsity crew at present, but approves of rowing as a means of training the football candidates. It says: "We are inclined to view with disfavor any proposition aiming at the immediate establishment of a university crew. While it might be possible, by concentration of our energies, to put a crew out which might creditably represent the university, it would possibly be at the expense of the other branches of our athletics. The number of men of marked athletic ability in a university of our numbers at any one time is necessarily limited. Princeton has not yet reached such a size that the drain of men necessary for a crew could be suffered without weakening her other teams. If an attempt is to be made to place rowing on a plane with football and baseball as a branch of our university athletics, we cannot but entertain a distrust for the idea."

Speaking of Mysterious Billy reminds me that Australian Tom Williams is back in America, says Sam Griswold in the Omaha Bee. He arrived in New York several evenings ago, and announced that he had come across especially to take a fall out of Tommy Ryan. Williams is the man who came here from Melbourne some four years ago, heralded as the greatest welterweight the antipodes had produced. From the moment of his arrival he made a good impression on the connoisseurs of fighting flesh. He was a model of athletic form, clear-eyed, neat-limbed and intelligent and ready and eager to meet any man in his class the American managers could bring against him. A good deal of talk was being made about that time over a mysterious individual 'celept Billy Smith, who had swooped down from the rolling Pacific's distant shores. In 'Frisco and Portland he had recently polished off in rapid and artistic style such men as Frank Kelly, Billy Armstrong, Tommy West, Charlie Gleason, Shadow Maber and Danny Needham, and professed to be aching for a fight with Tommy Ryan. The latter was in Omaha at that time, and owing to the slowness of communication between this city and New York, the Coney Island club matched Smith against Williams. The dead games hailed the announcement of the match with much enthusiasm, as it had begun to look as if the Australian would have to retrace his way back over the seas without a battle. During the few weeks he had been in New Amsterdam he had made friends by the legion, including many of the moneyed sports, who stood ready to back him for all they were worth. The night of the contest finally rolled round, and a vast throng crowded the club house by-the-sea, and I might add that a more surprised lot of sports never assembled under a roof. It took Billy Smith just two rounds to knock out the sturdy antipodean. He went at him as if shot out of a gun, and it was hammer and tongs until Williams toppled over to stay. But this is no reason to believe that he will not give Ryan a good fight. He has grown bigger and stronger than he was when here before, and it is a well known fact that he is one of the best skilled boxers that ever came here out of the distant land of the dingo.

HER ACCEPTANCE.

Took the Minister on Promise of an Afternoon Off.

Judge: Isabel—(in a tantalizing mood)—But if I should marry you, think of all the things I should have to do! I should have to be good all the time.

The handsome young minister—As if you could be any better!

Isabel—And that isn't all. I should have to go to church regularly.

The handsome young minister—I hope so.

Isabel—Twice a day, perhaps.

The handsome young minister—Perhaps, occasionally.

Isabel—And I should have to teach a Sunday school class.

Handsome young minister—Not necessarily.

Isabel—Oh, I should. And sing in the choir. And be president of the sewing society.

The handsome young minister (gravely)—I had hoped that, if you cared for me, such duties as might present themselves to you as my wife might—might—

Isabel—And stand ready at any time to play the organ at Sunday school and prayer meetings.

The handsome young minister (sadly)—I had hoped—

Isabel—And visit all the poor of the congregation, and the lame and the halt and the blind—

The handsome young minister (distantly)—I have deceived myself with the belief that you might not find such responsibilities distasteful. I—

The handsome young minister (rising)—I am very sorry that I—

Isabel—And temperance bands of hope among the children, and concerts in aid of the South Sea island heathen.

The handsome young minister (pale and rigid)—I regret extremely that I have forced you to the inconvenience of explaining your objections so fully. I will bid you—

Isabel—Wait a minute.

The handsome young minister—Will bid you good morning.

Isabel—No, you won't. I hadn't finished. I was going to say that if you'll let me take a course of instruction at a gymnasium—

The handsome young minister—What?

Isabel—And buy me some dumbbells and parallel bars and Indian clubs and a punching bag—so that I can get into fit condition to undertake it all, you know—

The handsome young minister—I don't understand—

Isabel (with her arms around his neck)—And give me Thursday afternoons off, and every other Sunday, why, I—I'll be awfully pleased, dear, to marry you!

FELON STUDENTS.

The school at the state penitentiary at Deer Lodge, Mont., seems to have become one of the fixed institutions of the state. Started a little more than a year ago, simply as an experiment and to furnish some kind of occupation for the inmates, it has proved from the first a pronounced success, and up to the present time teachers and pupils alike are interested and enthusiastic.

The branches taught are reading, spelling, grammar, history, geography, arithmetic, algebra, penmanship, bookkeeping, typewriting and telegraphy. The men have manifested an unusual degree of interest in telegraphy, and to facilitate study in this direction the state board of commissioners purchased a complete telegraphic instrument and apparatus, and this has proved one of the most interesting studies of the school. A number of typewriting machines, which had been in use for some time in the various state offices, were repaired and sent to the penitentiary for the benefit of the students.

The total number of convicts in the penitentiary is 312. Of this number twenty-two are serving life sentences, one a 60-year sentence and two are serving 40-year sentences. There are a few in for sentences of thirty-five, twenty-five, fifteen and eleven years, while twenty-eight have sentences of ten years. A great many are in for still shorter sentences—thirty-seven for five years and twenty-three each for three and two years, so that most of them have a prospect for long terms in which to advance in their mental condition.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

The past week has been a very quiet one in labor circles, there being nothing especially noteworthy to record in the affairs of the locals, or the general organizations. Members of organized labor have not been without a topic for discussion, however, the discharge by Chief Black of Firemen Shea and Myles furnishing material for considerable talk. The men named, as well as a fireman discharged a month ago, were members of the committee appointed by the firemen to present a statement of their case at the conference over the question of "offs" held some weeks ago between members of the council fire department committee, the Trades assembly committee and the fire commissioners. It is claimed by the members of organized labor that the discharged men all have good records as firemen and that their retirement is, as it is expressed, "another instance of Chief Black's bulldozing."

Chief Black says he had good cause for discharging the men. The critics of his action scout this. They claim that the discharges are the result of a policy of discrimination against and persecution of the men who opened their mouths in behalf of the firemen during the recent controversy. The Trades assembly will probably take the matter up at its next meeting.

WOMAN'S HELP TO LABOR.

Women must either be a help or a hindrance in the great labor movement for the uplifting and bettering of the conditions of men who work for wages. Woman has ever been an important factor in every reform movement of the world. Her sweet, persuasive voice, her refining influence and her spirit of heroic sacrifice have given force and dignity to every movement that sprang from the nobler impulses of men which had for their purpose the betterment of the race.

Woman has gilded the horrors of the battlefield and the lonely hospital with gleams of sunshine, and now, in this last supreme effort on the part of the rightful protectors of the home to save themselves from European conditions and save woman from the degradation which necessarily follows the degradation of labor, women must lend their aid, says a writer in the Southern Economist and Trades Unionist.

Women are invited and urged to give the trade union movement their best support. Hitherto they have very much retarded unionism by their indifference and lukewarmness by chiding their brothers, fathers, sons and husbands for giving it their time and thought.

Even those who have lived in better homes, had better clothes and enjoyed many refinements, which came as a result of unionism, have doubtless scolded their men folk for being out one night in the week attending the union meeting, and in speaking lightly of unionism.

Women little dream that in so doing they are paralyzing the strong arm which supports them and chilling the warm heart of the man who swore to cherish and protect them.

Woman twice in our country's history gave her loved ones to battle to make it possible for men and women to enjoy conditions consistent with Christian civilization. Women must now understand that they must make some sacrifice and lend encouragement to the labor movement, which has for its purpose the realization of conditions made possible by a sacrifice of blood.

The rapid increase of women going out of home into the workshop and the rapid decline in her wages, and the idle men, with ever decreasing wages, must make women fully realize the dangerous trend of affairs.

Let every woman join a trade union, and those who cannot let them encourage the men to do so, and to be loyal, steadfast and true. The time has come when every woman should urge her male connections to ally themselves with a union of their trade. The union stands for equal pay for equal work for both men and women, and it stands alone in defense of this equitable right. Many of the best women in the world give their voice and pen in the aid of unionism.

The women of many cities have taken hold with a will. The Ladies' Label league is a new and practical organization of women lately organized in Cincinnati. While not yet strong in numbers, it is growing gradually and bids fair to become a power in the trade union movement in that city. The league is composed principally of the wives and daughters of union men, and its objects are to agitate and increase the demand for products of union labor.

ENGLISH MODEL VILLAGE.

Port Sunlight is a model village for working people, situated about six miles from Liverpool and established by the great manufacturing firm of Lever Bros., who built it in order to supply their numerous workmen with comfortable homes near the factories at a minimum of expense and also to endeavor to make the whole co-operative.

The village is young, having been founded a little over ten years ago. The streets are laid out somewhat after the style of the prettier new American cities, with trees planted in the streets and lawns in front of the houses. There are no aldermen to give away franchises regardless of the will of the people, nor are saloons at every corner. The homes of the workmen are modern and contain the luxuries of hot and cold water, gas—in fact, all scientific sanitary arrangements. Cozy fireplaces are in nearly every room and all are neatly decorated.

All this is given at a monthly rental of from $4 to $6. The rent includes gas and water and is scarcely sufficient to keep the houses in repair. The employers and the employes govern the village, each department of the works electing six members to the village council. The village, moreover, offers all the social features and advantages of a larger town in the way of clubs, churches, public buildings and free schools, which are maintained by the company.

It costs a member but 24 cents a year to join a club or society, the firm contributing three times as much, where he has all the features of the modern club. All these items, if counted as a portion of the wages, would make them very high. An eight-hour day prevails. This profit-sharing scheme, the success of which is due to good management, has resulted in great satisfaction to all concerned.

FOR INTERNATIONAL UNIONISM.

Tom Mann, the English labor leader, in discussing the possibilities of an international federation of labor, says that the last international congress of labor declared that "in order to have a uniform international trade union movement a central trade union committee should be constituted in every country." Nothing has yet been done to give effect to this, nor is it likely anything of a very practical character will be done yet awhile, but action is being taken in certain quarters calculated to lead to the ultimate establishment of national councils or commissions which shall be in proper touch with similar commissions in other countries.

That action has been left for kindred trades to establish, first national federations, and then to open up communications with the organized workers in the same trades in other countries. The most recent attempt at this is the action taken by sailors and firemen and various sections of port workers. Last year the bulk of those federated under the title of the international federation of ship, dock and river workers, and forthwith opened up communications with similar workers in all European countries, the colonies and America.

It is a fair attempt to carry out the decisions of the international congress, and the progress made so far is of a very satisfactory character. Germany, France, Belgium, England, Holland, Spain, Italy, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, America, Canada and Austria have all responded, and a special organizing campaign is now going on in each of the countries named as the result of the effort made. A preliminary conference has already been held, attended, in addition to the British, by delegates from Germany, France, Holland, Belgium and Spain, and another is to be held in London in June of this year.

The textile workers and the miners are developing in the same direction, and a strong desire is being shown among the engineers to take similar action. This appears to be the easiest and most effective method for carrying out the policy laid down by the international congress and, by so doing, of enabling the workers to obtain that intimate knowledge of each other so essential for final success.

MISERY OF COAL WORKERS.

Few stories of social misery, even when limited to a brief period caused by transient conditions, are so pitiful as that which the Pennsylvania legislative committee has just recited, says the Labor Record. The members were directed to go into the anthracite coal regions and report on the extent of the miners' present sufferings, occasioned, directly, by the want of work and good wages. The investigation has left nothing to be desired in respect of real information. The picture which has been brought to light is an amazingly sad one.

There could hardly be in existence a worse state of misery than that which prevails on that scene. And as one gazes upon it the mind of man also recalls that in some districts of Ohio where soft coal is mined a similar condition is said to confront the investigator. Thousands of men are out of work, other thousands are struggling for a pittance which will not support them and their families, and the majority are competing with one another, not for higher wages, but for the lowest. The statements are, too, undeniably descriptions of fact.

UNION BUYS CHURCH PEWS.

Denver Typographical union, No. 49, is without doubt the only printers' organization in the country which appropriates money for the rental of seats in a church. This union has, for some time past, contributed to the support of the Broadway Temple association, which holds services in the Broadway theater—a large box being rented by No. 49 for the accommodation of those members desiring to attend.

The pastor of this temple of worship is Rev. Myron W. Reed, one of the few ministers of the gospel of the present time who espouse the cause of the poor on all occasions. This gentleman is a firm believer in trades unionism, and his discourses are listened to with interest by those who recognize that the doctrine expounded is for the benefit of all, rather than confined to the narrow limits of sectarianism. The action of the union in Denver is due to the belief that the services and teachings of a friend of organized labor should be recognized at all times. As a three-fourths vote is necessary to carry an appropriation for such a purpose it can readily be seen that Myron Reed is held in high esteem by Denver printers.

RISE OF EDITOR CONNERS.

Twenty years ago William J. Conners, now proprietor of the consolidated Record-Courier, the leading Democratic paper of Buffalo, N. Y., began life as a deck hand on a schooner that sailed the lakes between Buffalo and Chicago. He had little education, but was possessed of a brightness of intellect far beyond the men who ordinarily are deck hands on sailing craft, says the Hamilton, Ont., Spectator. Twelve years ago, when there was a big strike among the sailors and deck hands who made Buffalo their headquarters, Conners began a package-delivery business in the towns along the lake, in which he made some money. He became a factor in local politics in Buffalo, and a few years ago started a morning Democratic paper, with an evening issue, and this culminated a few days ago in his purchase of the Courier, one of the oldest newspapers in Buffalo. Conners now owns a $60,000 steam yacht and lives like a prince. From shoveling grain on the docks of Buffalo twenty years ago to shoveling gold today is a remarkable career for one who is yet a young man.

Joseph Woods, a vice president of the Cigarmakers' International union, is making a tour of the country in the interest of the union label, delivering illustrated lectures in open-air meetings.

The mill and factory woodworkers of Denver, Col., have decided to reorganize. Since the union went to pieces wages have been cut from $3.50 a day to $1.60, and the men want to stop further reductions.

Over 1000 carpenters, joiners and lathers in Newark quit work at the direction of an agent of the United Building Trades council, in sympathy with the striking plumbers, tinsmiths and painters.

The city council of Minneapolis has voted that none but union stone masons can be employed in that city upon municipal work. It was also decided that union regulations and wages must be observed.

The French labor bureau during the month of February last recorded twenty-six strikes, which involved 2600 persons. This is a decided decrease, due to the industrial depression now noticeable in many parts of France.

The Utah Federation of Labor is making a strong fight for the eight-hour law of that state. The lower courts have declared the law constitutional, but interested parties have carried the matter into the supreme court.

The union flint glass manufacturers in the Indiana gas belt have decided to close down this summer as usual, and will not take advantage of the offer made by the union workmen to work all summer the same as the non-union workers do.

The vote recently taken by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen to decide the question of affiliation of that organization with the American Federation of Labor resulted in an overwhelming majority voting in favor of the proposition.

The big strikes in St. Petersburg the present year have attracted the attention of the Russian government, with the result that hours of labor have been reduced in many industries, and in some cases the minimum of eight hours a day has been reached.

The journeymen horseshoers of St. Louis struck to change the workday from ten to nine hours. The strike was authorized by the international union, which selects one city each year in which to make the change, and upon this occasion it was the turn of the St. Louis union.

TRILBY'S RELIGION.

Du Maurier: "Tell, me, Trilby, do you ever pray to Him?"

"Pray to Him? Well, no—not often—not in words and on my knees and with my hands together, you know! Thinking's praying, very often—don't you think so? And so's being sorry and ashamed when one's done a mean thing, and glad when one's resisted a temptation, and grateful when it's a fine day, and one's enjoying one's self without hurting anyone else! What is it, but praying when you try and bear up after losing all you cared to lived for? There can be prayers without words just as well as songs, and Svengali used to say that songs without words are the best."

A THREATENED REMOVAL.

Boston Courier: Pryer—I notice that young Frayman is still paying his attentions to the daughter of old Senator Coffers.

Dyer—I believe he still persists in that direction.

Pryer—I am told that he's a relative of hers—a cousin twice removed.

Dyer—Twice! Say, the old man told me himself that he's removed him seven times already, and if he has to do it again it will probably be to a cemetery.

You may never know it happened if you fail to read The Evening Herald.

ROMAN LONDON.

It has been fairly well proved that Roman London lies buried about eighteen feet below the level of Cheapside, and deeper even than that is buried the earlier London of the Britons, says Pearson's Weekly. In nearly all parts of the city there have been discovered tesselated pavements, Roman tombs, lamps, vases, sandals, keys, ornaments, weapons, coins and statues of the ancient Roman gods. A little over a century ago, when deep sections were made for the sewers in Lombard street, the lowest stratum consisted of tesselated pavements and many colored dice were lying scattered about, and above that was a thick layer of wood ashes, as of the debris of charred wooden buildings. In building the exchange the workmen came on a gravel pit full of oyster shells, cattle bones, old sandals and shattered pottery. Two pavements were dug up under the French church in Threadneedle street, and other pavements have been cut through in several parts of the city. Authorities on the subject state that the soil seems to have risen over Roman London at the rate of nearly a foot in a century.

The June ✳ Magazines.

Harper's opens with "A New Switzerland," an account of adventures in the Dauphine, written and illustrated by Edwin Lord Weeks. The first installment of "The Great Stone of Sardis," by Frank R. Stockton, illustrated by Peter Newell, introduces a twentieth-century expedition to the North Pole. "Meteorological Progress of the Century" is the fifth of the series of illustrated articles on modern science, by Dr. Henry Smith Williams. "An Elder Brother to the Cliff-Dwellers," by Dr. T. Mitchell Prudden, is the story of the recent discovery of the remains of an ancient race of Indians. "Henry Gladwin and the Siege of Pontiac," by Charles Moore, is an account of a hitherto obscure episode, compiled from new and original sources. It is illustrated by Frederic Remington. The eighth article of the series on "White Man's Africa," by Poultney Bigelow, treats the Dutch feeling towards England. In "The Celebrities of the House of Commons," T. P. O'Connor, M. P., the Irish leader, gives a dashing account of his political contemporaries. The illustrations are by Paul Renouard. George du Maurier's last novel, "The Martian," reaches its ninth installment. The short stories are "Within the Eye of Honor," by George Hibbard, illustrated by C. Dana Gibson, and "Grandmother Stark," by Owen Wister. The "Editor's Study," by Charles Dudley Warner, gives a familiar view of Mexico and Mexican life. The "Editor's Drawer" opens with "The Goliaes," a farce, by John Kendrick Bangs, illustrated by Edward Penfield.

"Underground Life at Princeton" is the leading article of Scribner's. Stephen Crane, in "The Open Boat," gives the first elaborate account of his terrible experience, after the wreck of the steamer Commodore, when on its way to Cuba. Richard Harding Davis concludes his first novel, "Soldier's of Fortune." This serial has been one of Scribner's big success from the start.

No question is more insistent at this time than the relations of corporations to labor. Octave Thanet has written five complete short stories on phases of this problem, the first of which appears in this issue under the title "The Non-Combatant." Montgomery Schuyler, a leading authority, describes the architecture of "The New Library of Congress," and Peixotto illustrates it. Mr. Howell's "Story of a Play" gives an amusing picture of life in a New York flat on the upper west side somewhere in the eighties. C. D. Gibson's glimpses of "London Salons" gives an idea of what London is at the height of the season. Vierge's great drawing of a scene from "The Three Musketeers" is the fiction frontispiece of the number. A picture and poem by the late Theodore Robinson, a long lyric by George Cabot Lodge, son of the senator from Massachusetts, other poems and the departments complete this varied and entertaining number.

The Ladies' Home Journal presents an infinite variety of strikingly interesting, timely and practical features. It opens with an article by William George Jordan on "What Victoria Has Seen," which graphically recounts the progress of the world in the past sixty years, since the coronation of the English sovereign. The establishment of Methodism in America is told in an interesting article by Rev. W. J. Scott, D.D., on "When John Wesley Preached in Georgia." Edawrd W. Bok makes an appeal that the poor children of the cities be given an outing in the country during a part of the summer. He vigorously denounces "The Offense of the Colored Shirt;" also discusses the "Itch to be Seen." Lovers of fiction will read with delight Ella Higginson's short story, "One of Them Still. Stubborn Kinds," and Alice S. Wolf's romance, "Her After-Fame." Charles Dana Gibson's drawing—"The People of Dickens"—most interesting pictures Mr. and Mrs. Macawber, David Copperfield and Traddles, and a page of Mr. Woolf's waifs gives a most touching insight into what summer means to the children of the poor in cities. A song, "Wake Up, Dublin" by William Spenser author of "The Princess Bonnie," "The Little Tycoon," etc., will be welcomed by every lover of music. Dwight L. Moody's contribution to his series of Bible class articles discusses "Hope" in the evangelist's characteristic, lucid manner, and "Droch" chats of "Humor and the Humorists."

Outing for June devotes much space to the wheel. "The Wheelman's Faery Queen," by Charles Turner; "Wheeling in the Mikado's Land," by T. Phillip Terry; "Intercollegiate Cycling Championships," by D. Hines; "Across the Alleghanies Awheel," by John B. Carrington, and "A Bicycle Factory," will appeal to all lovers of the silent steed. Other notable features of a finely illustrated number include a valuable paper on "Bass and Bass Fishing," by Ed W. Sandys; "Champion Canoes of Today," by R. B. Burchard; "Inter-University Rowing," by Chase Mellen, and "Driving Four-in-Hand," by A. H. Godfrey.

For significance, variety and interest of matter and beauty of illustration, there rarely issues a magazine equal to the June number of McClure's. Professor Langley's account of his ten years of hard study and experiment in the construction of flying machines, crowned at last with a machine that actually solves the problem and proves "mechanical flight" to be both possible and practicable, is a positive contribution to science; but it is at the same time a most interesting story of heroic patience and effort directed to a noble end. The paper is illustrated with pictures of Professor Langley's own machine (the only flying machine that has ever flown) made under his direction. A series of life portraits of Queen Victoria, made timely by the sixtieth anniversary of her reign, is another attractive feature. There are twenty-five of these portraits, all reproduced with rare beauty and showing Victoria at various ages, from 2 years to the present time. There are some exceptionally good stories, and the number is as lively and entertaining as it is instructive.

The complete story in the June issue of Lippincott's Magazine is entitled "As Any Gentleman Might," and is a tale of adventure by William T. Nichols. Other stories in the number are: "To Him that Hath," by Anna Nathan Meyer, and "From the Grand Stand," by Jean Wright. Besides these there are several sketches and essays, among them being "A Feathery Debut," by Lalage D. Morgan; "A Year of Butterflies," by Frank H. Sweet; "Spanish Plains and Sierras," by Fanny Bullock Workman, and "A Yankee Farmer in Florida," by R. G. Robinson.

* * *

There are five very readable stories in the June number of the Black Cat—"The Man Hunt of Mendocino," by Frank Bailey Millard; "Silas Bartle's Snake Bite Cure," by Winthrop Packard; "Tunnel No. 6," by Eugene C. Derby; "An Old Maid's Wedding Trip," by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins, and "The Official Report," by Thaddeus M. Lakewood. Bright short stories of this kind will always attract readers.

* * *

Henry James, who has become a correspondent of Harper's Weekly, contributes to the issue of June 5 an article on London's great picture exhibitions, which have been held this spring. Among the other contributions there is an important paper by Edward Porritt on "The New Era in Canada," written with special reference to recent Canadian tariff legislation, and an article on "National Parks and Forest Reservations," by John Muir, both of which are fully illustrated.

Elihu Burritt, "the Learned Blacksmith," was in many respects one of the most noteworthy characters that New England has produced during the century. The extent of his linguistic attainments, self-trained as he was without the privileges of the schools, was something remarkable and almost incredible. But he was not simply a machine for learning languages. He was a man of a most virile mind, of great public spirit and of world-wide sympathies. His labors in behalf of cheap postage and of international arbitration were more fruitful than the labors of almost anybody else in his generation, and in this time when the cause of international arbitration is peculiarly at the front, it is worth while to study Burritt's life again. Miss Ellen Strong Bartlett's article upon him in the June number of the New England Magazine is most opportune, and will be widely read. We do not know of any better popular account, and it is rendered the more valuable by the fine portraits of Mr. Burritt which accompany it, the views of his various homes and haunts, and the curious fac-similes of many of his productions. Warren F. Kellogg, 5 Park square, Boston, Mass.

One finds the expected variety in the contents of the American Monthly Review of Reviews for June. The subjects of the sugar tariff, a sixty years' retrospect of the British empire, the recent visit to the United States of M. Brunetiere, the French critic; the defective eyesight lately developed among American children, and the movement for the pensioning of school teachers, are treated in special articles. The editorial department entitled "The Progress of the World" covers such topics as American intervention in Cuba, the relation of Hawaii to the sugar question, the use of money in politics by corporations, the enlarged metropolis of New York, the fate of the arbitration treaty, European alliances and the Greco-Turkish war, the future of Greece, etc.

* * *

"Princess Enigma" is the very descriptive title of the novelette that forms the chief feature of the June number of Tales From Town Topics (Town Topics Publishing company, 208 Fifth avenue New York). The princess, from whom the story derives its title, is an erratic but fascinating personage, whose affairs of the heart are as numerous as they are inexplicable, and whose identity is not dissimilar to that of a certain lady of title, whose desertion of a princely husband, some months ago, set two continents of people to chattering. While the amazing conduct of the princess is faithfully described, there is nothing offensive about the manner of description, and there runs through the book a love story of an honest and wholesome type that is sure to compensate any critic who finds himself shocked by the ways of the Princess Enigma herself.

The Bookman notes that F. Hopkinson Smith has just finished a new novel entitled "Caleb West—Master Diver." It will begin to appear serially in the Atlantic Monthly, probably in October, and be published as a book in the spring of next year. Two of Mr. Smith's former characters, both heroes in their way, play important parts in this story: Capt. Joe, the man who saved a Hoboken ferry boat from sinking in midstream by forcing his body into a gash left in the boat's side by a colliding tug; and Maj. Tom Slocombe, of Pocono, already known to us in "A Gentleman Vagabond." The original of Capt. Joe is, we believe, a famous wrecker and submarine engineer of New London, Conn. The scene of the story is laid on the Conecticut shore, and the interest is centered in the erection of a lighthouse situated some eight miles from the harbor.

Appletons' Popular Science Monthly for June contains an important contribution to modern economics by David A. Wells on "The Nomenclature and Forms of Taxation." The poll tax is shown to be a desirable form if popular opinion can be brought to favor it. The relative merits of direct and indirect taxation are discussed at some length, and the conclusion is arrived at that, while indirect taxation is generally favored by public opinion, it is much the most expensive and least desirable of the two. Some interesting facts regarding the early use of alcoholic beverages are given by Dr. C. E. Pellew. The earliest historical records give details about the use and abuse of this potent liquid, and make it plain that the ancients had their "liquor question" as well as ourselves.

There is a very striking story in the Argonaut of May 31. It is entitled "A Chinese Vendetta," and relates a tragic incident in a war between two highbinder societies. The author, Joffry A. de Montaigu, is a young Californian who has made a careful study of the Chinese, and in this story he has presented a vivid and artistic picture of one of the most dramatic elements of their life.

Harper's Round Table, published June 1, contains a story by Charles Dudley Warner, entitled "Just an Ordinary Kind of a Boy;" an article on "The Childhood of Queen Victoria," by Mary Shears Roberts; the second prize story of the Harper's Round Table competition, entitled "The North Sauket Episode," by G. M. Kirke; an article by Montenay Jephson, "Through the African Forest," and one of John Kendrick Bangs' humorus papers on "The Remarkable Adventures of Sandboys."

* * *

The Century for June has as its highlights the subjects of Queen Victoria, apropos of the celebration of this month, and the work of the sculptor St. Gaudens, apropos of the dedication of the Shaw memorial in Boston. The most complete pictorial record of the work of St. Gaudens yet made is here published in a group of papers by Edward Atkinson, W. A. Coffin and T. W. Higginson. Besides three full-page reproductions of the Shaw memorial, there are twenty-nine pieces of sculpture by St. Gaudens shown in the articles. There is also a sketch of the life of Col. Shaw by the editor, and an editorial on the sculptor. The material relating to Queen Victoria comprises a tribute by Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, an article by Florence Hayward on "Queen Victoria's 'Coronation Roll,'" here reproduced by her majesty's special permission, and four portraits of the queen at different ages, the frontispiece being the Princess Victoria at the age of 4. A third article of special and curious interest in an illustrated account of Eugene P. Andrews of "How a Riddle of the Parthenon Was Unraveled," Mr. Andrews himself being the one by whom the riddle was solved while he was a student at the American school in Athens. There are many other notable articles.

* * *

Two very diversely entertaining readings in Current Literature for June are selections from Henry James' latest novel, "The Spoils of Poynton," and from the much-talked of "Quo Vadis" of the Polish writer, Henryk Sienkiewicz. A critical review of the latter's famous book appears in this number, from the pen of Edward S. Van Zile.

* * *

Harper Bazar, published on June 5, is distinguished by an especially strong presentation of the department entitled, "Club Women and Club Work," conducted by Mrs. Margaret H. Welch, with portraits of distinguished club members. An article on "What Women Are Doing in the West," by Ella W. Peattie, will interest a large and influential class of women.

* * *

The May issue of the Hypnotic Magazine (Psychic Publishing company, 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago), is in all respects the best of the series. The inquiry department contains some very interesting experiences; and other readable articles in this number are: "Psychic Phenomena in Septic Fevers" by Dr. W. Waugh; "Suggestion as a Therapeutic Agent," by Dr. C. Barlow; "Reports of cases treated at the Chicago, Stevens' Point and Cleveland Schools of Suggestive Therapeutics; Some Practical Experience with Hypnotism," by Charles Townsend.

* * *

The Arena for June is not perhaps quite so varied in its contents as usual, but it probably more than makes up for this feature by an unusually full and thorough discussion of several important topics. The number leads off with a paper by the Hon. James D. Phelan, mayor of San Francisco, on "Municipal Conditions in California," in which he makes a strong plea for the exercise of more rigid control over private corporate monopolies, such as those which control the street car service, lighting, water supply, garbage disposal, etc. This paper concludes the valuable series of articles on municipal reform, written by various city mayors, which have been appearing in the Arena during the past few months.

In a striking and valuable paper on "Railway Financiering as a Fine Art," the Hon. W. P. Fishback, president of the Western Association of Writers, exposes the outrageous swindling which has accompanished the exploitation of new railways in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and other states during the past twenty years.

Godey's for June completes the 134th volume of the oldest magazine in America. Godey's was established in July, 1830; yet although old it is ever new. The June issue is peculiar in several respects. It is a special fiction number and contains over fifty pages of new tales. Among these is a story, "Two Maids and a Man," illustrated throughout by photographs from living models. Among the other stories of special note are: "A Proceeding in Ejectment," an up-to-date Western tale, full of fire and fervor; "The Winning of Larchmont," a ghost story with a real live ghost in it; "Pip," a story of two lovers and an infant terrible; and "The Brown Rose," a touchingly pathetic bit of romance writing. Several breezy short tales add interest to the issue.

"How the House Does Business" is the title of an interesting article in the June number of the North American Review from the pen of the Hon. T. B. Reed, speaker of the house of representatives. It is a full and carefully prepared description of how national legislation is conducted, and the methods whereby the country's needs and necessities are provided for. H. Seton-Karr, M.P., presents an able paper on "England's Food Supply in Time of War." The dependence of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland on foreign imports for the necessaries of life is a well-known and established fact, and in Mr. Seton-Karr's opinion the consequences that might arise therefrom in the event of war merit adequate and serious attention. Among the short articles are: "The Disintegration of Political Party," by Professor Goldwin Smith; "The Senate and the Tariff Bill," by Henry Litchfield West, and "Another Word on Prison Labor," by George Blair.

A VALUABLE PRESCRIPTION.

Editor Morrison, of Worthington, Ind., Sun, writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Stehle, 2223 Cottage Grove avenue, Chicago, was all run down, could not eat nor digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and strength. BIWABIK.

Biwabik, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Work on the new spur to the Roberts mine is progressing nicely, about thirty men being employed in clearing right-of-way. Preparations are being made to begin grading next week.

Decoration day was observed here by a well-arranged entertainment at Congregational hall. The attendance was large and the affair much enjoyed.

James Laird, of this place, has been allowed a pension of $6 per month, dating from the date of his application in 1893. He dealt with patent attorneys until he became weary. Then he wrote to Congressman Morris and the pension soon came.

Superintendent of County Roads Hawkinson has recommended an appropriation of $1800 for the road south from Biwabik to the St. Louis river, and it is hoped here that the commissioners will make the appropriation. This road would open up a good farming country and much valuable meadow land. A road from Biwabik to Sparta is also badly needed.

Rev. C. B. Fellows, of Minneapolis, traveling missionary for the Congregational society, is in town this week.

Mrs. J. A. Loulan, who is visiting with her parents near Ottawa, Ont., is expected to return home next week.

T. J. Jones, formerly superintendent of the Biwabik mine, has been offered a position as superintendent of an iron mill in Chicago and will probably accept. Mr. Jones recently invented and patented a new wheel for bicycles, which has a pneumatic cushion around the hub instead of in the tire. He thinks he has solved the problem of preventing punctures. He has also invented a horseshoe which is cut complete, calks and all, with one clip of the shears from a bar of iron rolled especially for the purpose. The piece is then bent to the shape of a shoe. This will do away with the necessity of adding calks to shoes after they are manufactured.

About 100 men are at work clearing right-of-way for the spur to the Roberts mine. The contractors are paying $2.25 per section of 100 feet square. This is the lowest price ever heard of for clearing heavy timber, and the men do not stay long.

John Mewhinney has resigned his position as clerk at the Cincinnati mine and Frank Gleason has been engaged in his place.

J. W. Lang, clerk at the Cloquet at Eveleth, will move his family to that place next week.

James Tierney was over from Mesaba this week hiring a gang of men to load lumber, which is being shipped to Chicago.

ELY EVENTS.

Ely, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—Walter Davey and Miss Jane Cowling were united in marriage Wednesday morning at the home of the bride's father in this city by the Rev. T. A. Ambler, of Two Harbors. Both of the contracting parties are well known in this city, having resided here for many years. They left the same morning for an extended wedding trip through Northern Michigan.

Thomas Polkinghorn visited in the city for a few days this week from Two Harbors.

Miss Addie Van Blarcom has returned from her school duties in St. Cloud.

Andrew Hessinberg was arrested Thursday on a warrant sworn out by his wife. He pleaded guilty in the municipal court to the charge of threatening to kill his better half and was sentenced to ninety days in the county jail. He was taken to Duluth Friday morning by Chief Garrison.

The baseball game between the Ely and Tower clubs was again postponed last Sunday on account of the severe weather. The game will probably be played tomorrow.

A small blaze occurred in the Pioneer location last Wednesday evening, the damage amounting to about $100.

W. G. Close, of Duluth, was in the city this week.

The council meeting last Tuesday evening was void of much interest. The usual grist of bills were ordered paid and the cattle ordinance and liquor ordinance were passed. No further business of importance was transacted.

MESABA MATTERS.

Mesaba, June 5.—(Special to The Herald.)—H. B. Waite, the Minneapolis lumberman, spent several days in town this week.

Miss Fanny Anderson, who has been visiting Miss Emma Heglund returned to Two Harbors Tuesday.

C. M. Hill came up from Duluth Monday.

Miss Emma Heglund spent Thursday at St. Louis river, visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Barrow, of Duluth, are in Mesaba. Mrs. Barrow will assist at the boardinghouse; Mr. Barrow has also accepted employment here.

Otto Scarp, who went to a Duluth hospital for treatment last week, is reported convalescent.

Miss Jennie McDonald has been ill for the past week.

Constable John Hussey made a trip to St. Louis river Wednesday to arrest a man charged with assault. Arriving there, the prospective prisoner could not be found; the search was given up and the constable returned.

Residents of Mesaba awoke Sunday morning to see the ground white with snow. This is rather an unusual occurrence for the last week in May.

The Mesaba Range, the weekly newspaper published in Biwabik has made its appearance again after a suspension of some time.

George M. Furbush and George W. Paxton, of Ashland, were in town this week.

Mr. O'Gorman was here Wednesday in the interest of the Mississippi Valley Lumber association. He was on his way to Virginia.

TOWER.

Messrs. Robinson and Williams of the Vermilion livery barn have secured the contract for carrying mail to Rainy lake and Koochiching, says the Iron Journal. The contract price is $1900, and it will go into effect July 1. Arrangements have been made with the transportation company for the haul across Crane Lake portage.

W. G. Bonham left for St. Paul on Tuesday to argue the city's side of the case before the supreme court in the action brought by the city of Tower to recover the value of the rails belonging to the defunct street railway company. Demurrers were entered against the complaint alleging insufficient cause of action, and were sustained by Judge Moer in the district court.

Mr. McInnis states that while in the gold country he was much pleased to run across several fine properties owned and controlled by several old Towerites. Among those may be mentioned M. O'Keefe, John Rodi, Louis Larson, H. Dietrich and Alec Mills, in the Seine River district, and D. McLaren, Charles Nelson and L. Ahlstrom in the Manitou district. Those mentioned own exceptionally fine properties.

Silas Robinson's house was badly damaged by fire and water last Saturday night. No insurance.

The transportation company has put six teams on the Crane Lake portage and it is understood that the Cody place at the Dam has been acquired as a stopping place and headquarters. The teams will make regular trips, meeting the boats at each end.

A load of machinery weighing ten tons was started from Tower on Monday evening for the Preston mine at Turtle lake. The machinery has been here since winter waiting for an opportunity to be shipped, and it has been taken charge of by the transportation company. A stamp mill will be shipped by the same company from West Duluth to the gold country about June 10.

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN the payment of the sum of seven hundred thirty-six and 81-100 dollars which is claimed to be due and is actually due at the date of this notice on a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Ludwig Rusch, a widower, mortgagor, to Wilhelm Brown, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagee, said mortgage bearing date the 21st day of April, 1894, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the 21st day of April, 1894, at 10 o'clock and 45 minutes in the forenoon of that day, in Book 103 of mortgages, on page 148, which mortgage was executed to secure the payment of one certain promissory note of even date with said mortgage in the sum of six hundred dollars, payable in three years after the date of said note and mortgage with interest on said note at the rate of seven per cent per annum from date until paid, which interest was payable and due semi-annually, said note being signed by said mortgagor as maker and payable to the order of and delivered to said mortgagee; and said mortgage containing the provision that the said mortgagor should keep the property described in said mortgage unceasingly insured in some responsible stock insurance company for at least the sum of one thousand dollars, payable, in case of loss, to the said mortgagee or his assigns, and further providing that in case said mortgagor should not effect such insurance or fail to pay the premium therefor, then and in that case said mortgagee or his assigns, should be empowered to effect such insurance and pay all such unpaid premiums, and all sums of money paid for such purpose should be tacked and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and be collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by said mortgage.

And, whereas, it was further understood and agreed by the terms of said mortgage that said mortgagor should pay all taxes and assessments that should for any purpose be payable, assessed or imposed upon said premises or any part thereof, before the same should become delinquent. And that upon his failure to do so, the said Wilhelm Brown, said mortgagee, was authorized to pay such taxes or assessments and any and all sum or sums so paid should be tacked and impressed as an additional lien upon said premises, and should be secured by and collectible as a part of said mortgage and bear interest at the same rate as the indebtedness secured by the said mortgage and the note thereby secured, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to effect insurance as required by the terms of said mortgage, and the said Wilhelm Brown, mortgagee, having heretofore been required to effect the same, and having heretofore, on, to-wit, the 1st day of May, 1897, paid and expended as the premium for the insurance so effected the sum of five dollars, and said mortgagor has repaid said mortgagee no part of said sum so expended for insurance, and,

Whereas, the said mortgagor having failed to pay and cancel the taxes on said premises in said mortgage described for the years, 1893, 1894 and 1895, and the same having become delinquent, the said mortgagee thereafter, and on the 1st day of May, 1897, did pay the taxes on said premises for said years 1893, 1894 and 1895, which with penalties and costs attached to said taxes because of such non-payment amounted to the sum of one hundred nine and 6-100 dollars, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof, or the said amount of taxes and insurance so paid.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered and conveyed by said mortgage, to-wit: Lot number eighty-six, 21st Seventh street, Duluth Proper, First Division, according to the recorded plat thereof, on file and of record in the office of the register of deeds in and for St. Louis County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and the taxes and insurance heretofore paid by said mortgagee as hereinbefore set forth, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front entrance door to the county court house, in the city of Duluth, in St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 5th day of July, A. The World of Fashion.

Summer fashions multiply very rapidly as the season advances, and the charms of light, thin dresses begin to define their fascinating possibilities in the feminine mind. They were never quite so irresistible as they are this season, says the New York Sun.

Transparent effects stand at the head of the list of specialties in fashion, and it is almost a necessity to have at least one gown which shows a gleam of colored lining through its meshes if you would be quite up to date. Every sort of transparent material is in fashion. Canvas presents a variety in weave and effect which is not surpassed by any other fabric. Grenadines of every description, both plain and fancy, are very much worn, and grass lawn, in the sheer fine silky quality, seems to be quite as popular as ever, although authorities in Paris declare that it has had its day. Very elaborate gowns are made of it, however, and the colored silk linings display to perfection the lovely batiste embroideries with which they are trimmed.

BAREGE IS DESIRABLE.

Barege is another very desirable material, and a new veiling very much like the old nun's veiling is one of the most attractive fabrics of the season. It is very soft and clinging, an element in its favor which is highly appreciated by Parisians, and it also, in some instances, has a narrow hemstitched border which helps out the scheme of trimming, making a very simple serviceable gown, or a dressy one, as you choose, a light or dark color. Satin ribbon, in narrow widths, trims these dresses very prettily, and is put in graduated widths on the skirt, or ribbon four or five inches wide may be used as a ruffle down the two front and back seams, beginning at a point at the bottom and gradually widening to the full width at the hips, where it extends across from the front to the back. Fancy ribbons, with contrasting edges, are used in this way, and it is pretty to have the ribbon match the gown in color, with a half-inch border of black satin on the edge. These wide fancy edged ribbons are also used for bretelle effects, being gathered over the shoulders and tapering to a point at the waist, back and front. Wide ribbons in checked designs, with contrasting satin edges, are also used as a skirt trimming, sewn on plain a little above the bottom edge. The variety in these fancy ribbons covers every imaginable color and design, and suggests all sorts of possibilities for their use as a dress trimming.

TRANSPARENT EFFECTS.

Transparent effects are not confined to the plain materials, for there are pretty novelties in brocaded designs which are transparent here and there. A pretty example of the use of this is in a blue and green mixture made over green and white shot silk. Mauve gauze forms the sash, which has a fringe of gold and silver colored silk on the ends. White silk and the mauve gauze form rosettes on the waist. Gauze materials are in great demand this season for all sorts of trimmings, sashes, fichus, chemisettes, and entire dresses, and among the Liberty gauzes there are two new varieties called Agra gauze and Dalghali crepe. The former has a soft, silky sheen, and the latter is recommended as a good substitute for chiffon.

White gowns in any sort of material will be quite as much worn as ever despite the craze for red, violet and blue. Liberty gauze makes the daintiest sort of a gown to wear summer evenings at a fashionable summer resort. The variety in thin white wool goods is exceedingly pretty, and there is a great diversity in the weaves; but the open mesh in basket checks is perhaps the most fashionable according to the season's standard. One novelty has a fine cord like poplin, but it is woven in such a way that it is partially transparent.

CREAM WHITE SERGE.

Cream white serge is still on the list, and it is made up in the coat and skirt style of costume, trimmed elaborately with either white or colored braid. The coats are in the Eton or blazer style, with a basque six inches deep, or in the form of a bolero. White duck and pique are made up in the same manner, and the more elaborate gowns are trimmed with rows of white embroidered insertion on the skirt and around the jacket. Others are trimmed with braid, and just as many are quite plain, with a pretty colored shirt waist of silk or lawn.

The new piques with colored patterns make pretty dresses, and in pale pink, yellow and blue, with satin stripes and dots, the colored piques are very desirable. The range of cotton materials is a large one this season, and there are pretty fine crepons and an assortment of canvas weaves in a variety of colors which make very stylish dresses, with all the appearance of being silk, the material is so glossy. Then there are crepe cloths in Japanese designs and a silk and cotton mixed material which is used for tennis dresses. Certainly there need be no scarcity of pretty gowns this season, for there are materials suited to every purse.

CHECKED TAFFETA.

Checked taffeta seems to be a favorite fabric in Paris, and many pretty dresses are made of these checks in various colors. One in pale gray and pink is quite plain, with a plaited bolero front opening over a vest of pink gauze trimmed with yellow lace.

One pretty model is carried out in red and white check, with the new handkerchief drapery at the back of the skirt. The bodice has a wide corselet belt of black satin, and some folds of black chiffon are arranged over the shoulders, falling in lace-trimmed ends in front. The vest is of white satin embroidered with colored beads and plaited revers are formed of the silk with the selvage at the edge.

So much depends on the details of trimming and combinations of colors in our gowns that a few hints may be of use to those who are at a loss to know how to give gowns the much-desired touch which stamps them stylish. One pretty tan canvas gown lined with deep yellow has a lavender moire silk collar and one deep rever edged around with applique lace. Another gown of navy blue canvas has pale blue velvet revers and a vest of beige moire. A violet cashmere dress is made very striking with a yoke of finely tucked white batiste, a bolero of violet taffeta covered with ecru embroidery and a belt of cerise velvet. Blue and white foulard silk is made, up with two vandyke flounces around the skirt, edged with narrow ecru embroidery and a white mousseline de soie bodice under a bolero of the silk, trimmed with two lace-edged frills of silk, the under one being green.

A NOVEL TRIMMING.

A novel dress trimming seen on some of the light-colored cloth gowns is the application of black Chantilly lace flowers. An example of this is a dull rose cloth with lace figures down either side of the front, and a pink and white shot silk bodice made in bands joined together with open feather stitching of black silk, and oblong pieces of the cloth trimmed with the lace arranged over the shoulders. The use of color is a very important consideration in the world of fashion, and one very stylish but striking contrast is the use of dark blue and mandarin yellow. Wherever white satin can be combined with this yellow the effect is greatly improved.

The elaborate use of black velvet ribbon is sanctioned in a foulard gown, and bows of wider ribbon are the only decoration at the top of the close, puffed sleeves. A simple dress of ecru batiste is made over green silk, with two rows of insertion around the skirt, a green silk vest striped crosswise with insertion, and a collar of batiste edged with a frill of embroidery. The sash is of green taffeta ribbon. Another model, pretty for a variety of fabrics, is carried out in the soft, open-meshed, ribbed material patterned in heliotrope, black and white. Rows of cream lace insertion trim the ruffle and skirt, and the bolero is of tucked heliotrope, taffeta silk finished on the edge, with a hem of white mousseline de soie joined with a narrow beading.

COLLAR OF MUSLIN.

A collar of the muslin and silk turns down around the shoulders, and the vest and belt showing above and below the bolero are made of three shades of green taffeta ribbon. A blue and white foulard shows a very peculiar style of bodice made of finely tucked bands of the silk, between puffings of white net, which are outlined with narrow frills of net, edged with a tiny hem of the blue and white silk. Insertions of net with the same little frills trim the skirt, and white ribbon finishes the waist. This gown is certainly one good example of the immense amount of hand work there is on the most fashionable costumes this season. The applications of lace, the frills, puffings and tucks are all done by hand, so it is labor rather than the price of materials which increases the cost of our gowns.

There are no end of pretty black and white effects this season, and one which is nothing if not unique is a gown with a skirt of white silk covered with black maltese lace to the knee, and below this there are two deep flounces of black and white striped silk. The bodice is a little coat of white silk covered with the black lace and a vest of white chiffon crossed with bands of turquoise blue velvet fastened with diamond buttons.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Young People Will Look Quite Picturesque.

The fashions in children's clothes are decidedly picturesque this season, and almost as varied as those of the grown-ups. Young girls, if perfectly equipped for all the festivities in which they have a share, are supposed to have suitable costumes for each and every one.

One very sensible difference between the small and the large gowns is the general use of inexpensive materials, and although silk is very much worn by children of all ages, this year China silk, pongee and taffeta are usually employed. Accordion plaited India silk with a white ground and Persian pattern in soft colors, is very pretty for the little frocks, which are made with a short, low-necked waist finished around the shoulders with a lace-trimmed bertha of white batiste or with frills of the silk edged with narrow velvet ribbon, and worn with a white guimpe by girls between 6 and 12 years of age. Figured satin foulards and finely checked taffetas make fashionable dresses, and one dressy costume for a girl of 12 is of pink glace silk combined with pink crepe de chine and cream lace insertion. White China silk is especially pretty for young girls, and is made up quite simply, with skirts either perfectly plain or with a trimming of lace-edged frills or rows of insertion. The waists have a lace yoke with a lace-trimmed ruffle finishing the edge. The pongee dresses usually have a deep collar of embroidery.

The daintiest little dresses of all are the flowered organdies, dimities and lawns, which cost such a trifle for the materials and so much in proportion if you buy them ready made. Dimity under dresses of some plain color make the organdies very effective with the bright ribbon bows and sash. The skirts are often plainly hemmed, except in the case of the gored skirts for older girls, which are trimmed with lace-edged ruffles. The waists have a guimpe yoke of lace insertion and a frill of lawn around the edge.

OF WHITE ORGANDIE.

One pretty model is in white orgadie covered with pink rosebuds. The belt is of white muslin embroidery through which pink ribbon is run, coming out in front to form a rosette. Accordion-plaited lace-edged frills of the muslin fall over the close sleeves, and a lace-edged ruffle trims the skirt. Rows of lace insertion around the skirt and full blouse bodice are a pretty trimming, and fine tucks above the hem and in the ruffles are very much used. A blouse bodice, with rows of tucks between the lace insertion all the way around, is a pretty style for flounced organdie. Dotted muslins trimmed with lace are seen among the children's gowns made over colored lawn or silk linings.

VERY SERVICEABLE.

Very serviceable gowns for young girls of all ages are made of colored and white piques in the coat and skirt style, and are trimmed with braid or embroidered insertion, or are quite plain, with pearl buttons as the only trimming. Other pique dresses are made with a guimpe yoke of embroidery, or finely tucked white batiste with rows of insertion between th tucks, berthas of embroidery and rows of insertion set in the skirt.

The soft cashmeres so fashionable this season make charming gowns for young girls, and in light colors they are very dressy. Tucks make a very pretty trimming, and narrow velvet ribbon is also very effective in the cashmere dresses. A pretty model for India silk is carried out in pink, with a white, green and black pattern on it. The skirt is shirred in several cords around the waist. Plaid ribbon forms the braces, belt and collar, and finely embroidered muslin the frills over the sleeves. Canvas is a popular gown for older girls, and one simple gown of tan canvas is trimmed with bands of white satin covered with cream guipure. Embroidered ecru batiste and colored pique are both used as trimming for these gowns.

FRILLS OF FASHION.

It is said that Paris has a society for the aid of dressmakers, and M. Gaston Worth is the secretary. The object is to assist dressmakers to tide over the dull season, when so often they have no work at all. Money is lent them without interest in case of illness.

Every sort of bodice is worn this season; yet the round waist rather has the lead. You can have a two-inch basque effect below the belt or a bolero bodice edging two inches above, and wide or narrow belts as they best suit the figure. In addition to the variety of round bodices there are basques three and six inches deep extending all around or just across the back and sides.

Fancy little bolero jackets are made of ecru linen, with a sailor collar across the back and elaborately embroidered with gold thread.

Irish lace is very popular for yokes and epaulette effects on foulard gowns, and issued in edging and insertion as well.

Serpent skin is a new trimming for tailor-made gowns, and it is employed for entire revers and tiny bands on the cloth revers.

Belts of plaid silk fastened with a metal buckle are popular with English women, and belts of every sort are a particular feature of dress. Leather of various tints forms a background for all sorts of metal work and fancy jeweled designs. A green one dotted over with turquoise is especially good style.

Ruffs of chiffon lace and ribbon are very fashionable in Paris, and they are made high at the back, with long ends in front and a deep flounce of chiffon around the shoulders.

FOR TRAVELERS.

Some of the Latest Things Paris Offers.

What busy crowded places the bus depots now are! Trains that come in are full of tourists, and those going out carry a number of the society women here who are London bound for the season. The numerous trunks and handboxes suggest the rounds of gayeties that the owners look forward to. All of these women travel with their chic-looking French maids, who are accustomed to travel, and they fly around buying tickets and checking trunks and looking after baggage in a way that is delightfully business like, says the New York Journal.

Occasionally one sees an ultra swell young matron, attended by her courier, her courier maid and her maid bringing up the rear with a crouching, little, trembling lap dog in her arms. This thoroughbred doggie receives no end of attention. It is attired in a smart little traveling coat, with a tiny pocket handkerchief stuck in the jauntiest way in the pocket of the coat. Its padded basket that is built in the form of the regulation dog house is always conspicuous among the bundles.

The fashion of wearing a rather pas gown for traveling is certainly not in vogue here. Neither are the long, light, dust coats.

TAILOR GOWNS.

One sees the smartest sort of tailor gowns, that are not always built of somber browns nor navy blues, but more often of soft cadet blue or a dull shade of resede green or elephant gray, that the courtieres design especially for traveling.

It surely pays to give a bit of care to one's traveling costume, for an eminently respectable appearance while traveling insures no end of little courtesies from the railroad officials and fellow passengers. And, as one bright little woman frankly admitted, a knowledge of being well dressed gave her a wondrous amount of courage, and she found she could ask questions in very bad French to the officials without feeling the least bit disconcerted, just because she felt she was well dressed and would be recognized as a lady anywhere.

Pretty Miss Bayard, the daughter of the ex-ambassador to England, was pointed out to me at one of the depots the other day. She and her father were here on a little trip. Miss Bayard wore such a chic gown of elephant gray cloth. The skirt was a double skirt, the upper one forming a rounded point at the front. The corsage was a sort of blouse, with short, full basques. At the front where it fastened it was cut in points and braided with five rows of narrow, black braid. It opened over a chemisette of bright red linen that had a tall, white linen collar and black moire tie. The sleeves, which were the usual tailor gown sleeves, were mounted by epaulettes of the braided cloth.

With this gown Miss Bayard wore a bright red straw hat that was small. It was trimmed with so many tiny blackbird wings that the straw was hardly visible.

Every smart woman I see traveling wears one of the handy little leather bags either on a narrow leather belt or pinned securely at her side. In this she slips her purse and handkerchief and minute powder box, for even traveling dresses cannot boast a pocket for fear of spoiling the hang of the skirt.

TRAVELING SATCHELS.

The traveling satchels of today are large and weighty with their silver outfits and entirely too cumbersome for a woman to carry around in her hand. It is this state of things that has created the necessity for the little satchel carried at one's waist. The latest thing is to have these little satchels fitted out with tiny articles of toilette in silver. One in olive green leather has a minute smelling salts bottle, a tiny glove buttoner and nail file, a small, flat silver powder box and a little celluloid memorando mounted in silver. These are all held with narrow leather straps to one side of the little bag, and take up little or no space.

The dress suit case is no longer the especial property of the "sterner sex." It is exactly the thing that a young woman needs when she expects to spend a few days in the country with friends. There is just room in one half for an evening waist, and the other half holds comfortably a change of linen and one's toilette articles.

The leather merchants are bringing out their dress suit cases especially fitted out for women with the toilette articles either in silver or ivory.

With the young women who are making a tour of the continent this summer the dress suit cases are very much in evidence.

Miss Sybil Sanderson, who is making such a tremendous success in her concert tours through Europe, has her latest traveling gown made of resede green cloth. It is smart enough to be called dressy, and yet it is in equisite taste. The skirt is a godet, close-fitting over the hips, with all the fullness thrown to the back. Two bias folds of the cloth two inches wide trim the skirt at the top.

The corsage is a blouse of the green cloth, fastening over to the left side. It is trimmed with five folds of the cloth that encircle the corsage. There is a double jabot of the green cloth at the left side where the bodice fastened. The collar is a high, straight collar of the cloth mounted by a frill of black gauze. The girdle is of black satin.

None of the traveling hats I have seen are particularly somber. They are always small, but bright red, leaf green and dahlia are all popular colors in these traveling hats.

ABOUT PERFUMES.

The perfumes which are most agreeable to the senses are not always the most helpful to the nerves. Ambergris, for instance, is positively offensive to many, yet it is said to possess a wonderful power of clearing the brain and driving away those evil spirits known as the "blues." On the other hand, attar of roses, with its suggestion of glowing suns and gorgeous Eastern colors, predisposes one to tears. A faint odor of musk acts as a tonic, while civet brings drowsiness of soul, for which the best antidote is the pungent odor of sandal wood. The fragrance of citron and aloe wood is as soothing to nervous people as fan-off music.

Many perfumes delightful in the open air become particularly disagreeable in a close room. A whole evening can be spoiled by the presence of tube roses or lilies in a reception room. Their strong fragrance has a very bad effect. Magnolia blossoms, too, have a delightful perfume in their native grove, but woe to her who sleeps through the night with a single blossom on her pillow. There are many fragrant flowers such as carnation, clove pink, sweetbriar and apple blossom, that are as beneficial as they are sweet scentd.

A vivid perfume is nearly always bracing, while a subtle one is generally enervating. One may become positively intoxicated through inhaling the odor of the peach, almond, wild cherry and other blossoms of the same class, because they all contain a suggestion of prussic acid.

SOME JUBILEE GOWNS.

They are making the most wonderful gowns for the queen's jubilee celebration in London. These are not necessarily for court functions, for the queen will do little entertaining. It is her turn to be entertained, and she rightly regards every large society function of this week as given in her honor.

All the elegant dresses are to be thrown open for balls and, judging by the number of gowns ordered to be sent to this or that hotel the first week in June, there will be more new ball dresses than ever London saw before. The gowns are not court dresses by any means, but beautiful creations from new materials made in the way that is most becoming to the owners. The stiff court dresses are the horror of those who must wear them, and they are discarded at the first possible moment.

These dresses, as fast as they are made, are exhibited in the shops at private "views." The owners come and try them on, and the couturiere makes little unimportant changes in them, as suggested. The most brilliant exhibitions take place daily when these dresses are put on, and she is fortunate who can view them.

The charming simplicity of this summer's ball gown must not suggest inexpensiveness. They are made of gauze, net, mousseline de soie, chiffon and all the gauzy materials that call for silk or satin transparencies.

SUN PLAITING.

A great deal of sun plaiting is conspicuous on most of them, and very often the whole gown, skirt, bodice and sleeves are sun plaited.

Taffeta ribbon is used in the most lavish way in trimming these gowns, together with frills and ruches of lace and gauzy materials.

Yet the design of the gowns is exceedingly simple, notwithstanding the ribbon braces and bands and the numerous frills trimming the skirts.

With a number of these decollete gowns come guimpes of the same sheer material as the gowns, that are tucked and puffed and made more elaborate with lace insertion and ribbon, so that my lady has a high-neck ball gown whenever it pleases her. For high-neck ball gowns will be quite popular this summer.

A TASTEFUL GOWN.

One of the most tasteful of these gowns had a transparency of deep ivory satin, covered with white chiffon. The satin skirt was made godet and fitted closely over the hips. The chiffon skirt fell over the transparency a bit full at the front and sides, and very full at the back. Only at the belt was it attached to the satin skirt. Around the bottom it was embroidered in deep cream silk and trimmed with seed pearls.

The bodice was of deep cream satin, covered full with the white chiffon. It opened at the left arm seam, and the chiffon was draped from under arm seam to under arm seam. The chiffon at the front of the bodice was caught down with a pearl ornament. Bordering the neck of the gown were tiny frills of chiffon. The braces over the shoulders were formed of coral taffeta ribbon. The ribbon was brought over the shoulders, crossed under the arms and tacked to form rather a high gidle. Over the arms fell three short full frills of the white chiffon that served as sleeves.

Many of the later ball gowns shown me at the shops with chiffon or gauze skirts were only attached to the silk or satin underskirts with a common belt. This makes it possible for a frugal-minded young woman to use the same satin skirt with several of her light, gauzy skirts, if they can be made on separate bands.

A stunning ball gown that had just been completed for Mrs. Gardner, one of the leaders of society in the American colony here and a great lender in Boston, where she lives, was charming in its originality. The skirt was a full godet. The upper part was of narrow-striped black and white satin that formed a rounded point at the front. The rest of the skirt was of plain white satin, covered with a deep flounce of white mousseline de soie. There was a full ruche of mousseline de soie heading the flounce and thee uches trimming it at the bottom.

The corsage was a tight-fitting, seamless affair, fastened at the left under arm seam. It was cut "V" neck. Two braces of cerise taffeta ribbon that came from the girdle and crossed at the back and front followed the edge of the neck to give a finish. They ended in a bow at the back of the girdle, a bow with loops fifteen inches long and ends just coming a trifle below the loops.

This kind of bow, which is exceedingly graceful, I notice on many of the light summer gowns.

SHADES OF HELIOTROPE.

The different shades of heliotrope, that are so popular this season, are very often combined with delicate shades of green and pink, and more often with delicate blues.

One of the prettiest of these pale blue gowns was built of blue gauze over blue taffeta.

The taffeta skirt was close fitting over the hips and flared a great deal at the bottom. Over this the skirt of blue gauze fell rather scant at the front and sides, and very full at the back. It was trimmed with five frills of the gauze. Three at the bottom, which graduated in breadth as they reached the waist, were trimmed above with two rows of deep heliotrope velvet ribbon. Above that was another frill of gauze and two bands of velvet, and the top ruffle was headed by a single band of velvet ribbon.

The corsage, which was of blue taffeta, was covered with blue gauze, draped from under arm seam to under arm seam. It opened at the left side and was finished with a cascade of gauze and loops of the velvet ribbon. The corsage was cut straight across from under the arms and was supported by straps of the heliotrope velvet ribbon, mounted by butterfly bows. On the left arm there was another strap of the velvet tied just below the shoulder.

The printed gauzes of this season are exquisitely delicate in color.

OF PRINTED GAUZE.

One of the prettiest ball gowns I saw during my visit to the shops was made of printed gauze. The ground was pale blue with a design of thistle and leaves in their natural colors.

It was made with a sun-plaited skirt over a blue taffeta transparency. It was trimmed with eight bands of lace insertion.

The bodice was of blue taffeta, tight fitting, with the sun-plaited gauze put on in the form of a blouse. It was cut square-necked, with a berthe of sun-plaited pale heliotrope gauze around the neck and braces of heliotrope taffeta ribbon.

There was a broad sash made of sun-plaited heliotrope gauze that was tied loosely around the waist and knotted at the back with ends reaching nearly to the bottom of the gown.

Another gown made after this model was of pale, silvery green chiffon, with a large plaid in pale pink and ciel blue. It was made over a transparency of pink taffeta. The sash and berthe were of blue sun-plaited chiffon, and the braces were of pink and blue ribbons.

It is estimated that the Paris colony will be increased by several hundred just after the London jubilee is over, and it is also estimated that upward of 500 ball gowns will leave Paris for London within the next three weeks.

AN OPEN LETTER

From Miss Sachner, of Columbus, O., to Ailing Women.

To all women who are ill:—It affords me great pleasure to tell you of the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for the boon given to suffering women in that excellent remedy. Before taking the Compound I was thin, sallow, and nervous. I was troubled with leucorrhœa, and my menstrual periods were very irregular. I tried three physicians and gradually grew worse. About a year ago I was advised by a friend to try Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and Vegetable Compound, which I did. After using three bottles of the Vegetable Compound and one package of Sanative Wash, I am now enjoying better health than I ever did, and attribute the same to your wonderful remedies. I cannot find words to express what a Godsend they have been to me.

Whenever I begin to feel nervous and ill, I know I have a never-failing physician at hand. It would afford me pleasure to know that my words had directed some suffering sister to health and strength through those most excellent remedies.—MISS MAY SACHNER, 348½ E. Rich St., Columbus, O.

Wheels and Their Riders.

The road race took place last Saturday as previously announced. The track was in good condition, and though the riders complained of the wind the event was of a fairly successful nature. The records were not so good as last year, but the mix-up of the scratch men which occurred on the start and the unfavorable effect of the wind combined to prevent the lowering of Bob McCleary's last year's record of 26:07. The attendance was not so great as it might have been had the day been warmer, but there were enough people to swarm over the track considerably. In the evening there was a banquet at the St. James at which a program of speeches had been arranged but was omitted because of the lateness of the hour.

That opinions as to the success of the affair were not unanimous is evident from the following account from the Minneapolis Times, which it received by slow freight and published Tuesday:

"Danny Carmichael, of St. Paul, has added another scalp to his belt by winning the Duluth 10-mile road race Saturday afternoon over the London road. There were seven other scratch men in the race. Every one of whom finished ahead of the handicap men. There were at the start-off Carmichael, Dugan, Sudheimer and George Griebler, all of whom at once pulled away from the other scratch men. The race was badly managed and the prizes were worthy those which a town of 500 people would put up. The common herd of cycle enthusiastics picked two local favorites—Murphy and Zweifel—to win one, two, but the talent had long ago fixed their judgment and their money upon the St. Paul boy. He was in winning shape and was never headed.

"The police lines were miserably guarded and it was a very hard matter for anyone to tell who was referee, timer or spectator."

* * *

That the race was badly managed will be news to the Duluth people. As to the statement that "the prizes were worthy a town of 500 inhabitants," that seems to be principally "poppycock." The prizes were as valuable as are usually offered in ordinary road races, and according to the strict rules of the L. A. W. The chief prizes were more valuable than amateurs are permitted to contest for. It is difficult to imagine what the Minneapolis riders know about prizes, anyway. They did not become intimately acquainted with any. "The police lines were miserably guarded, and it was a hard matter to tell who was timekeeper, referee or spectator." Not true. The lines were well kept considering the nature of the race and the total impossibility of keeping a mob off the street unless by the use of clubs, and that is hardly worth while. As to the latter clause, there seems to be no complaint, but that the officers did their work well, and as long as that is true it makes little difference whether they were known or not.

Dick Johnson, a Superior boy, won first place. Some individual entered a protest, but when Johnson appeared to defend himself the protest had been removed.

There is some talk of organizing a new bicycle club at the West End. That suburb has enough riders to make up a good club and there is no reason why all of Greater Duluth should be confined to the Duluth Cycle club. A meeting will be held Monday evening at 1928 West Superior street for the purpose of effecting an organization, and all those interested in wheeling are invited to attend.

The Bulletin, published by the League of American Wheelmen, concedes that there are many serious objections to the methods of the league in controlling race meetings. It calls the present system a racing trust, that the league controls racing "not wisely, but too much," and frankly admits that radical reforms are necessary to prevent the growth of the secession movement begun in Western states. "The serious question," says the Bulletin, "and it is bound to be a still more serious question in time, is not shall the league control racing, but shall its control be accomplished by the use of a bludgeon, rather than by diplomatic, tactful, business-like methods. It is not true, as has been stated, that racing in itself is responsible for all the troubles of the League of American Wheelmen. We do not believe that clean, honest racing has ever been productive of harm to anybody. The real trouble comes and always has come from the fact that the league has tried to control racing, not wisely, but too much.

"Why require a sanction to run a race meet?

"That's an interesting question. Think it over.

"Who does it benefit?"

"Is it an advantage to the average league member?

"Certainly not. Competition in bicycle racing means lower prices for seats in the grand stand, or more and better attractions. 'Down with trusts' is a popular sentiment with all except those who are directly benefitted.

"The League of American Wheelmen is running a racing trust, and it is of interest for us to study the subject a little and see who is benefited by it.

"The most open competition is certainly best for the citizen who pays his money at the gate, and who, by the way, is, after all, the instrumentality which alone makes the race possible.

"How about the racing men? They have speed to sell; what is the commercial fact in buying and selling? Isn't it that the more buyers the better price the seller can realize? Why, certainly. The racing man who has shown himself to be a 'drawing card,' wants the benefit of competition for his services; while the 'unknown' is benefited by having the largest possible number of races in which he may enter, and the more the big ones are scattered the better will be his chances of winning. We cannot believe that any racing man was ever benefited by our sanction system; but, instead, many of them have been suspended for competing in unsanctioned races, and without the means of knowing at the time that they were doing wrong.

"Who, then, is benefited by the sanction? Our organization is supposed to be a broad one, seeking the greatest possible good. In a fairly representative race meet there are, say, 5000 spectators, fifty racing men, one promoter.

"Now, if the sanctions ever benefited anybody, it was the promoter; and yet, even he will tell you nine times out of ten that the sanction is a farce, and on the tenth time you are apt to find that a sanction is wanted to protect an inferior attraction or a poor business manager against legitimate competition, and always at the expense of the public.

"With more or less general grumbling the League of American Wheelmen is acknowledged to be in control of racing. Why? Simply that because of the age of the organization it is supposed to be responsible for its actions and that it must of necessity represent the sum total of racing wisdom? No! a thousand times no! It is respected for the same reason that the bully at school is respected, while any one of the other boys would lick him if he could.

"The League of American Wheelmen controls racing at present because it is more powerful than any other organization. Let us get together at St. Louis next February and see what we can do toward the end that the League of American Wheelmen may deserve the respect that is now shown in too many instances only through fear."

A fat man is popularly supposed to be the embodiment of good nature and imperturbable serenity of mind. A woman learning to ride the bicycle is with equal unanimity supposed to have undisputed right-of-way over any and all surface area of this sublunary sphere whereon it may please her to pursue her wabbling course.

At first sight there may not appear to be any connection between these two statements, says the St. Louis Republic, but a recent happening in Minneapolis presents them to the world in a certain juxtaposition which would seem to demand a readjustment of public opinion either as to the fat man's amicability or the female bicycle tyro's franchise covering the earth. One or the other—it may even be both—is now accorded a consideration to which it is not entitled.

The fat man of Minneapolis, we are told, was standing on a street corner waiting for a car. The charming beginner on the bicycle was zigzagging joyously adown the thoroughfare in his direction. Before the car reached the fat man the bicycle and its feminine rider had engaged his serious attention. As the car passed the group it was seen that the stout Minneapolitan had been borne to the earth by the shock of the engagement, presenting a picture of undignified chaos possible only to a rotund old gentleman in a catch-as-catch-can bout with such antagonists.

A traditional fat man would have risen from the encounter with a jolly laugh, patted the catapultic bicycle maiden on the back and told her to go and run down another fat man. Not so our Minnesota behemoth. His first act upon regaining the perpendicular was to madly clutch the machine that had proved his undoing. Then, with a fury almost incredible as emanating from a fat man, he dashed the bicycle repeatedly to earth until it was utterly demolished. In token whereof he may now have to answer in the courts to a charge of malicious destruction of property.

Fat men and bicycle girls will be equally defendant in the resultant action. The temper of one and the rights of the other are the issue at stake. Where should either find a limit in such a case as is now reported?

"The Sergeant's," in big, bold, black letters, over the door of a little building at 237 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, is the somewhat unusual sign which has, since last Wednesday, attracted attention, says the Washington Star. A peep through the open doors at the interior, which is fitted up with a handsome oak bar, with the usual amount of looking-glass and shelves full of bottles, would strengthen the first impression, but for the fact that almost at any time in the day trim young women in bicycle costumes may be seen, their dainty feet resting on the rod in front of the bar, holding up a glass tun of sparkling liquid, and gazing at their forms in the bevelled mirror. The place is unique in every respect. It is a saloon in reality, and fitted up just as the average saloon is fitted up, but it is a temperance saloon. The proprietor is James H. McChesney, who was formerly a sergeant in the regular army. It is the only saloon in the United States, he says, which is conducted as a saloon and yet at which only temperance drinks are sold. He decided that there was a certain fascination about a saloon which had as much charm for the average young man as the liquor he drank.

In the bar room there is a small side table on which a free lunch is served to the patrons of the house, and in the rear room are small tables at which drinks are served. A space has been left for a pool and billiard table, which will be put in in a few days. Coffee and milk are served to those who prefer them to soda or mineral waters.

No investment pays such high interest as the money paid for a bicycle. The average rider, according to a new devotee, saves 20 cents a day in car fare, say five days a week for fifty weeks in the year, or a saving of $50; and if he owns a high-grade wheel he will have nothing to pay for repairs, thus obtaining a return of 50 per cent upon his original investment. Should he wish to obtain a new mount he can, if he has been careful of his wheel, sell it for half the price, which, with the $50 he has earned in car fares alone, will give him his year's riding for nothing. This is exclusive of doctors' bills or the various little expenses that go out for medicine during the year, railroad fares usually expended for short pleasure trips and like expenditures.

In the matter of footwear it is evident that the average cyclist pays too little attention to his best interests. Last season thousands of riders pushed over encased in the modish pointed-toed shoes which fashion dictated for ordinary street wear. However it may be for walking, nothing worse than the pointed toe could be chosen for bicycling. The requirements of a perfect shoe for cycling are a substantial sole, plenty of room for the toes and lacing carried well down, to insure ease and a fit sufficiently close over the lower instep to counteract the natural tendency of the foot to work forward with the rider's downward thrusts on the pedal.

Here are a few suggestions going the rounds for the benefit of the afflicted: "Don't try to catch the handle bars with your teeth. Don't look around to see if the hind wheel is still following. Don't be surprised if the front wheel shows a disposition to turn into a yard and lie down for a rest. Always fall on your right shoulder and do not let your ear strike the ground till a few seconds later. When you lose a pedal don't get off and go back to look for it. It's there o nthe machine still, and if you feel for it lon genough you'll find it again. Should you find a runaway horse on your trail keep close to the curb until he is passed. Then make a spurt and seize him by the tail and put on the brake. Never kill a pedestrian when it can be avoided, but, when you to dismount and say you're sorry."

Trying to acquire the art of climbing hills is what is troubling a good many novices this season. That there is an art in so doing there is little doubt, but practice and muscle will do a great deal for the learner, much more than a few suggestions. If the following is kept in mind it will aid the rider to catch the knack of hill climbing. Little is gained by trying to rush a hill. It is well to get a good start, but it is better to so lay out the push that there will be a reserve force to send the wheel over the last rise, which is always the hardest. A good ankle motion, clawing the pedals around, past and over the dead center is a decided help. Throw the weight of the body well forward and pull up slightly on the handle bars. If the grade is very sharp try zig-zagging, or weaving, up the hill. Frequently this will give a needed rest on a long hill. Try to keep an even pace. Avoid sudden strains. Last, but not least, sit squarely on the saddle.

A new idea in bicycle bells that will surely give a loud alarm is composed of three bells mounted on the handle bar, with three hammers, all operated by one lever, the lower bells being tuned to sound like a chime.

* * *

To prevent the balls from dropping out of the bearings when the wheel is taken apart a new device has a metal washer which locks into the outside of the cup and projects out far enough to hold the balls in place without interfering with the cones of the shaft.

THE PLAINT OF A NOVICE.

If there is a broken bottle
In the street,
I'm its meat!
I have never missed one yet.
But, with features firmly set,
I proceed,
Shaky-kneed,
Squarely o'er it and away.
Till some car tracks lays me low,
Or I hear somebody say:
"Golly see the scorcher go!"
Then I lose my meager nerve,
And I swing and sway and swerve
Till I keel
With my wheel,
And rip out a spoke or two with my heel!

I don't care how wide the way is
I can hit
Every bit
Of gravel that is there—
Long or jagged, round or square—
While the sticks
And the bricks
Always lie in front of me.
And, however slow my gait,
I can never seem to see
Any of them till too late!
Then I swing and sway and swerve
Till I lose my little nerve,
And I keel
With my wheel,
And cut out a chunk of tire with my heel!

And the wind, it seems to me, is Always dead
Square ahead,
So that I'm compelled to hump
And to sweat and puff and pump
Against the breeze,
Till my knees
Feel as if they'd break in two,
And my tongue gets hard and dry;
Then some insect doesn't do
A thing but get into my eye,
Causing me to lose my nerve,
And to swing and sway and swerve,
Till I keel
With my wheel,
And perhaps take off a hanger with my heel!

Oh, this may for some be pleasant,
I'll admit;
But the grit
You must have to stand the shocks,
And the buffets and the knocks,
And the leering
And the jeering
Of the crowd, it seems to me
Is a heavy price to pay
Just to get so you may be Fully at your ease, some day—
So that you may sway and swerve
Without ever losing nerve,
On your wheel—
So that you may reel and keel,
And not spoil a whole week's earnings with your heel!

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

The new annual midsummer extravaganza, "The Whirl of the Town," produced at the New York Casino last week, seems to be a success. Midnight on Broadway is its theme, or motif, or whatever, and its plot, so to speak, is about a mermaid who is stolen from the Battery aquarium by a fashionable kleptomaniac, wanders up Broadway, pauses at familiar street corners to enjoy the coolness of the night and the gayety of many revellers, escapes from some energetic music hall managers only to be pursued by a detective of many disguises, and finally falls into the clutches of a Napoleon of the music halls. Her ultimate return to the deep, deep sea off Coney island is the fairy-like ending of the adventures. Upon this thread of story the review strings a series of burlesques upon dramatic events and tendencies of the past season, as well as some personal caricatures after the manner of "The Passing Show" and "In Gay New York." Madge Lessing, Dan Daly, David Warfield, Lee Harrison, George Schiller, Catherine Linyard and so forth are in the cast. In addition to his Hebraic conversations, Warfield makes a hit as a burlesque Anna Held. Henry Norman, who was made famous by the "Bogie Man" song, sings a ghastly song of the death dealing Broadway cable cars. Its gruesome melody is enhanced in the chorus by a terrific clangor of alarm gongs. Dan Daly saunters limply, with drooping mustache and weary drawl, relieving his associates in the piece of their portable belongings. At one stage he pursues this profitable calling from an upper stage box, with the aid of a fishing rod, meanwhile uttering blase remarks about the show. From this point also he sings a sentimental song to Catherine Linyard on the stage and then climbs down out of the box and dances a Dandaly dance with her.

A rival of "The Whirl of the Town" at the New York Casino is "A Round of Pleasure" at the Knickerbocker theater. Walter Jones, Jerome Sykes, the Rogers brothers, Marguerite Sylva and Marie Celeste are in the cast. Jones makes up as Boss Platt. Sykes, as Othello, sings "Everybody Knows My Name," a new negro song by Charles Trevathan, author of "The New Bully." Marguerite Sylva, brilliantly beautiful, of the black-eyed, sparkling style of loveliness, wears several gorgeous costumes, with a diamond ornament spelling her name, "Sylva," that makes her corsage fairly blaze, and sings and dances. The piece opens with a rather dull Shakespearean burlesque scene, but everybody is soon transferred to modern New York.

Pretty Emily Bancker is to play Dora in "Christopher, Jr.," next season. This is the part in which Maud Adams made Kansas City her adoring slave.

Anthony Hope's novel, "Phroso," is to be dramatized for Charles Frohman by Edward Rose, who made the stage version of "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Under the Red Robe."

Louis Wesley, Marie Stuart, Willard Simms and Gus Pixley are to be lanched in a new farce comedy called "A Cash Boy."

Du Suchet, author of "My Friend From India," is to write a play for May Irwin.

Ada Gray not only continues to play "East Lynne," but has sailed for England with the intention of presenting the venerable and lugubrious drama at special matinees during the summer. Her husband, Charles F. Tingay, is an Englishman.

Here is a curiously interesting paragraph from the Boston Globe: "Clara Morris was once the leading actress on the American stage. Twenty years ago she could fill a theater through the magic of her name and the emotional power of her acting, but today she can barely suggest the latent fires that once made her famous. She appeared at Keith's theater last evening in a meager sketch called 'Blind Justice,' which she first presented in Philadelphia two weeks ago, and succeeded in carrying through the leading character—mostly in soliloquy and monologue—without any marked disaster. But almost every line of the play and its delivery by Miss Morris was sadly artificial, the effect being deplorable and pitiable in the extreme. Surely nothing but sadness and courtesy prevented the audience from breaking out into one huge guffaw of laughter. Indeed, the smiles at presumably the most pathetic points were frequently more than audible."

At the beginning of next season there will be but two Hoyt & McKee companies on the road, one in "A Black Sheep" and one in Mr. Hoyt's latest comedy, "A Stranger in New York." This latter play will be out for only two months and in November goes to Hoyt's theater, New York, for a run. It bids fair to exceed the wonderful record made by "A Trip to Chinatown." Mr. Hoyt has mapped out for himself a summer of steady work. He intends writing two new comedies during the summer holidays. One of these will probably be put on the road about the first of next year and the other may be given a preliminary hearing in the latter part of next season.

"Three days in jail!" The gray-haired woman who heard that sentence pronounced in a Brooklyn police court had heard similar ones pronounced before, says the New York Journal. As on previous occasions she heard it with a sigh. Tears filled her eyes as the words fell upon her ears. It was Jennie Worrall, once a queen of burlesque and melodrama. Early last Friday morning she was found by Policeman Martin singing. The song was "Afterwards," a tender, reminiscent love lay. "Get out of here and stop that," said Martin, gruffly, but the woman continued to sing in a clear soprano. Down came Martin's club on the pavement, up rose his voice again. "You'll have to shut up," he repeated, "or come with me." The woman continued to sing. Then the policeman seized her arm; she was under arrest once more, but she continued singing. The woman was taken before the sergeant. She was neatly dressed in dark garments, but her hair was dishevelled, her face, once pretty, flushed. Her manner was dignified and she refused to say much about herself, but the police heard her murmur that her name was Jane Wilson. "I was Jennie Worrall," she declared as she was led to a cell. "and my husband is Robert Wilson. He was secretary to Robert G. Ingersoll." Next morning she was sentenced by Justice Brittow, but Mrs. Meurer, the missionary of the Wayside home, went to her rescue and by permission escorted her to her home.

The announcement that May Yohe is obliged to leave the stage temporarily because of an expected happy event in the Yohe family, recalls the same story which gained considerable credence over a year ago. Lady Francis Hope was at the time playing in "Dick Whittington," a piece which was meeting with some success in the English provinces. One Saturday afternoon, before the matinee, Lady Hope was taken ill and the performance had to be postponed. She was not well enough to go on that night, and finally her husband gave out that he and his wife expected a little Hope in the family. The strangest part of the whole thing is the fact that since that Saturday afternoon nothing has been heard of an addition to the Hope family until a day or two ago, when the cables again announced the joyous tidings of an heir to the debts of the Hope estate.

France and Germany have, metaphorically speaking, kissed and made up, says a Berlin letter in the Dramatic Mirror. We had another French company with us, the second this season, and we are promised another the beginning of next. There was a time, you know, when the most brilliant offers from the Prussian capital were scorned by the Parisian artists on account of a misunderstanding some twenty-five years ago regarding a certain bit of land reaching eastward, called Alsace Lorraine.

Jessie Bond, who has been for something like seventeen years the leading soubrette of the Savoy theater, in London, was married the other day to a Lewis Ransome. Miss Bond was the original Hebe in "Pinafore," and subsequently was the first to play all the familiar characters in the Gilbert and Sullivan operas. She came over here with the first organization sent by D'Oyly Carte and appeared in "The Pirates of ePnzance."

The fair Miss Lillian Rusell has given up her handsome house on Seventy-seventh street and taken an apartment on Fifty-fourth street and Broadway, says the New York Mercury. It is to be hoped the charming queen of comic opera has not met with such reverses in fortune that this has become necessary, but it still remains a fact.

After the message severing the relations had been sent to Mr. Mansfield, Mr. Hoyt, of Hoyt and McKee, spoke of the matter characteristically. Said he: "This has been too tame for me. I am now going to Kansas to assume the management of a cyclone."

Next season Ward and Vokes will have a new play, entitled "The Two Governors." It works in the idea of the two Taylor brothers, of Tennessee, who were candidates for governor against each other, and deals with the Dakota divorce laws.

An opera company, headed by Milton Aborn, and including Laura Moore, Sadie Cushman, Stanley Felch, Robert Dunbar and Herbert Holcomb, began an engagement in Chicago this week.

Sir Henry Irving read Tennyson's "Becket" in the restored chapter house of Canterbury cathedral, on May 31, for the benefit of the thirteenth century fund.

Sidney Grundy has prepared for the Haymarket theater one of the comedies of the elder Dumas, and it is said to be "The Youth of Louis XIV."

The performances of the Carlton Opera company, headed by W. T. Carlton and Jeannie Winston, may now be seen for 10, 20 or 30 cents.

Adelina Patti was on her way to London the other day to sing when she got a cinder in her eye and had to relinquish a fee of $3500.

Josph Hatton has made a play out of the ideas embodied in Hogarths series of pictures, "The Idle Apprentice."

Mrs. Inez Sprague, wife of ex-Governor Sprague of Rhode Island, has just made her debut in Paris.

The English Actors' association has unanimously re-elected Henry Irving president.

Mme Nansen, wife of the famous explorer, will make her debut in London as a vocalist.

A dramatization of "Treasure Island" will be given in London.

Charles Coghlan has written a comedy.

"Trilby" was not a success in Berlin.

Berlin approved "The Geisha."

NEW LIFE AND VIGOR.

Fifty-Six Years Old With Vigor of Thirty-Five.

519 Guaranty Loan Building, Minneapolis.

Gentlemen: Will you accept my thanks for the great benefits received from the use of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets? At the time of commencing its use, last July, I could not read with out my glasses, the signs on our business streets; could not retain on my mind a matter of business sufficiently long to get to the street from my office, and could not call the names of my intimate friends, and would frequently get lost in parts of the city where I had been a daily visitor for the past seven years. I attributed my condition to advanced age. Thanks to Kola Nervine Tablets, however, I am satisfied that I am today in as good condition, in every respect, as I was at 35. Anything that will accomplish such wonderful results as this should be heralded to the world. I might add for the benefit of the public, that this testimonial is given without any solicitation on your part whatever. Yours truly. W. S. SWETT, Manager, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company.

plates. At present $3 more goes into the concentrates and $3 into the lake with the tailings.

It was an interesting sight in the mine. The air drills were raising a deafening racket, the miners in their dress and little candles looked like queer underground beings and I would not have missed Capt. Conway's guidance for a good deal.

Shaft No. 5 is on the Bonanza vein 1200 feet nearer the stamp mill. It is down 113 feet. The first level at sixty feet has 124 feet of drifting. The Lucky Joe vein shaft is down sixty-eight feet. The vein is from 12 to 18 inches wide and assays run from $13 to $100 per ton. I found it almost impossible to pick up a piece of quartz from the dump that did not show visible gold. Many pieces were marvels of richness in visible gold. Mr. Foley tells confident that a good average will be maintained by this ore in the mill.

The Foley property comprises 191 acres—locations A. L. 74, A. L. 75 and A. L. 76. They were taken up in the spring of 1894 by Thomas Wiegand, Mr. Foley purchased them in the fall of 1894 and did a little work in the winter of 1895. The property contains about thirty veins. Of these seven have free milling high grade ore and are parallel. A cross cut 246 feet long would tap each one. On the surface they run from twelve inches to three feet in width. There are two fissure veins crossing the general formation with a strike 18 degrees west of north. The remainder possess refractory ore of a splendid quality.

Amidst much criticism, discouragement and disadvantages Mr. Foley has followed his own judgment and ideas and accomplished a great success. He has accomplished but a small part of what he will yet, but now all or nearly all, concede that he has a genuine, paying gold mine and that whatever he undertakes in connection with it he will carry out. Even now he is figuring on a splendid new power plant an increased number of drills, much development work and an increased efficiency and saving in his stamp mill. He also has the finest townsite in all that region and while he is not saying or doing much just now, there seems to be a general impression that when he gets ready to hustle for its advancement he will bring it to the front quickly, effectively and successfully.

JOHN L. MORRISON.

DEAL GENTLY WITH THE STOMACH. If it proves refractory, mild discipline is the thing to set it right. Not all the nauseous draughts and boluses ever invented can do half as much to remedy its disorders as a few wineglassfuls—say, three a day—of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which will afford it speedy relief and eventually banish every dyspeptic and bilious symptom. Sick headache, nervousness, sallowness of the complexion, fur upon the tongue, vertigo and those many indescribable and disagreeable sensations caused by indigestion, are too often perpetuated by injudicious dosing. An immediate abandonment of such random and ill advised experiments should be the first step in the direction of a cure; the next step is to take this standard tonic alterative, which has received the highest medical sanction and won unprecedented popularity.

WHERE FISHING IS GOOD.

Those looking for the best fishing grounds are reminded of Lake Tetonka, at Waterville, and Madison lake, on the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad.

Wall-eyed pike, bass and crappies are found in great abundance at both of these lakes, which have not been fished out to the extent of some of the older and better known localities.

Excellent hotel accommodations, boats, bait, etc., on hand, and all charges are very reasonable.

CABOT

The Day is to Be Celebrated in an Imposing Manner.

Memorial to Be Erected at Bristol, England, in His Honor.

Bristol, England, June 5.—The four hundredth anniversary of Cabot's discovery of North America will be celebrated on June 14 in an imposing manner, through the efforts of American citizens living in London. Back in February a meeting was held in London at which Consul General Patrick A. Collins presided. Then it was decided to celebrate the anniversary. Ambassador Bayard was chosen president of the celebration committee and subscriptions have been secured for the event. This city has been selected for the celebration because John Cabot sailed from Bristol in 1497 in a Bristol ship, fitted out by Bristol money and manned by Bristol sailors. Slowly, but surely, have underground beings and I would not have missed Capt. Conway's guidance for a good deal.

PROPOSED CABOT TOWER AT BRISTOL.

nate tower, which will be placed on the summit of Brandon hill, which has been designated "the finest interurban hill in England." The site is in the heart of the city and the conical hill, twenty-five acres in extent, overlooks the upper reaches of the port from which, in May 1497, the Matthew sailed on her adventurous, successful and epoch-making voyage. The committee has received donations amounting to $10,000 towards the $25,000 which it is proposed to expend on the memorial.

If John Cabot had kept better track of himself history might keep better track of him, but as it is, so little is known of him that it is a risky undertaking to give too much credit to so vague and shadowy a character. Not even his native country is known and his name is variously given as Caboto in Italian, and Cabot in English. His name is first mentioned in the archives of Venice, where he received the rights of a citizen March 28, 1476, after a legal residence of fifteen years. Eighteen years later he bobs up in Bristol with a wife and three sons. The voyage of Columbus five years before having proved the world was round, Cabot got a charter from the king of England and in May, 1497, with his son Sebastian, sailed in the ship Matthew to discover islands, provinces or regions in unknown seas. He came to land 700 leagues out and fancied it was part of the regions of the "great chain." It was in reality the coast of what is now Labrador and here Cabot planted the flags of England and Venice. After sailing up and down the coast and landing many times, he went back to Bristol. The noise of his discoveries reached even the dull ears of Henry VII, who gave him a more comprehensive charter and sent him out again. But John had enough of roaming and let his son Sebastian take his place. Though the latter discovered Newfoundland, he thought he had failed as a navigator, because he had not discovered the mystical passage to Asia. Then Spain and England competed for Sebastian's services and he gained much renown through his discoveries. The date of his death and burial place are unknown.

THE MOTHER'S CORNER.

Conducted by a Kindergartner.

A very interesting meeting of the Mothers' club was held on Tuesday afternoon in the kindergarten rooms of the Jefferson school. Plans were spoken of for the coming year and a little talk on the summer work which is to consist of a little library of helpful books to be circulated among the members. Then followed a summary of many things, such as befitted a last meeting of the season. A plea to the mother to think and do and search more for herself. We hear on every hand what to do for the child's good; how to live for one's children and so on until one is apt to forget that one cannot give all the time without receiving new strength to give out or new ideas and new force to expend. How many of us realize that it is only upon the physical well-being of the home-maker, bringing cheery good temper and sunny happiness, depends the success of the home circle. The careful housewife is so wise and prudent in the expenditure of her financial income, but so lavishly wasteful of her time and her strength when she is doing for her little ones that she cannot stop to see if her mental and moral incomes are equal to the demands that she is making upon them. If one would think more of one's own needs, physical, moral and mental, of one's rest and comfort there would be fewer discouraged, disheartened mothers and the good for the child would come more easily and naturally. The little mother protests 'But I am willing to be put i nthe background. I want my child to be happy, and am willing to lose myself in that, but how—where is the best?' A paper written by Hester M. Poole, which was read at the club was so suggestive and good that I will quote. She says, "As the little brain begins to observe, compare and draw conclusions, it feels that everything is of consequence, as it affects the 'me;' that me demands its rights, it needs to be helpful and self-sustaining; but it must learn not to encroach on the mes, who also have their rights. Just here the child finds its relationships to things, animals, companions, parents and superiors. If love is its only teacher, without reason to help, it will never understand and respect that relationship. It will put itself first and all others in the background." And affection repeats, "I am willing to put myself in the background, I am willing to lose myself in my child's happiness." But reason replies, "Exactly. Put the child first now and always and make of him a selfish, heedless and arrogant creature, becoming, in after life, a mercenary and superficial man, who, trampling on the rights of others, builds himself up on their destruction. Is that your conception of duty to your child? Instead of asking what he wants now, had you not better ask what will be best for him in the long run?" "But, says affection, what would you have me do?" "Foster a love of helpfulness and kindness to others. Your little ones are fond of helping mother; turn that to account. Activity to some useful end, and not alone in play, is the order of nature. Children can easily be taught that nothing makes them so happy as to give happiness to others. One hour of light exercise then two—never to fatigue, but rather to strengthen growing muscles—can only bring good results. Their hearts will soon respond to that love of service without which the intellectual or beautiful, rich or refined, fail in the most essential element of manhood or womanhood."

"But they will have enough to do and to suffer in after life. Let them have a good time while they can."

"Yes," says reason again, "your blind love gives them a good time now at the expense of a grander time hereafter, for themselves and all who know them. Unless you look and work for the permanent happiness, the real good of yourself and your children, you are wofully faithless to your trust. I do not mean that you should make them unhappy this year sa that they may be happy next year. But you will soon learn that they are really happier by being taught that this is a world of human beings who are our brothers and sisters—to whom we must be kind, respectful and helpful. By degrees they must know that

'Self reverence, self knowledge, self control,—

These three alone lead life to sovereign power.'"

Locomotor Ataxia

AN OLD SOLDIER'S HOT FIGHT FOR LIFE AND HEALTH.

While in a Hospital a Physician Hands Him Some Pills, and After a Few Doses He Feels His Health Returning—Asked for the Name of the Pills, the Physician States they were Pink Pills for Pale People.

THE PATIENT A WIDELY-KNOWN MAN.

From the News, Indianapolis, Ind.

Sol. Yewell of 96 Hill Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., who is well known to the dramatic profession when a boy seventeen years old enlisted in Company H, 13th Indiana Volunteer Infantry, the first three years regiment that marched to the front from the Hoosier State. In the fall of 1862 he was honorably discharged, because of disabilities contracted in the service. After a short time spent at home he went to New York and entered college. He was a bright young fellow, a diligent student and a great future seemed opening before him. But he again heard the bugles and the fires of patriotism were again aglow in his bosom. He enlisted as a recruit in Company M of the Second Harris Light Cavalry, Kilpatrick's famous old regiment, and was soon again at the front. There was a great demand for cavalry in Virginia, and the active young trooper found plenty of fighting up and down the Shenandoah Valley and in the various campaigns on the Potomac. In 1864 he attracted the notice of the dashing and handless Custer, and was selected as one of his famous body guard, in which he served until the close of the war.

After the war Mr. Yewell began to be known as a skilled newspaper writer and correspondent, and he was later in demand as a theatrical writer and press agent, a profession in which he achieved signal success. He was a hero in private life as he had been on the field and in the camp, and few of those who know the genial and versatile Sol. Yewell had any idea that he was a great sufferer from diseases and disabilities contracted during the war. Such, however, was the fact. He suffered from rheumatism, hemorrhoids and chronic tonsilitis for years. "As if these were not enough," said Mr. Yewell the other day at the Marion Home, relating his experience to the reporter, "I was doomed to fall a victim to the grip in 1890. This last fell monster accentuated all my previous troubles and added, seemingly half a dozen new ones. It was in November of that year that I was compelled to give up work and come to the Marion Home. Creeping paralysis, or locomotor ataxia developed, and in 1892 I went to the hospital where I remained for several months. My condition became so alarming that the surgeons here, who are my very good friends, were compelled to admit they could do nothing for me. My locomotor ataxia was attended with vertigo and I was liable to fall at any unexpected moment. The surgeons having nothing else in mind recommended that last resort—a change of climate. So in May, 1894, I went to Boston, Mass. I had secured employment at the Columbia Theatre there as press writer, as I was determined to do something. I remained there two seasons.

"My vertigo and paralysis continued to distress me greatly. I consulted a number of eminent physicians in Boston and became a patient at the Harvard College clinic on Bennett Street. The surgeons there appeared to desire to make much of me as a patient and I was willing. One day a doctor there gave me a box of pills. The wrapper and all identifying marks were gone, but the coating of the pills was of a pink color.

"I had scarcely used the box before much to my surprise, I found that the locomotor ataxia was leaving me. On the second box the vertigo entirely disappeared, my paralysis or locomotor ataxia was gone and I began to have my old-time confidence in myself. Yes, all these ailments under which I had suffered were leaving me. I used about four boxes of these pills before I knew what they were. At the close of the dramatic season of 1895 I took a vacation, going up into the White Mountains and into Northern Vermont. I asked my doctor and insisted upon knowing the name of the wonderful pills that he had been giving me. He laughed and said, 'I have been giving you a remedy called Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.'

"I said, 'I think they are the best medicine I ever took, and I can directly trace to them all the benefit that I have received. I should have said that along with my other afflictions I was at times seriously troubled with a valvular affection of the heart, but the pills have proven to be a splendid remedy for that also. I certainly believe they strengthen and correct the action of that organ.'

Mr. Yewell has a clear, fresh complexion, the hue of health, weighs two hundred and twenty pounds, has a first-class appetite, and to use his own words: "I sleep like a top." He is fifty-two years old, and while Williams' Pink Pills have not made a young man of him, they have certainly restored him so that he bids fair to see many years of usefulness.

"I will leave here soon," were his parting words to the reporter, "as I have an offer to go to Boston and take up my old theatrical work."

Mr. Yewell's many friends in the newspaper and theatrical professions will be glad to know that he is again in good health and restored to the pursuit, which he so long adorned.

Mrs. Mary E. Miller, of Mattoon, Illinois, where enquiry has developed that she is a lady well and favorably known in the community in which she resides, sends the following report of her sufferings from inflammatory rheumatism, and subsequent cure by Dr. Williams' treatment, when all other remedies had failed.

MATTOON, ILL., Aug. 29, 1896.

"My name is Mary E. Miller, I am forty-four years of age and a resident of Mattoon, Coles County, Illinois. About two years ago I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism of a severe type, and confined to my bed for three months. Physicians, of whom I had two, could not do me any good, and I was getting worse instead of better. It was then that I determined to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, which I had seen advertised so widely, and to this end obtained a supply. In addition to the rheumatism I was suffering greatly with nervous debility, but after taking less than one box the nervousness began to abate, and presently the rheumatic pains grew less. By the time two boxes had been taken I was able to walk, which I had not done since I was first attacked, my appetite returned, and I soon regained my health, and am now as strong as ever I was. I always keep Pink Pills by me and always shall, for to them I owe my health, under Providence, and I shall sound their praises whenever I can.

(Signed) "MARY E. MILLER."

Witness: CYNTHIA H. REYNOLDS.

Across the Tea Table.

We have all been busy making "atmospheric observations," as a celebrated historian phrases it, and the first weather of June has furnished food for much conversation. The month of roses and sunshine has treated us to a veritable fit of the sulks, and turned a decidedly cold shoulder to us. But why fret over it? It is just as easy to be philosophical about the rains and winds, and much pouting will not mend the weather. Long years ago a little girl wept bitter tears over a postponed outing, the result of a storm, and a philosopher drew her to him and soothed her sorrows, and gave her a lesson then that has ever remained in her memory. He taught her that it was easy enough to be cheerful and gay when the sun was shining, but what the world needed was that brave little spirit which should meet with cheery words "the season's gloom and the day's repining." Fretting over warm weather only makes one warmer, scowling, and repining about the rain makes one unhappy, and shivering over the cold only makes it more perceptible. Everything has its needs and uses, and the gloomy days are just as much needed as the bright ones. The application is not hard to make to everything in life, and the cultivation of a cheerful spirit is the secret of happiness. Busy people do not have time to fret over things; this is why work and a purpose in life is a saving grace. The busy woman at home is glad of gloomy weather now and then; she can complete numbers of small tasks which have been interrupted, and freshen up her household to great advantage, sure that the weather will secure her from visitors; darn and mend the clothes and table linens which have been laid aside for a convenient season; look over her closets, mend her gowns and freshen her "chiffons"—oh, there is always plenty to look to if one would be well-groomed.

* * *

One laughs now and then over that quaint old phrase "freshen up a bit," and it is generally the tidy little spinster who uses it. To freshen up a room means to make it tidy, to put away the things lying about, straighten out the curtains, brush up bits of lint and thread which have gathered, dust and rearrange the furnishings; and to freshen up one's self means to change one's shoes, perhaps rearrange the hair wipe off the face and hands even if one does not change the gown, and the moral of it all is—well, try it for yourself, for "everything's got a moral if only you can find it," as the duchess told Alice in "Wonderland." There is nothing like putting on a fresh pair of stockings and shoes if one has been shopping and is weary; there is nothing like bathing the neck and face in the hottest water the hands can bear if one is nervous and has been on a mental strain. Rearranging the hair will sometimes relieve the tension of strain and a light, fresh, dainty house gown will cause the spirits to rise to the degree of buoyancy sometimes. Dark clothes are frequently depressing to a nervous woman, and everyone should have a light house gown, which is good weather in the house sign. These little things mean so much to the sensible woman, and one can drive away many ills and carking cares by "freshening up a bit."

* * *

Perhaps the moral effect of clean hands is a pure heart, else why are they bracketed together? Certainly the personal effect of clean hands is delightful, for such a conspicuous member of the body should certainly bear the sign manual of care. Who of us does not love to listen now and then to tales of the occult, and palmistry is such an attractive study that many there are who dabble therein. Naturally the first thing the believer in palmistry looks at in a stranger is the hand. Therefore, oh, sister, look to see that you have clean hands, and perhaps the other thing follows in natural sequence. Well-kept hands and finger nails are always attractive; the hand may not be beautiful in shape or form, but it may be kept in such perfect order that it passes for such. We no longer polish the nails, but we push back the skin growing about it, oil and soften it, clip off callous bits, shape with a file the edges and make the nail the filbert shape which beauty craves; then we are obliged, in this harsh climate, to use some emollient to soften the skin and whiten it. Glycerine and rose-water in equal proportions will keep it delightfully soft, but many people find that glycerine darkens, therefore one must find something that suits individual needs. A small bottle of tincture of benzoin should have its place on every toilet table, and a few drops put into the water for bathing the hands will whiten and freshen the skin when an emollient is not needed. As for the face, my dear sister, these fogs and mists which come to us now and then are positive beautifiers; you will always find good complexions in a damp climate.

* * *

The personality of one is not bounded by beauty of face or form. The voice is the most subtle charm a woman can possess. Certainly we judge strangers by this more frequently than by anything else. It is said that American women are rapidly learning how to use their voices, giving full value to the chest notes, and using the throat and head notes only when required for modulation. This is as it should be. The indescribable charm which many women possess, and which all desire, is, more often than we suspect, a quality of the voice, the use of certain vowels and the absence of affectation. "A" is one of the hardest vowels to learn to use properly, and it is more frequently misused than any other, with the exception of "u." One does not demand nowadays the broad "a," unless custom has made it a habit, but most philologists recommend the use of the Italian pronunciation of "a"—softer, fuller and certainly prettier than the broad "a" which we hear from Cockney England. It is almost impossible to acquire this pronunciation unless taught in early youth. The broad "a" will more readily announce affectation than anything else, but who does not prefer even that to the flat, nasal "a" one hears so frequently. It is not hard for the cultured ear to pronounce upon the "a" used in the simple little word "and," but this little word drawled and flattened is more frequently the vocal herald of impure speech than any other. We who live upon the borders of Lake Superior in the city of Duluth certainly should know the proper pronunciation of "u," but how many of us do not say Sooperior and Doolooth? Purity of language and diction is only acquired perfectly in youth and in the home. The very best speakers are the unconscious ones, and if one is obliged to think for even an infinitesimal part of a second for a word, the easy flow of language is interrupted. The habit of careful use of words in pronunciation and arrangement will be far more easily acquired in childhood than at any other time. Therefore, oh, mother of the young, train yourself to speak not only with elegance but with exactness, and eliminate all slang from your speech if you would have your children acquire the sense of euphony and musical selection which culture and good breeding demand in speech. Most of us remember the story of the old woman who said the reading of the dictionary as reading was interesting, but slightly disconnected. It certainly is interesting. It is said that Lord Chatham read the dictionary through twice, scrutinizing each word carefully, so that he might be able to acquire a full and complete knowledge of his own language. Daniel Webster and William Pinckney both delved in its mines and acquired thereby a wonderful command of language. A purity of diction and a large vocabulary may only be acquired by constant consultation of the best authorities on language and pronunciation. It seems strange that the study of "English as she is spoke" is not more universal. The trained ear hears with delight a good selective ability shown in the use of words, and so many of us, either from a slovenly or untrained and careless habit, possess an exceedingly limited number of words to express our thought. eBlieve me, my dear sister, speech is a tell-tale; we proclaim certain things thereby unmistakably.

The accumulation of old magazines and papers is a serious menace to the housekeeper these days of house-leaning. One hates to throw away even a stray magazine, bought just for the sake of one article, perhaps, but they gather so fast, and the continual query is, what to do with them. A writer in a recent journal recommends that they be allowed to accumulate for a time, those that are not being saved with the purpose of binding, and at the end of this time, say twice a year, spring and fall, they be sent to the wilderness of newly settled regions, where no matter how old, they are hailed with joy. The box may be sent by freight very much more cheaply than by express, and the power of education in a really first class magazine is incalculable. The pictures nowadays are enough to feed the mind, not to speak of the amount of information contained in one of the standard magazines. Another plan is to remove the articles that suit one's taste or fancy, and then bind them. They can be removed from the magazine by loosening and removing the wires at the back, then after a number of articles, bearing on the same subject, have been secured, they can be sent to the professional binder, or can be bound at home; placed in pretty covers these magazine "books" are an addition to any library, and a source of unfailing interest, for it often happens that articles bearing on the same subject come out in a number of magazines at, or near, the same time, and it is amusing to see the many different ways of treating the same subject.

Miss Evelyn Nordhoff, the second daughter of Charles Nordhoff, the writer, has made a name and fame for herself by binding books. She had a sale at Easter-time in New York, and one in Washington of books bound in covers made and designed by herself. The covers were of embossed leather, and she shows herself an artist in her chosen avocation. Leather work to be successful must be very skillfully done. She has spent years in study and preparation for her work, has had access to the best examples of the binder's art, modern as well as that of years ago, when book-binding was considered an art, and a book an object to be enclosed in the best cover to be afforded. Two sisters in this family have made fame for themselves in book work, probably because books played always so important a part in their lives. Both father and mother had literary tastes, and the children since birth have had "book-y" influences cast about them. The older sister made a success of designing for illustration. She designed letters for chapter headings, conventional work for the endings of chapters or books, and also for book-plates, in fact anything which added to the beauty of books which would not come under the head of pictures. This is one branch of illustrative work which is not overcrowded, and women seem peculiarly adapted for it.

As to leather for feminine adornment, it takes its place in the belt. The swellest belts to wear with the shirt waist in the morning are of leather, preferably patent leather, and are adorned with a buckle which looks as if it had been filched from a harness. These are the necessities of everyday wear, while the luxuries bear the "guinea's stamp;" those belts which the modern girl looks upon as the touch which marks her individuality are costly to a degree. If she is wise she has paid a visit to her mother's jewel case and has taken from this the "sets" with which her mother charmed the eyes of beholders twenty-five or thirty years ago when she was a slip of a girl and hung long pendant earrings in her ears and placed at her neck a "brooch" adorned with jewels and pendants similar to those of the earrings. The brooch will make the center of the buckle and the earrings sewed net it upon the belt, which is of ribbon to suit individual taste, will make a fine showing and be essentially distinctive. The harness buckle for morning wear must be of gold and not short and broad as it was last year, but long and slender, marking the difference in a year's style.

* * *

June's fit of the sulks has kept many people from enjoying the season's sports, for to go afishing is the desire of the masculine mind at present, and the feminine is imbued with a similar spirit if she has the love of an outdoor life. No food is so wholesome in June as fresh fish, but fresh it must be and above reproach. The members of fishing clubs nowadays, and there is, of course, a club where even two or three are gathered together, are luxuriously housed in ornamental cottages in the woods near trout streams or lakes where lurk the toothsome bass, and fishing becomes a fine art if one may believe the tales told of successes under the influence of civilization and the mingling of the forest effects with the luxuries of modern life thrown in as high lights. Women, as a rule, are not expected to take part in the joys and sorrows of the fishing club, but she can fish as well as shoot, if she has a mind to, and Duluth has felt her heart swell with pride over the success of her famous marksswoman, who has won golden opinions and who looks so womanly sweet and pretty in her shooting costume. There is nothing like a clear head, a straight eye, a sure hand and a firm determination to win success. With these, my dear Modern Woman, you can win success in life if that be your aim. AGATE.

KANSAS CITY'S HERMIT.

Franz Miller, the hermit of Scarritt's bluff, is an original old character, who is living in solitude for the sake of his own peculiar religion. He calls himself a follower of Melchizedek, the "King of Peace," says the Kansas City World.

He was born in Alsace-Lorraine sixty-one years ago. When he was 17 years old he came to the United States and followed the profession of a shoemaker until the war broke out, when he joined the Tenth United States infantry regiment at Newport barracks, Ky. He fought through the war and the terrible scenes on the battlefield led him to thinking. He imagined he had done wrong and that repentance would be the only way to salvation. He started to do that by carrying what he called the "black cross" for fifteen years. During this time he was to have no fixed abode, to accumulate no property, to make no friends and to shun mankind. He wandered back and forth across the country, and then one night the "spirit" appeared to him while he was walking between Armourdale and Rosedale. He saw Satan, in a great red cloak, standing on the bluff. A moment later the shadow of Melchizedek enveloped him, and Miller knew he had been promoted to the "red cross" order. He settled down and ran a shoe shop in Kansas City, near the Junction. Then he lived a hermit's life in Weston, Mo., and three years ago he took up his abode in a cave excavated in the Scarritt bluff. He has lived there since, alone and happy.

Sometimes, he says, he earns as much as 15 cents a day by picking rags, and this sum suffices to buy bread and coffee, his chief articles of sustenance. He says he never begs. The nurses in the Scarritt hospital would provide for him, but he does not accept their hospitality. His aim in life, he says, is to be at peace with the world and atone for his sin in taking part in the war. He never reads the newspapers, because they suggest worldly thoughts to him. If Miller lived in a more civilized way he would be a handsome man. As it is, his long hair and tangled beard, together with an evident dislike for soap and water, make him look the ideal hermit.

CAMPERS

Minnesota Point Already Fairly Well Peopled With Admirers of Nature.

Cold Weather, Northeasters and Rain Have No Terrors For Them.

Talk of an Expedition to Recover the Treasure on Barbadoes Island.

The heroic band that is gathered in tents under the icicles that dangle from the greenwood trees on Minnesota Point, deserve the admiration of those who are snugly housed in Duluth—and, possibly their prayers also. It has been pretty cold and discouraging the past month, this crossing the canal, which has much of the time been leaping and tossing its mane like wild horses at play, the 2-mile or so jaunt in a well ventilated bob-tailed car, and then crawling in under the flap of a water-soaked tent to lie down to slumber after balling the water out of the bed. The birds have not begun their summer engagement yet, but the northeast wind among the boughs sings the weary camper to sleep after he gets used to it. It would delight the heart of a Nansen or anyone else who is looking for trouble courting nature in her savage moods. The campers would bitterly resent being considered fit objects for a relief expedition, but many of their friends up-town who have been awakened in their snug beds in the recent stormy nights have seriously thought of subscribing to a fund to send somebody else to brave the dangers of wind and water to rescue the pleasure-seekers. There are quite a number of dwellers in tents on the Point, a few of them having been on the ground since the first of the month.

"I tell you, it beats all, what a relish one gets for his meals," said an enthusiastic camper to one who was on an inspecting tour of the camps recently. As the enthusiastic camper spoke, he hung a loaf of bread on a nail outside the tent where it was dry, to let it drip. The wind had angled around while he was up town during the day and had got the range of the interior of the tent through a breach, where a flap was loose.

"A little cold, isn't it," remarked the tourist to another camper who was chopping wood in a rubber coat and an oil-skin "sou'wester" hat such as sailors wear.

"A little," was the reply, as the chopper stopped to blow on his fingers," "but, by jinks, I haven't seen a mosquito since I've been here."

This claim in behalf of the Point is undoubtedly true at present. Mosquitoes seem to know, usually, when they are well off. This weather is favorable to campers, also, in that provisions keep well. This was testified too by another enthusiastic camper, who was at the time he made the observation engaged in whacking a beefsteak against a tent pole to counteract the stiffening effects of the frost. This claim will also be conceded by those who expatiate on the pleasure of camping in May, but the weather, for all that, will no doubt be more efficacious to keep people away than to keep provisions.

It will be noticed that the campers have all been described as being enthusiastic. This characteristic forces itself on the attention of all who go among this peculiar people. It is so noticeable as to compel attention at once. This feeling of ardent enthusiasm bubbles out in words on all occasions. It is more than ardent—it is violent so violent as to suggest the shadow of a suspicion that—but it cannot be. However, if it is as a cloak to some feeling unacknowledged, that which it masks cannot be ennui, for camp life on the Point at this season is chock full of incident.

That is a belief that is shared by all who are weathering the gales on the Point, and that is that it is warmer down there than it is "in Duluth." It may interest those who are sheltered behind the walls of steam-heated houses to know that their sufferings from the cold arouse the compassion of the colony across the canal that is enjoying nature, protected from the driving storm by canvas walls and thick bushes.

* * *

It is said that steps have been taken to organize a stock company to search for the treasure supposed to be concealed on the island of Barbadoes. It is expected that a sufficient amount of money can easily be raised. There are two schemes under discussion. One is to send a man to locate it and then make a formal demand on the British government for it. A majority of the projectors feel certain that the British government would cheerfully give it up, but the obstacle in their minds is as to the safe-guards to be thrown around the man to be sent to locate the treasure. Paul Sharvy was mentioned as a good person to go. There was no doubt in the minds of those interested in the project that Mr. Sharvy would go, but the chances of his coming back was the subject of debate at several meetings. Before the question had been settled satisfactorily to the minds of the projectors, Mr. Sharvy withdrew to accept a better thing, the receivership of the Park Point Street Railway company. Mr. Sharvy said that this position was a better thing because it is a sure thing. There is, in treasure-hunting, a wearing tension caused by the possibility of getting something. This nerve destroying element is not present to disturb Mr. Sharvy in his present position, and he is spared the harrowings of uncertainty.

Thomas Walsh was also mentioned, but Mr. Walsh has his life preserver on and is waiting for the wave of prosperity to arrive. He says he would not miss being in Duluth for anything when it comes.

Another scheme broached is to charter a small steamer, arm her with a cannon or two, enlist a crew of plucked men and go gunning for the treasure. In this case, Frank Cutting will be made admiral, on account of his naval experience, he having, as a United States deputy marshal, pursued and levied on a fishing smack under a chattel mortgage on Lake Superior.

DEMON DISEASE.

Triple Grasp on One Household, But All Were Liberated

Rheumatism and Lumbago Banished By the Use of Dodd's Kidney Pills—This Happened in St. Paul and Might Happen to You.

St. Paul, Minn., June 5.—If you want to know what will cure rheumatism—cure it so it will stay cured, there is a family in this city that can tell you and give proof of what they say. In this household three members have been cured of rheumatism and weak back consequent upon derangement of the Kidneys—as all of such ailments are. All three were cured by the use of DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

No doubt there are many other households where the demon of Kidney Disease has entered, and where efforts have been unavailing to exorcise it. If so, let the signed statements of Mr. O'Day, Mrs. O'Day and Mr. Lenahan, of Cedar street, afford sanguine hope that the long-looked-for Kidney specific has been found.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS should be in every family medicine chest. They should be used by all persons who have lame back, rheumatic pains, urinary difficulties, female weakness, or incipient diabetes, and Bright's disease. They cure. And they always cure.

"OWNEY" STILL ALIVE.

"Owney," the dog traveler, is not dead at all. It was reported that he was killed in Cleveland April 6 and long sketches of his eventful life were published, says the Chicago Times-Herald. Capt. White, superintendent of the railway mail service, sent an official inquiry to the division superintendent at Cleveland, asking if the report was true and if the dog's body was in a condition to be stuffed, for exhibition in the postal museum in Washington. His letter came back with this endorsement by George W. Pepper, Jr.:

"Respectfully forwarded to the general superintendent railway mail service, Washington, with the information that the dog mentioned in this clipping was not 'Owney.' A policeman killed an everyday, ordinary cur at the Union station and a reporter did the rest. The last heard of 'Owney' was that he had gone to Cincinnati to meet the new superintendent, from which point he was routed to the exposition at Nashville."

Superintendent White also received a letter from J. H. Melven, a postal clerk living in St. Louis, stating that "Owney" was alive and well. Mr. Melven adds:

"The old fellow has spent the last three weeks with me, having struck me on his return from the special clerks' convention at San Francisco. He had a very severe attack of mange and detained him in order to cure him, which I have done, and was about to start him out again when the false report of his death started. I have concluded to hold him until I am able to get the boys to understand the matter, and as the old fellow has been quite ugly in the way of trying to bite the trainmen and people who hand letters in at the car doors, I have thought that it might be well for him to retire. If you should think he should I will agree to give him a good home and see that his remains are preserved when he dies. I would also hold his collar and the badges on it."

In reply to this letter Superintendent White said that he thought it was time for "Owney" to cease his travels and would be pleased if some one would give him a home for the rest of his days. So, while this famous traveler is not dead, his wanderings up and down the earth in a postal car are probably at an end forever."

THE "STYGIAN PUNCH."

Harper's Bazar: "I am afraid Greece ain't what she used to be in our day, Alexander," said Alcibiades.

"I'm afraid not," said Alexander. "The only pass a modern Greek seems to be able to hold is a railway pass."

Diogenes had been arrested. "And I'll bet you a dollar you'll none of you guess why!" said Napoleon, who bore the news to the club. "Scorching?" suggested Johnson. "You came near it," said Napoleon. "But you'd never guess. For riding without a lamp!"

"Wellington," said Napoleon, meeting his old-time adversary on the street, "I'll run you a mile for a shilling."

"Thanks, old chap," returned the duke, "but I don't care to. I always was behind you when it came to a run."

"Dear old Sir Walter," said Queen Elizabeth fondly, "what an ingenious fellow he is!" "What's he done now?" asked Portia. "Invented a pneumatic ruff that can be used as a bicycle tire in case of emergency."

"How do you do, Cinna?" said Mrs. Malaprop meeting the poet at the Sforza reception. "Is Mrs. S. with you this evening?"

BAYHA & TIBBETTS,
UNDERTAKERS.

She's bound to have Pearline, this lady. The grocer has just sent her one of the many substitutes, instead. You can't see the boy, but he's on his way back to exchange it.

If all women were only as careful and determined, there would be less grumbling, and Pearline sales would be multiplied.

Probably no woman who uses Pearline would take anything else, knowingly. But since Pearline has become a household word, the ignorant and the careless suffer. The ignorant think that "Pearline" means any washing-powder; the careless fail to notice that they're getting an inferior article, instead of Pearline. 543

HEALTH AND DISEASE.

Some Pertinent Suggestions For Preserving the Former.

Concerning habits and health a writer in the London Spectator says: Almost all men have certain "ways" of living, which they have found conducive either to health or work, and a very large section of them suffer greatly from a torrent of criticism for those ways. There are men who never need exercise, or, as Mr. Chamberlain says in his case, do much better without it, and if they escape a minatory lecture once a week they are greatly favored by fortune. There are other men, quite numerous, who benefit by exercise in big draughts, but not in homeopathic doses, who exert themselves furiously once a week or during an annual holiday, but for the rest of their time benefit most by bodily torpor. They are not scolded because, as a rule, they are considered too far gone for that operation to be beneficial, but they are habitually and very openly disbelieved. They are talking nonsense, it is held, on a matter they know nothing about. There are thousands of Englishmen who are never at peace if they are not warm, and are told by all sincere friends that they are killing themselves with "coddling;" and tens of thousands who can neither think nor work unless they are cool, and who are pestered by everyone who knows them about wraps. To condemn such instincts as self-indulgence, unless they conflict with clear duties, is foolish.

DIET IN OLD AGE.

These rules for diet in old age are given by Dr. Mary E. Green in the Congregationalist:

1. Remember that old age is the second childhood, and that all food should be plain and taken at regular intervals.

2. Eat with moderation, masticating all food well.

3. Avoid food which has stimulating properties.

4. Abstain from the use of all liquors and strong tea and coffee.

The following may serve to show what the diet should consist of for the twenty-four hours. Of course this may be varied from day to day, by taking from and adding to it other things of equal nutritive value:

Breakfast: Fruit, some cooked cereal, toast, a cup of hot milk—if tea or coffee are used they should be weak, with plenty of milk.

Dinner: Some light soup—if meat is taken it should be such as mutton, chicken, or prime beef, the white-meated fish—bread and butter, a vegetable salad, with fruit or some light pudding.

Supper: Milk, with bread and butter, or toast, custard, blanc-mange or tapioca pudding cooked with fruit.

In two instances friends of mine who lived to be over 90 years of age reduced their diet the last fifteen years of their lives to milk, bread and butter, and fruit, usually apples, which were always cooked. They retained their powers, both physically and mentally to a remarkable degree.

BAKERS' BREAD LOAVES.

So much has been written within the past few years regarding the communication of diseases through bacilli, microbes found in dust, etc., says the Scientific American, that practical methods are being introduced to counteract their extension or growth. One of the latest ideas is the protection of such an important article of food as bread. In our cities a large proportion of the bread consumed is supplied by bakeries. Bread from such places must, of necessity, be handled several times by different employes, and it sometimes happens that bacilli germs become attached to the bread during the handling, either from contamination from the hands or, perhaps, from the clothes of the person making the delivery. So, to protect the bread from such contingencies, the custom is being introduced in many places among bakeries of wrapping each loaf, as soon as it is baked, in a sheet of waxed paper, sealing the knot of the string holding the paper surrounding the loaf. The bread is not only in this way well guarded from bacilli germs, but is also kept moist and fresh, as the waxed paper prevents evaporation of moisture, while the consumer is certain to receive an article that can be depended upon as healthful and good, without regard to the number of handlings it has undergone.

BETTER THAN BRACES.

Instead of using shoulder braces a gymnasium director proposes the following exercises as a substitute:

1. Make it a rule to keep the back of the neck close to the back of the collar.

2. Roll the shoulders backward and downward.

3. Try to squeeze the shoulder blades together many times a day.

4. Stand erect at short intervals during the day—"head up, chin in, chest out, shoulders back."

5. Walk or stand with the hands clasped behind the head and elbows wide apart.

6. Walk about, or even run upstairs, with from ten to forty pounds on the top of the head.

7. Try to look at the top of your high-cut vest or your necktie.

8. Practice the arm movements of breast stroke swimming while standing or walking.

9. Hold the arms behind the back.

10. Carry a cane or umbrella behind the small of the back or behind the neck.

11. Put the hands on the hips, with elbows back and fingers forward.

12. Walk with thumbs in the armholes of the vest.

13. When walking, swing the arms and shoulders strongly backward.

14. Stand now and then during the day with all the posterior parts of the body, so far as possible, touching a vertical wall.

15. Look upward as you walk on the sunny side of the street.

BANISHED FEAR.

George Kennan's Method For Overcoming His Timidity.

Atlantic Monthly: "When I was 17 or 18 years of age," said Mr. Kennan, "I went as a telegraph operator to Cincinnati. I had become so morbid and miserable by that time that I said to myself one day, 'I'm going to put an end to this state of affairs here and now. If I'm afraid of anything I'll conquer my fear of it or die. If I'm a coward I might as well be dead because I can never feel any self-respect or have any happiness in life, and I'd rather get killed trying to do something that I'm afraid to do than to live in this way.' I was at that time working at night, and had to go home from the office between midnight and 4 o'clock in the morning. It was during the civil war, and Cincinnati was a more lawless city than it has ever been since. Street robberies and murders were of daily occurrence, and all of the 'night men' in our office carried weapons as a matter of course. I bought a revolver and commenced a course of experiments upon myself. When I finished my night work at the office, instead of going directly home through well-lighted and patrolled streets, I directed my steps to the slums and explored the worst haunts of vice and crime in the city. If there was a dark, narrow, cutthroat alley down by the river that I felt afraid to go through at that hour of the night I clenched my teeth, cocked my revolver and went through it—sometimes twice in succession. If I read in the morning papers that a man had been robbed or murdered on a certain street I went to that street the next night. I explored the dark river banks, hung around low drinking dives and the resorts of thieves and other criminals, and made it an invariable rule to do at all hazards the thing that I thought I might be afraid to do. Of course I had all sorts of experiences and adventures. One night I saw a man attacked by a highwayman and knocked down with a slungshot, just across the street. I ran to his assistance, frightened away the robbers and picked him up from the gutter in a state of unconsciousness. Another night, after 2 o'clock, I saw a man's throat cut down by the river—and a ghastly sight it was, but although somewhat shaken I did not become faint or sick. Every time I went through a street that I believed to be dangerous, or had any startling experience, I felt an accession of self-respect.

"In less than three months I had satisfied myself that while I did not feel fear I was not so much daunted by any undertaking but I could do it if I willed to do it, and then I began to feel better.

"Soon after this time I went on my first expedition to Siberia, and there, in almost daily struggles with difficulties, dangers and sufferings of all sorts, I finally lost the fear of being afraid which had poisoned the happiness of my boyhood."

THE DIFFERENCE.

A poor man steals a pair of shoes, the "copper" takes him in;
The good folks look with horror at such a flagrant sin;
And after all the lawyers and the judge have had their say,
The jury finds, without dissent, it's thieving plain as day.

That's right, of course, but next we see the man of business "fail" (?)
His brother owns the property, for there's the bill of sale;
The creditors can "whistle"—you say it is a steal?
Why, no, you guy! You're off your base; it's just a "business deal."

And then we see the gay cashier clean out the bank and skip;
He often goes to Canada—it's such a pleasant trip—
You say you call that man a thief? It may seem rather queer;
But the papers have it written up "Absconding Bank Cashier!"

And when the man of millions puts up a giant game
To rob the nation's treasury, he's on the road to fame;
You say he should be handled for this job he's engineering?
Nay, nay, my poor, deluded friend—that's "modern financiering."

CALHOUN

McKinley's Special Commissioner to Cuba Has Returned to Yankeedom.

Errand Does Not Appear to Have Been a Brilliant Success.

Rather Significant Utterance Made By Mr. Fishback, the Secretary.

New York, June 7.—William J. Calhoun, who was sent to Cuba as a special commissioner to investigate the circumstances of the death in prison of Dr. Ruiz, an American citizen, reached this city on his return today. He was accompanied by George W. Fishback his secretary, and Charles M. Pepper, a Washington newspaper correspondent, who went to Cuba with the commissioner. Ramono Williams, formerly United States consul general to Cuba, came on the same steamer. Mr. Calhoun said that the commission held three sittings between May 20 and June 1, at Havana, Regulus and Guanabacoa.

The papers examined in the case were chiefly military records. The final report will be made to Washington by Gen. Lee. Mr. Calhoun declined to give his opinion on the case.

"At the sessions of the commission," Mr. Calhoun said in response to a reporter's questioning, "we examined several witnesses, but when you ask me it they were plentiful I can only say that they did not run after us, and we had to use no force to keep them away. They were composed of Spaniards and Cubans. The Spanish witnesses, and, in fact, all of those who testified, were so surrounded with safeguards that it was impossible to get at the naked truth. One person whom we would have liked to hear could not be found. This was Fondesvella, who commanded the Spanish in the Guanabacoa territory. He disappeared and it was impossible to find him. Capt. Gen. Weyler did not put in an appearance at the investigation. We inspected the jail at Guanabacoa, and when we were there it was suspiciously clean.

"We learned that Dr. Ruiz was arrested on Feb. 4, charged with being some connection in an assault which took place on a railroad train between Guanabacoa and Havana. He was placed in solitary confinement, or, as it is known there, he was in communicado. Thirteen days later he was taken out of his cell on account of his mental and physical condition. It was then found that he was suffering from a severe wound on the head and he died two hours after he had been released from the cell in which the secret of his injury is buried. The question of the deceased doctor's American citizenship was never denied. The autopsy showed that he died from congestion of the the brain. His remains are interred at Guanabacoa.

"We had no positive or direct proof of any assault whatever and the conclusion arrived at must be based on the detailed evidence in the report of Consul General Lee, which is now on its way to Washington. I will make a report, and I prefer not to say anything as to my idea of the affair until the report is made public by the proper authorities at Washington. I shall go to Washington tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock."

Mr. Calhoun said he had been treated courteously while in Cuba by all those with whom he had come in contact. His visit was a very pleasant one, but owing to the bad weather which prevailed during his stay he was unable to visit the interior.

George W. Fishback, who is Mr. Calhoun's secretary, was reticent when spoken to in reference to his trip, but he made one significant statement: "We did not go within the insurgent lines, but all the insurgents, however, are not within the lines."

Mr. Williams said he had been traveling through Mexico and had a very enjoyable trip. When informed that his name had been mentioned for the Spanish mission he expressed surprise and said he had not received the offer.

EXPECTED IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 7.—Mr. Calhoun, the special counsel for the United States in the Ruiz case, is expected here tomorrow. In view of the act that the president leaves Washington the day following, for Nashville, it is possible Mr. Calhoun will be invited to accompany the president on the special train, a part of the way at least, in order to afford him an opportunity to make a verbal report upon the results of his visit to Cuba.

There is no expectation at the state department that any immediate results will follow Mr. Calhoun's return, for the preparation of his report (if it is deemed best to put his observations on paper subject to a congressional call) probably will consume some time.

TOBACCO TRUST TRIALS.

New York, June 7.—The trial of the indictments found against the officers and directors of the American Tobacco company, for conspiracy to restrain trade, was to have begun in the court of general sessions today. Owing, however, to routine business coming before the court an adjournment of the case until tomorrow was taken. The defendants are James B. Duke, president; William H. Butler, vice president; Josiah Browne, secretary; Charles G. Emery, treasurer, and William A. Marburg, Lewis Ginter, George Arents, George W. Gail, Benjamin M. Duke and George W. Walls, directors. Counsel for the defense are Joseph H. Choate, W. W. Fuller, ex-Surrogate Daniel G. Rollins, Loudin and Ralph Oakley.

BRIDGE BILL AMENDED.

A Short Session of the Lower National House.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Morris today called up and secured the passage of the Duluth bridge bill to amend the original act so as to relieve the company of unnecessary dredging and extend the time within which the bridge can be completed to Aug. 1. The passage of this measure was prevented at the last session by the opposition of Senator Vilas. It has now passed both houses.

Washington, June 7.—The house today passed the senate bills to amend the act to authorize the construction of a steel bridge across the St. Louis river and to authorize the construction of a bridge across Pearl river, Mississippi. By a vote of 91 to 79 it then adjourned until Thursday, the Democrats opposing an adjournment in the interest of the Cuban and bankruptcy questions.

A SECOND DIVIDEND.

Ten Per Cent More For Marine Bank Creditors.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)— Comptroller Eckels today declared a second division of 10 per cent in favor of the creditors of the Marine National bank of Duluth, making in all 20 per cent on claims proved, amounting to $178,531.

QUIET AT URBANA.

State Will Protect Its Obedient Militiamen.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 7.—The Times-Star special from Urbana, Ohio, says: Adjt. Gen. Axline spent Sunday in Urbana, and while here called on Mrs. Leonard and assured her that Capt. Leonard would be protected. There is no feeling against the members of Company D, the people generally believing that they only obeyed orders, but Capt. Leonard has been severely censured for giving the orders to fire on the mob, and it was well for him that he was out of town while the indignation against him was at its height. Leonard has always been an efficient and popular officer until this unfortunate affair occurred. The declaration of Gen. Axline that he would be protected is approved by the majority of the best people, who desire that things shall return to their normal condition as quickly as possible and further bloodshed be averted. Sheriff McLain still comes in for considerable unfriendly criticism and is not gaining in popularity during his absence.

Harry Bell, the young man who was shot through the right temple and instantly killed the night of the riot, will be buried this afternoon. The employes of White, Valentine & Co.'s big broom factory, where young Bell was employed, will turn out and march in a body to the cemetery. Lieut. Campbell, who worked at Harry Bell's side in the broom factory, is in a wretched state of mind over the unfortunate business, and says he would give half his life if the crowd had not been fired on.

SOLDIERS DID THEIR DUTY.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 7.—Governor Bushnell, in a letter to the Commercial Tribune, says: "The members of the National Guard at Urbana did their duty and are entitled to the support of the state. Lamentable as the results were, their efforts were to maintain the majesty of the law, and they should be upheld by all the people."

Adjt. Gen. Axline says: "A careful examination at Urbana fails to show that the National Guard's conduct was anything but that of courageous and obedient soldiers, and when the public is in full possession of all the facts and complications that surrounded that service, the unwarranted criticisms that have gone out to the world will be speedily corrected."

MURDERER ON TRIAL.

Charged With Killing His Mother and Sister.

Liberty, Mo., June 7.—William S. Foley, charged with the murder last November of his aged mother and his sister, was placed on trial here this morning. The court room was crowded, and the trial, because of the prominence of the Foleys and the atrocity of the crime, promises to produce a long list of sensations. Over 100 witnesses will be called.

Foley is 30 years old, and prior to his arrest bore an enviable reputation. If convicted, it will be on circumstantial evidence, which, however, is very strongly against him. Evidence tends to show he killed the victims as they lay asleep, and that his motive was to secure a quick division of the Foley farm. The family is one of the most prominent in Clay county.

THE HAWAIIAN TREATY.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Senators Davis and Nelson are as wide apart on the Hawaiian sugar reciprocity treaty as they are on patronage matters. Nelson has introduced an amendment to abrogate it and Davis one for the retention of the treaty. There is a large lobby here representing both sides. It is charged that the abrogation of the treaty is in favor of the sugar trust, but this is denied by Nelson and other senators opposing the treaty.

OHIO SENATORIAL TIMBER.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 7.—The Times-Star publishes an interview with Congressman Paul J. Sorg, in which he officially announces his candidacy for United States senator in the event that the Democrats secure a majority of the members of the legislature to be elected next November. While other names have been mentioned the only other announced candidate is John R. McLean, proprietor of the Cincinnati Enquirer, who is now in the city conducting his canvass.

TARIFF HAS A REST.

Washington, June 7.—The tariff schedule will not be taken up in the senate today. The Republican senators will hold a caucus tomorrow at 10 o'clock.

Postoffice Elevator Falls In New York and Injures a Number.

Chicago Elevator Follows Suit and Four Are Severely Hurt.

Rail Perforates a Passenger Train and Injures Four Human Beings.

New York, June 7.—The elevator on the Park Row side of the postoffice which is used for carrying freight and employes, fell from the fifth floor to the basement today. The accident was caused by the breaking of the elevator rope. The injured, according to the police reports are:

George W. Daily, postoffice clerk, internal injuries.

John Murphy, laborer, broken ankle and other injuries.

Joseph Luffer, broken back.

Thomas McGovern, Brooklyn, broken back.

Frank Birdsall, railway postal clerk, broken leg.

INJURED ALL.

Elevator Weights Crush the Four Car Occupants.

Chicago, June 7.—An elevator in the building at 95 Dearborn street fell from the second floor to the basement with three passengers and the elevator man today, injuring all of them. They are:

F. Deneen.

Albert Dougherty.

—— McGee.

A. E. Van Purnish, elevator man.

The fall of the elevator itself was attended by no serious consequences, but the iron weights which balance the car, were released from their place and crashed down upon the roof of the elevator, crushing it in and injuring the occupants.

PIERCED THE CAR.

How Four Train Passengers Were Hurt at Chicago.

Chicago, June 7.—Three men and one woman were more or less seriously hurt today, when a rail being loaded on a flat car was struck by an express train on the Illinois Central road. The rail stove through the front of one of the passenger coaches and struck a woman passenger who was occupying a seat. The others injured were laborers. Those who were injured are: Mrs. C. L. Olmsted, Thomas Murphy, foreman section gang; Louis Guzzea; Italian laborer, name not known. Mrs. Olmsted is also name not known. Mrs. Olmsted is also of Chicago. All are expected to recover.

CHICAGO'S ELECTION.

A Local Affair Which is Very Quiet.

Chicago, June 7.—Fourteen judges of the circuit court, one judge of the superior court and one justice of the state supreme court are being voted for in Chicago today. In addition the Torrens land title law, which was declared unconstitutional, but which was amended by the last legislature to conform with the court decision is up for adoption or rejection.

The Republican ticket, composed of all the present members of the circuit bench, eight Republicans and six Democrats; the straight Democratic ticket, and the silver and anti-machine are the only full tickets in the field. The united Silver party has five circuit court candidates up for election, while the People's party has only candidates for the supreme and superior court judgeships. Magruder for the supreme court, and Brentano for the superior court, were endorsed by both Republicans and Democrats.

The election is the quietest for years and indications are that not over half the usual number of votes will be polled. Saloons are all open, but only one serious disturbance has occurred. Michael O'Hara, a Twenty-fourth ward saloonkeeper, was arrested for beating John O'Keefe over the head with a club.

BICYCLE RACE ROW.

St. Louis, June 7.—E. A. Kreidler, who was announced as the winner of the third time prize in the Forest Park road race of last Saturday, today filed a protest with Referee Allan claiming that the timers made an error, and that he and not J. C. Conover, of Kansas City, had won the second time prize. J. C. Conover, to whom the second prize was awarded, today made a protest against the awarding of the first prize to Arthur Stockhoff, of St. Louis. Conover claims that he made the best time in the race. Both Kriedler and Conover claim that they rode the race several seconds faster than the timers showed. Mr. Allan will make an investigation.

ALLEN BILL HEARING.

Springfield, Ill., June 7.—Governor Tanner announces that he will tomorrow hear arguments for and against the famous Allen street railway bill. The bill has not yet been signed by the governor.

BRUTAL

Peaceful Country People Held as Prisoners in Military Camps.

Given Passes to Visit the Country and Murdered By Guerrillas.

Chicago, June 7.—The Tribune's special correspondence dated Havana, Cuba, June 2, says: Spain holds the rural population of Cuba as prisoners of war in prison camps.

This is a plain statement of the gathering of the peaceful country people, the non-combatants in concentration settlements. If it seems a harsh judgment, the facts on which it is based must speak for themselves. It is not with any purpose of picturing more misery that these lines are written. I have been asked whether the conditions were as bad as they have been painted. My conclusion is based on what I have seen, not going 100 miles beyond Havana. There is no means of learning the exact number of the reconcentrados. An American consul who has made a careful study says it is more than 250,000. He is well informed regarding the interior of the island and declares that the rural population has always been underestimated.

A Spanish officer told me there were more than 150,000 of "those starving country people." The best opinion places the number between 190,000 and 200,000. It is months since Weyler's order was put in force, but they have not all been brought in. The accounts given of the military movements of the troops tell mostly of the destitution of bahios or palm huts. Where the families are not murdered they are driven in like cattle and herded with the other pacificos.

In the daily lists of presentados, or persons who surrender to the military authorities, those "without arms" are the most numerous. This usually means women and children. An inspection of the settlement of the pacificos shows just how they are held as prisoners of war. At not all the places are they hemmed in by ditches and barb wire fences as at Campo Florido, but they are everywhere under military guard. Those who are left of the men cannot go into the country beyond a certain line. Then it is with an escort of soldiers. Usually these are the guerrillas, and it is an even chance between death by starvation and getting back without being murdered.

I read in the government papers a few days ago that during the month there were forty death from starvation at Remedios. A sugar planter, whose plantation is within two hours of Havana, told me of four pacificos who had risked a permit from the municipal authorities of the village and gone into the country. They were overhauled by the guerrillas, who tore up the pass and murdered them. These are simply instances.

APPEAL FROM CUBA.

New York, June 7.—A special from Havana says: An appeal on behalf of the starving and dying reconcentrados in Matanzas has been made to the people of the United States. Since the United States government has begun measures for the relief of the American citizens in Matanzas the desperate plight of the Cuban reconcentrados there has resulted in a petition, signed by 100 of them, in which they beg, in the name of common humanity, that they may be included in the charity. The petition is headed "An Appeal to the United States." It is now on its way to Washington.

A GREAT CHARITY.

Baroness Hirsch's Munificent Aid to Gotham's Poor.

New York, June 7.—Myers Isaacs, president of the Baron De Hirsch fund, has received a draft for $250,000, the first installment of the $1,000,000 given by the Baroness De Hirsch for the benefit of the poor of this city. Nothing has as yet been definitely decided by the trustees of the Hirsch fund as to the manner in which this additional $1,000,000 will be used. Mr. Isaacs said that the money would be used to improve the condition of the poor of New York in any way which experience should dictate.

The work now being done with the funds given by Baroness De Hirsch will be extended and an effort made to better the condition of the tenement house dwellers. Whether, however, model tenement houses will be erected or the inhabitants of the poor quarters of the city benefited in other ways, Mr. Isaacs could not say. Mr. Isaacs and his coworkers are fully alive to the danger of forcing charity on people, and also to the necessity of extreme care in selecting those worthy of assistance.

Most of the assistance, or most of the direct aid, is distributed through the trade schools, the cases requiring assistance being reported through the instructors of these institutions. The chief object of the money given by the Baroness De Hirsch is to encourage dwellers in the crowded sections of the city to migrate into the country, and the trustees will probably devote a large portion of the money to developing the work they have already begun of enabling those disposed to agriculture to buy and stock their farms.

BURLINGTON ROAD'S ACTIVITY.

Lincoln, Neb., June 7.—Beginning this morning all the repair men in the Burlington railroad machine shops at Havelock will be put on extra time for an indefinite period. The change is made necessary to keep rolling stock in condition due to increased traffic. In the building department all the men have for some time been working on full time.

ARCTIC EXPLORER DEAD.

Some doctors are like owls. They look wise and talk wise but they don't think. In diagnosing disease they don't go back to the starting point. When a man gets sick, nine times out of ten his evident sickness is only a symptom of some hidden and long-neglected disorder. Most frequently the original and exciting trouble is a disordered digestion. If that is corrected nature will in the majority of cases do the rest. It is easy for a man to avoid sickness if he will keep a watchful eye on his digestion and resort to the right remedy the moment he feels himself out of sorts.

All disorders of the digestion are corrected by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It restores lost appetite, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build healthy flesh and firm muscles. It is the great blood-maker, flesh-builder, and nerve tonic. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. It cures wasting diseases and nervous troubles. It wards off disease of every description. Buy "Golden Medical Discovery" of reliable dealers; with tricky ones, something else that pays them better will probably be offered as "just as good." Perhaps it is for them; but it can't be for you.

"My wife has found great help from Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, as, when she takes cold from any cause it generally settles on her lungs," writes E. James, of Box 38, Brooklyn, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio. "The 'Favorite Prescription' we keep on hand all the time. It is a wonderful medicine. My wife has great faith in it. By being careful in the way we live and by using Dr. Pierce's medicines when we don't feel just right, we have had to call in a doctor but once in fifteen years."

A man can't either make money or enjoy life who suffers from headaches, and sleeplessness, and heart-burn. These troubles are caused by constipation. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a sure, safe, speedy and permanent cure for constipation. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. They never gripe. Dishonest druggists sometimes try to substitute inferior articles for the sake of profit.

GRANT'S CONCESSION.

Gulf of California Islands to Be Prospected.

San Francisco, June 7.—The schooners Emma and Louise, sailed for Mexico a few days ago, laden with lumber. Beyond this commonplace trading trip, however, is an exploring expedition of which Jesse D. Grant, of San Diego, son of the late Gen. Grant is the backer. Some months ago Grant obtained a concession from the Mexican government to explore all the islands of the gulf of California, lying north of the 29th degree of latitude, he to have all the guano and minerals discovered, the Mexican government to receive 10 per cent of the proceeds.

The 29th degree divides Tiburon island, which is inhabited by the man-eating tribe of Ceris Indians, and it is proposed to prospect the northern half for minerals. Angel De La Guaradia, the largest island in the gulf, lies entirely within the Grant concession. It is believed the island is rich in minerals, although it has never been thoroughly explored.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Dann Mann and William McKenzie, of Toronto, have been awarded by the Canadian Pacific Railway company the contract for the building of the Crow's Nest Pass railway from Lethbridge, N. W. T., to Rossner, B. C., a distance of 500 miles. It is said that the work will cost from $25,000 to $29,000 per mile.

Mrs. Marie Plevna, who is accused of murdering her husband, at Kenosha, Wis., has made a full confession. She says she procured a large amount of poison and placed it in his coffee. The reason she gives for doing it was that she had a great deal of trouble with him and wanted to get him out of the way.

A cloudburst in the hill country of the province of Isere, in Southeastern France has caused the overflow of the river Merge and the destruction of a number of paper mills and silk factories, as well as houses along the banks. At the towns of Voiron and Moirans, the river rose suddenly twenty feet. One person was drowned and the loss to property is estimated at 10,000,000 francs.

Monsieur Thomson and Monsieur Mirman, members of the chamber of deputies at Paris, fought a duel yesterday growing out of an article written by the latter attacking M. Thomson. M. Mirman was slightly wounded in the forearm.

The steamers Bittern and Ystroom both bound for Amsterdam, collided in the Thames at London. The Ystroom foundered, two of her passengers being drowned. The remainder of her passengers and crew were taken on board the Bittern, which was damaged. The Bittern's second officer and carpenter were drowned.

A fire in the southeastern part of San Francisco yesterday cost three firemen their lives and entailed a property loss of $100,000.

Francis Schlatter, who claimed to perform miraculous cures by divine power was recently found dead in the foothills of Sierra Madre, thirty-five miles southwest of Casa Grande, in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico. He had been fasting and apparently starved to death. While in Denver from Aug. 22 to Nov. 13, 1895, it is said 250,000 people visited Schlatter to receive treatment.

The maps of the Orinoco Essequibo region of South America, compiled for the use of the Venezuelan boundary commission have been published in atlas form by the government. There are seventy-six maps in all, of which fifteen are new and made especially for the commission's use, while the remaining sixty-one are fac simile reproductions.

A BRAZILIAN TROUBLE.

New York, June 7.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says: The Herald's correspondent in Rio Janeiro, Brazil, telegraphs that late reports from Canudos, Bahia, state that 5000 fanatics under Conselheiro were defeated by the Brazilian troops. The fanatics made a stubborn and desperate resistance, but were finally compelled to flee in great disorder by the federal artillery.

MARK TWAIN'S BIRTHPLACE.

Mexico, Mo., June 7.—Florida, which is near this city, has recently lost a very significant relic—the birthplace of "Mark Twain." The old structure is being removed preparatory to building a new house. Numerous calls have been made upon Mrs. Roney, the owner of the house, by admirers of the humorist for sufficient timber to make a cane, or even a shingle or a brick. Tourists who visit Florida in the future will see only the ground where once stood the birthplace of the man who has made millions smile.

Patent Attorney Tries to Kill His Ex-Stenographer By Shooting.

Fails in That and Ends His Own Life By a Bullet.

Washington, June 7.—The throng of government clerks and others hurrying up Pennsylvania avenue near Four and a Half street, about ten minutes of 8 o'clock this morning, were startled by the attempted murder of Miss Dorothy E. Squires and the suicide of Charles Barber, a patent attorney, who has gained much notoriety of late by his eccentric actions. Barber shot Miss Squires, and then turning the revolver upon himself put a pistol ball through his brain, causing almost instantaneous death. Miss Squires is still alive, but the extent of her injuries is not yet known.

Barber had considerable of a patent practice, but had been growing more and more eccentric for several years, and of late many of his friends thought him mentally unbalanced. Miss Squires formerly worked for him as a stenographer, and upon leaving his employ he annoyed her with his attentions, threatening to injure her if she would not permit him to call. Finally the matter became so serious that she had to appeal to the courts for protection, and he was placed under bonds to keep the peace.

He seems not to have desisted, however, for since then the girl has received several threatening letters from him, in the last of which he announced that he would do something which both would regret. Barber also came before the Washington public in another but similar role a few days ago, being brought into police court for an assault case with some sensational features arising out of a struggle for a fine dog he possessed. He came to Washington from Plattsburg, N. Y., and was associated in a few cases with the late Benjamin Butler, of Massachusetts, the one-time presidential candidate.

Miss Squires was shot in the back of the head, but at the emergency hospital, where she was taken, it is said that the wound probably will not result seriously.

BAVARIAN STUART TO WED.

Princess Maria Theresa and Prince Ferdinand of Bourbon.

Paris, June 7.—The Jacobites are in a state of great satisfaction over the wedding tomorrow of the Princess Maria Theresa of Bavaria and Prince Ferdinand Pius de Bourbon. The princess is, after her elder sister, the direct representative of the Stuart line. Prince Ferdinand is a very young man, having been born at Rome July 25, 1869. He bears the title of duke of Calabria. Princess Maria Theresa, second daughter of Prince Louis and granddaughter of the Regent Luitpold, was born in 1872.

Prince Ferdinand of Bourbon is a nephew of the late king of the two Sicilies, the famous "Bomba." His father is the Comte de Caserta, but he bears the title provisionally and without abandoning his claims to the kingdoms of the two Sicilies and Jernsalem, one of which his elder brother enjoyed, while the other has long been only a pious aspiration. There will be several big banquets to celebrate the occasion.

HEAVY SWISS FLOODS.

Berne, June 7.—Heavy floods are reported from various parts of Switzerland, which have caused considerable damage to the crops. The railroad near Brienez is covered with debris, brought there by the river, which also caused the disastrous floods of 1896.

You may never know it happened if you fail to read The Evening Herald.

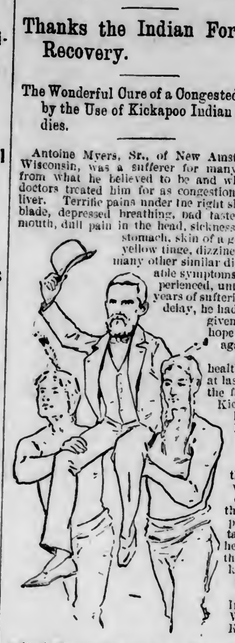
CARRIED BACK.

How a Well Known Citizen of New Amsterdam, Wis., Was Restored to Life.

Thanks the Indian For His Recovery.

The Wonderful Cure of a Congested Liver by the Use of Kickapoo Indian Remedies.

Antoine Myers, Sr., of New Amsterdam, Wisconsin, was a sufferer for many years from what he believed to be and what the doctors treated him for as congestion of the liver. Terrific pains under the right shoulder blade, depressed breathing, bad taste in the mouth, dull pain in the head, sickness of the stomach, skin of a greenish yellow tinge, dizziness, and many other similar disagreeable symptoms he experienced, until after years of suffering and delay, he had about given up all hope of ever again enjoying health. He at last tried the famous Kickapoo Indian Remedies, and upon the advice of one of their representatives, he tried the well known Kickapoo Indian Worm Killer. He writes in the most grateful spirit, as follows:—



"After the first two doses of the Worm Killer, I passed a large number of stomach worms that had obstructed the bile duct, which I found was the original cause of all my sickness. After getting relief this way, I took Kickapoo Indian Sagwa to help up my general health. I am now nearly well and getting stronger every day.

ANTOINE MYERS, SR."

Thousands of such cases exist around us. The patient is ignorant of the cause of his trouble, until at last death overtakes him, which is assigned to almost anything that the doctor may first think of. If more people would resort to Nature's own medicines the Kickapoo Indian Remedies, the health and long life that has made the Indian famous, would be theirs.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa as a blood purifier and for the cure of stomach, liver and kidney troubles, stands to-day without a peer. Kickapoo Indian Remedies may be bought of all druggists. Sufferers, who do not know the cause of their illness should write for our pamphlet, entitled, "The Kickapoo Doctor" which will be mailed free to any address, by the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., New Haven, Conn.

TERRA DEL FUEGO GOLD.

New York, June 7.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says: The American expedition which has been exploring in Terra Del Fuego has been successful in finding gold in quantities which will yield large profits for the working. A syndicate with a large amount of capital has been formed for the exportation of wheat. It is believed that with the material aid furnished them by the government the farmers will be able to raise an extensive crop.

Chicago, June 7.—An insane woman caused a panic among the Sunday school children in the First Swedish Methodist Episcopal church, and in their frantic efforts to get out many of the little boys and girls were thrown to the floor and trampled upon. Several of them were badly bruised, but it is thought none of their injuries will result seriously. The woman, who gave the name of Mrs. Olivia Oskos, was taken home by her friends. It is said her mind becomes unsettled on the subject of religion.

WAS HE MURDERED?

What an Indiana Coroner Is Studying Out.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 7.—The coroner is in grave doubt as to the cause of the death of a man, supposed to be James Butts, a well-to-do farmer living east of town, near "Twelve Points," a sort of road house north of town. A street car ran over a man late last night. The head was on one rail, the feet on the other, and when the wheels struck the body the top of the head was cut off, the brains being scattered along the track. A bottle of whisky was found on the dead man's body. Much mystery envelops the case. The position of the body leads to the belief that the man may have been murdered and his body placed across the track.

A FUTURE KING.

Comes to the United States to Learn Something.

San Francisco, June 7.—Prince Eui Wha, who will probably succeed to the throne of Corea on the death of his father, the reigning king, has arrived here on the steamship Coptic from the Orient. The young man, who is only 20 years of age, has come to America to finish his education, and is accompanied by two Coreans of noble birth, who have been commissioned by the king to see the prince comfortably established in some Eastern institution of learning, where he can take a three years' course in English branches.

Prince Eui Wha is the second son of the king, but is expected to succeed, since it is generally understood that the senior Corean prince is an imbecile.

BIKING ACCIDENT.

Wonderful Escape of Twenty Riders From Death.

New York, June 7.—While turning a sharp corner at the foot of a steep hill twenty riders in a five-mile road race near Passaic, N. J., ran into the mouth of a big stone quarry, and everyone of the racers were injured and every wheel was wrecked. That none of the riders was killed is extraordinary. Sixty cyclists had entered the contest, and by the time the steep hill was reached twenty riders were bunched together. They did not slow up for the hill, but dashed down at full speed. As they reached the sharp corner they attempted to turn into the river road. The momentum was too great, however, and each man lost control of his wheel. As the leaders went down amid their wrecked wheels their followers ran into them and the wildest confusion followed.

A cry of horror went up from the spectators on the hill and several women fainted. Half a hundred men were soon at the scene of the accident and the work of extricating the injured was begun. Several of the riders were dragged out unconscious. George Peddy, of Lyndhurst was found twenty feet away, half dazed, between piles of stones, with a broken leg. He had been among the first to strike the obstruction. The stone which the leaders struck weighed fully ten tons, and on all sides of it lay bleeding and bruised riders. Parts of wheels and racing suits were scattered all around.

The men were soon freed from the wreckage and assisted to a shed near by where the spectators bound up their wounds. Peddy was the only one seriously hurt, but none escaped without some injury and many of them had to be taken home in carriages. The wheelmen blame the officers of the race for not warning them of the dangerous turn.

Do you know what an "emulsion is?" It is when each drop of the oil is broken up into minute drops, so small you can hardly see them with the microscope: so minute that they pass at once through the tissues into the circulation. Scott's Emulsion does not disturb digestion, is not unpleasant to take, and does not fail to do its work because digestion can deal with it at once. You may be able to disguise the taste of raw oil and get it past the palate. You can't cheat your stomach with it. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

THE ARK MEASUREMENTS.

At a recent meeting of the Bristol Channel center of the Institute of Marine Engineers, Mr. Aisbitt gave a comparison of the dimensions of Noah's ark with vessels of the present day, and stated that for sailing ships the dimensions of the ark could hardly be excelled, says Answers. For steamers, if one or two breadths were added to the length for machinery space, they would, he said, arrive at some of the best proportions acknowledged for present trans-Atlantic steamers. As to the ark, there is no doubt that Noah must have been an exceptionally good naval architect, as we are, at the end of the nineteenth century, building vessels of practically the same dimensions, it having been demonstrated that they are better sea boats than, and have superior sailing qualities to, vessels of different proportions. It is a matter of history that in the early part of the seventeenth century a man of the name of Peter Hans, of Rome, built two ships after the model or proportions of the ark. These vessels were, as might be imagined, objects of ridicule and scorn at the time, but experience demonstrated that they carried more cargo than vessels of similar tonnage measurement, but different dimensions, and, in addition, made quicker passages.

HO WIT AFFECTED HIM.

Chicago Times-Herald: "It's all very well to talk about this revival of prosperity, but it don't go," he remarked, confidentially, to the bartender, as he leaned over the counter.

"Don't you read the papers? The mills are opening, everybody is going to work, and we are having prosperous times, although, to tell the truth, the saloon business isn't as it was the night before election."

"That's all very well, but my business is ruined."

"And it was good before election?"

"It was."

"And may I ask what was your business?"

"I was a campaign prophet, and I will have nothing to do for four years."

SILVER

Great Gathering of the Republican Leaders of the White Metal.

Towne, Teller, Pettigrew, Hartman and Other Nationally Known Men.

Meeting at Chicago Will Be Presided Over By Chas. A. Towne.

Chicago, June 7.—The leaders of the Silver Republicans are gathering in the city for a committee meeting Tuesday. Among those already here are ex-Congressman Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho, Senator R. F. Pettigrew of South Dakota, Congressman Charles S. Hartman of Montana, Congressman M. C. Jones of Washington and Governor J. P. Lee of South Dakota. June 8 was set for a meeting of the Silver Republican forces in Chicago on Feb. 22 last. At that time the four senators and six representatives of that faith sent out from Washington to the chairman of each state central committee a call for a meeting at this time. The object is to reorganize the party and to extend it to every section of the United States.

The committee consists of one member from each state, with ex-Congressman Towne as chairman. Very few senators or congressmen are members, but most of them of that faith will be present to lend inspiration to the cause. Besides those mentioned above, Senators Teller, Stewart and Mantle and Congressmen Shafroth, Newlands and Carter are expected today.

The meeting will be called to order tomorrow at 1 o'clock at the Leland hotel and a campaign of action will be instituted. It is said that speakers and literature will be sent out through the country, and particularly the East, and a continual fight made from now until the next presidential election.

In an interview Congressman Hartman said: "We are here not to divide the silver forces, but to unite them. We realize that silver is strongest among the Democrats, and we expect to heartily affiliate with them in anything that is for the advancement of the silver cause. However, many Republicans are not willing to call themselves Democrats or Populists, and so we have to make a party for them. We are not for any individuals or party, but for silver. Our meeting here will be harmonious, and much good to the cause of silver will result from it."

Ex-Senator Dubois said: "The cause of silver is growing stronger every day. The money question is the greatest issue today, and we will keep up the fight for silver regardless of the work being done by the monetary commission now abroad."

Senator Pettigrew said: "Just arrived from Washington, where I have been making a hard fight on the lumber schedule in the Dingley bill. We are making good progress now on the bill, and I think it will pass by June 25. It will then go to the house, and a motion to concur will be defeated. A conference committee will then be named from each branch, and probably by July 8 or 10 a bill will be agreed upon. This will be at once passed by both houses and adjournment will then take place. The Silver Republican senators will not oppose the bill. It is not probable that their votes will be needed, but I believe all of them will vote for it rather than have it defeated. As it is, they probably will not vote at all. The Republican party is purely responsible for the bill, and we are anxious to have it pass in order to demonstrate that it is not the tariff that is affecting the country. The people will then realize the truth."

Mr. Wilkins (sadly)—True; but, after all, I get only half the profits of my great establishment. I just tell you, my old friend, the mistake of my life was in taking a partner.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (central time), June 7.—During the past forty-eight hours extremely low temperatures have been general in the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. A killing frost occurred yesterday morning at Huron, S. D., and light frosts have occurred at Milwaukee, St. Paul, Duluth, Moorhead, Bismarck and Sault Ste. Marie. At Huron the temperature fell to 32 on Sunday morning, which was lower, by 2 degrees, than had ever been registered in June since the establishment of the weather bureau station at that point, and at Duluth the temperature of 32.8 Sunday morning, was one-half degree lower than the previous absolute minimum for the decade, June 8, 1886. Last night's minimum temperatures in this section ranged fom 32 at Bismarck, Moorhead, Sault Ste. Marie and Winnipeg, to 36 at Duluth, 38 at St. Paul and 42 at Milwaukee. This broke the record at Sault, Ste. Marie, 36 being the lowest heretofore for this season of the year.

Showers have occurred during the past twenty-four hours in the lake region, the Mississippi valley and Montana, and the temperature has fallen slightly in Michigan and thence southwestward to the Lower Mississippi valley. Elsewhere fair weather has prevailed, with no decided change in temperature.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 38; maximum yesterday, 51; minimum yesterday, 33; rainfall, .00 inch.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair tonight and Tuesday, with slowly rising temperature; fresh westerly winds.

CHICAGO'S ELECTION.

Today is a holiday in Cook county, Illinois, of which Chicago is nearly "the whole thing." A judicial election is being held, and consequently the grain markets and stock markets are closed and many other branches of business are suspended. Similar elections are being held in other parts of the state. There is to be a judge elected in every circuit of the state and a supreme court judge in a majority of the supreme court districts, but the chief interest centers in Cook county, where there will be chosen fourteen circuit judges, one superior court judge and a supreme court judge. The Republican ticket consists of the present judges, Republicans and Democrats alike. The Democratic ticket includes eight of the present circuit judges and six new candidates. The result is doubtful. Elections in Chicago are very uncertain. Mr. McKinley carried the city by an immense plurality last November, but Carter Harrison (silver Democrat), was elected mayor by a heavy plurality several weeks ago. The fact that a judicial election is not likely to poll a full vote increases the uncertainties of the outcome of the contest.

In addition to electing judges, the people of Cook county will also vote on the adoption of the Torrens system of land transfer. The electors will find upon the official ballot and conspicuously at its head two lines, one reading "For the Torrens Land Title System," the other "Against the Torrens Land Title System," and the elector is expected to say yea or nay by making his mark in the circle opposite the line for or against. It is confidently believed that the vote will be in favor of the law. The people of Cook county adopted the system a year or two ago, but the law was held to be unconstitutional because the recorder of deeds was vested with judicial powers, and the legislature passed a new law with this defect cured, and it is upon the amended law that the people are voting today. In an article arguing in favor of the Torrens system, the Chicago Chronicle says:

"It is hardly necessary to say to a community which finds the burden of real estate ownership great because such property as a rule is not now paying a net income that the ballot on this particular proposition ought to show for the Torrens land title system. It is a system which contemplates, and in operation would probably insure, a reduction of the cost of conveying real property and greatly simplify its conveyance, either in fe or in pledge. One now is compelled to pay a large fee to the abstract-maker for a showing of title to a piece of property, a large fee to a lawyer for passing upon that title and taking all the chances of flaws in titles running from the government of the United States through seventy years of transfers, sub-divisions, tax sales, chancery proceedings, trust deeds and what not, and must wait many weary weeks, perhaps months, before he can perfect a sale or get his papers in such position as will enable him to realize on a loan. Real estate under our present system of transfer is not a quick asset. It is highly important that not only should it be made as quick an asset as in the nature of things it can be made, but also that the cost of transfer shall be greatly reduced."

THE GOVERNOR'S BLUNDER.

Governor Clough has refused to produce before the grand jury of Hennepin county the bank examiner's reports made from time to time on the condition of insolvent banks in Minneapolis. It is claimed that the officers of some of these banks made false reports to the examiner in order to shield their insolvent condition. The governor asserts that they are confidential and for this reason refuses to take them before the grand jury as commanded. The statute respecting the bank examiner says:

"He shall forthwith report the condition of such corporations so ascertained to the governor, together with his recommendations or suggestions respecting the same, and the governor may cause the same to be published, or, in his discretion, take such action as the emergency may seem to demand."

It will thus be seen that the reports cannot be correctly styled confidential, because the governor is empowered to publish them. This is left to his discretion and he has decided to withhold the reports and shield those who would be unfavorably affected by their publication, falling back on the privilege of immunity from process which it is claimed the office of chief executive confers upon the incumbent. The governor may be correct in assuming that the grand jury cannot compel him to produce the examiner's reports, but he has made a serious mistake by refusing to take them before the grand jury. His action causes a strong suspicion that parties connected with certain financial institutions, who are afraid of the grand jury investigations and have endeavored to block the inquiry at every possible point, have induced him to aid them in their attempt to cheat justice.

It is unfortunate for the governor's reputation that he has taken this position, which is entirely indefensible. The Hennepin county judges will hold a consultation to decide whether the governor is exempt from process. If they find that he is not exempt, they will probably issue an order which he will be compelled to obey or be subject to the penalties that would be inflicted upon any other citizen guilty of contempt of court. Instead of blocking the wheels of justice, the chief executive of the state should do all within his power to make them revolve smoothly. Governor Clough has blundered in this matter.

THE STATE AND DEPOSITORS.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune wrote an interesting article on the state's duty to depositors in failed state banks. "While it may be true," he said "that the state is not legally liable for losses which occur through such institutions, yet I think it is so morally That is to say, in my opinion it is the duty of the state to see that the public is furnished with institutions in which it is absolutely safe to put its money. I think it is one of the most disgraceful and discouraging things of today that institutions of this sort are allowed to exist, and the fact that the state does pretend to have an oversight over them, in that way practically certifying that they are safe depositories for the people's money, seems to me implies a moral responsibility. The manner in which this business is done today the state becomes a party to a villainous conspiracy to beat the public by giving a certificate to the effect that these institutions are all right."

In answer to these strictures the reply has been made that were the state to guarantee depositors in state banks against the dishonesty, negligence or poor management of bank officers, then the state must be provided with the funds with which to make good this guarantee in case of a loss. It cannot be expected reasonably that the state will tax the provident citizens who have managed their financial affairs prudently and have not deposited their money in banks that break, in order to make good the losses sustained by those who did not exercise the same precaution. Nor could it be expected that such a tax for such a purpose could be levied on those persons who do not use the banks at all. If there is to be a guarantee or an insurance against loss to bank depositors, then all those who are thus insured must unite in bearing the burden, and not seek to shift part of it to the shoulders of those who cannot partake of any of the benefits. Attention is called further to the fact that while this has been done at different times by different states to protect note holders, in no country and under no system has the state gone so far as to guarantee the depositor in a bank against the possibility of loss.

But, says the Omaha Bee, mere reference to the measures of inspection and publicity that have been adopted for the purpose of minimizing losses and the laws imposing severe penalties for the punishment of bank officials false to their trusts cannot clear the state of all responsibility for the hundreds and thousands of innocent bank depositors who have been defrauded of the savings of a lifetime. The state's duty does not cease with passing laws, but extends to their enforcement. The revelations made by inquiries into the failure of state banks at St. Paul and Minneapolis have shown that the laws were violated almost daily, and yet the state bank examiner took no steps to correct the evils, to punish the violators of the banking laws or to protect the depositors whose savings were placed in the banks under the supposed security of state inspection.

THE IRON TRADE.

Signs of increased activity are noted in the iron ore trade. The ore movement from the Lake Superior mines is greater now than any previous time this season, and it is asserted by those who are in a position to accurately judge that within a month shipments will reach as high figures as in any former season. It is significant that in this movement the Mesaba ore plays a very prominent part. The Marine Review says that within the past few days the heads of several leading houses connected with iron ore and pig iron interests in Cleveland have expressed the opinion that the turning point in business has been reached, and that, although improvement may be slow, it will be of a steady and substantial kind during the balance of the year. This same opinion from other quarters is reflected in the trade journals. In its latest review of market conditions, the Iron Age of New York says:

"A careful study of the situation in the central West will, we believe, develop the fact that in the cruder products bedrock in prices has now been reached. Iron ore is as low as it can be laid down at lower lake ports, wages and freights having touched the point where no further lowering seems possible this season. The only chance is that ore freights from receiving ports to furnaces will be lowered and the freight on coke be cut down. Coke is as cheap at $1.25 at oven as can be expected. With any reasonable allowances for depreciation of plant, taxes, etc., the conversion from pig to billet is at a minimum. Merchants have ceased selling ahead with the idea of covering at lower prices later on, that having become an operation offering very little chance for profit commensurate with the risks of losses involved. The price of billets is now the lowest on record, counting not alone our own country, but considering also the European producing countries. It has reached that point because every vestige of profit has been squeezed out of the business, from the ore in the ground up. Along the whole line every interest would demand and would be entitled to some compensation for capital and skill employed in the business at the first hint of an improvement. These are conditions which favor rapid advances when the turn does come. It makes the majority of sellers conservative as to future engagements at present prices."

Thus it will be seen that the outlook in the iron business is quite promising, a fact which may well give encouragement.

James Creelman of the New York Journal, who has been making a tour of Ohio, says that Mr. Hanna hopes to win this year by having Mr. McKinley repeat President Cleveland's Venezuelan coup, and either by recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban republic or by a direct threat to Spain stir the country up to a patriotic fury in which party lines will disappear and a cry will go up on all sides for an endorsement of the administration at the polls. It is his only hope; without some such coup, the Democrats will sweep Ohio next fall.

The emperor of Austria thinks that when the members of the Austrian diet find their chief activity in hurling inkstands at one another they had better go home and has accordingly ordered them thither. Evidently he was afraid their example would be contagious, a reasonable fear when it is remembered that there are sixteen legislative bodies in Austria, not to speak of Hungary and the outlying districts.

Paul Diederich, a motorman, fell unconscious over the dashboard of his car in Newark last week and was carried to the hospital. The railroad company has a theory that the collapse was due to an electric shock just big enough to hurt nobody but Diederich, but the doctors think that the fact that he had been on duty twenty hours a day for a fortnight had something to do with it.

One of the rapidly booming cities of New England, according to the Courant of that town, is Hartford, Conn. The census of 1890 gave her a population of 53,230, but according to estimates based upon the directory canvass about 85,000 is the figure now claimed for her, an advance of over 60 per cent in seven years. It is not stated just what has produced this phenomenal growth.

"Thrift, Horatia, thrift," is beautifully illustrated by a political boss in Brooklyn, N. Y. Himself and his relatives draw $60,000 a year from the public treasury. To talk reform to him, says an exchange, has much the same effect as flourishing a red rag before a bull. Party loyalty and family considerations forbid a change.

We do not care to enter into a discussion of what the legislature did or did not do, says the Jackson Republic, but we venture the prediction that if John Lind runs for governor at the next election he will be elected.

WHERE THE FUN COMES IN.

Atlanta Constitution: "I make whisky," said the moonshiner, "to make shoes for my little children."

The judge seemed touched for he had children of his own. "I sympathize with you," he said, "and I am going to send you to the Ohio penitentiary, where you can follow the shoe business for two years."

Cleveland Leader: "Mrs. Dunleigh—It is very singular that your mother always happens to call on me when I am out.

Little Flossie Dimpleton—Oh, we can see from our front window whenever you go away.

Indianapolis Journal: "Queer case in court this afternoon," said the court reporter as he turned up his collar and closed the windows.

"What was it?" asked the police reporter.

"A woman was on trial for counterfeiting. She had been marking down $20 bills to $14.98."

Cincinnati Enquirer: "Speaking of Cuban uprisings and insurrections," said Wallace, "I shall never forget one that occurred twenty years ago."

"Were you present?" asked Ferry.

"Very much so. It happened about five minutes after I had lighted one of my father's big black Havana cigars."

Washington Star: "How do you expect us to raise all this money?" asked the Greek statesman.

"By taxation, of course," replied the Turk.

"I wish I could have had a little more time to think it over. I don't know which would be worse, to face a tariff debate or go ahead with the war."

MISTAKES AND FAILURES.

Though every man must make mistakes,
They're few the wit possessing
To profit by an error past
And change it to a blessing.

But, while commending such as these,
It also may be stated;
Who by his failures profiteth
By creditors is hated.

THE MUSIC CURE.

No matter what your trouble, be your heart or liver wrong,
You now may find correction in the measures of a song.

When in your side your vermiform appendix takes a freak
To twist and twirl and twing and throb till you can hardly speak,
No longer call a surgeon in, at knife and table scoff,

If to your toe the living rich of days that are no more
Should bring those gouty feelings that no fellow hankers for,
Strike up the waltz of Strauss, or some swift pirouette, and so
With those infectious dancing strains inoculate your toe.

For ordinary troubles, such as colic pains or chills,
Three times a day take Mozart's Safe and Sure Symphonic Squills;
And if the trouble does not yield to them, you may be sure

And when you travel, blessed thought, no matter where it be,
You need not worry over any kind of misery.
So long as ere you start abroad you do not fail to get,
What doubtless soon they'll give us now, a Cure-all Orguinette.

Or if perchance this does not cure as soon as we desire,
No matter what kind of disease our system may acquire,
We're better off than e'er before beneath this system grand,
Which for the doctors substitutes the measures of the band!

A BACHELOR'S REFLECTIONS.

New York Press: A girl always talks about love in the same tone a woman talks about her first baby.

Every woman has an idea that she can judge a man by looking straight in his eyes.

Sin is a little love-colored Cupid that combs his hair pompadour to hide the horns.

"Misery loves company" was written by an old bachelor whose married friends had enticed him into it.

A man wears love about as long as he does a suit of clothes; a woman wears it as long as she does her hair.

When a woman compliments a man he believes it till he gets angry at her. When a woman gets angry with a man she stays so till he compliments her.

OLD BILL ROOT.

Talk about your story tellers from the days of Adam First,
Talk about the very best 'uns, an' about the very worst,
An' there isn't one among 'em that could ever give the tone
To a fable like a feller that Wyoming calls her own.
Fur pernicious recitals, an' fur dressin' up a tale
Till it seems to flash an' sparkle like the lightnin' in a gale,
O, there never was an ancient nor a present day galoot
That could knock the crown of honor off of Old
Bill
Root.

He kin take the dullest story ever trotted on the stage,
Or an old bewhiskered chestnut noted only fur its age,
An' kin dress it up in language from his effervescin' brain
That'll make it young an' frisky as it ever was again.
His imaginative powers an' his double-actin' tongue
Is the durndest combination that this century has sprung—
Others show the buds an' blossoms, but yoo git the ripened fruit
When you listen to a story told by Old
Bill
Root.

Likes to git a crowd around him that are handy with their ears,
Then he'll start his mouth a-goin' on its easy running gears,
An' he'll set the yarns a-spinnin' from his double-actin' jaw
Till the crowd is cramped with laughter, or all sobered down with awe.
Laramie has got attractions that the people think are great
An' she likes to show the strangers that she's strictly up to date,
But when she wants her bugle fur to give an extra toot
She introduces tenderfeet to Old
Bill
Root.

When the final trump has sounded an' we all have crossed the tide
To the land o' milk an 'honey lyin' on the other side,
If you hear some shrieks o' laughter, roars o' fun, an' sich as that,
Needn't do a bit o' guessin' as to who is at the but,
Go an' hunt the glad disturbance, an' I'll bet a dollar bill
You would find a crowd o' angels jes' a-laughin' fit to kill—
Find 'em clustered 'round a feller in a new celestial suit—
Find 'em listenin' to parables from

CAPITAL GOSSIP.

Washington, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—It would be a tolerably safe guess to make that not a single member of the Minnesota delegation is satisfied with the course Speaker Reed has pursued in regard to general legislation in the house. This would also be true of a number of members from Wisconsin, Iowa and other Northwestern states. Naturally, however, no Republican cares to openly criticise the actions of the speaker just at this time. The standing committees are yet to be appointed, and as the speaker is all powerful in the selection of chairmen and the assignment of members to the committees, it would not be good policy to antagonize him at present.

The principal grievance the Northwestern men have against Mr. Reed is his persistent refusal to permit the bankruptcy bill to be taken up at this session. More than half a dozen delegations from this section of the country have waited upon him and urged the importance of some legislation upon this question at the earliest possible opportunity and have represented that it was absolutely necessary to supplement the new tariff bill with a bankruptcy law in order to bring about a prosperous condition in the West. Their appeals have had no effect whatever on the big boss from Maine. He has simply mapped out a course for the conduct of affairs in the house and will not be diverted from this program. A few days ago a prominent member of the Minnesota delegation had a long conference with Mr. Reed. He represented to him that the failure to pass a bankruptcy bill immediately would be disastrous to the Republican party in Minnesota; that it would result in the election of a Populist to the seat now occupied by Senator Davis; a Populist governor and four or five anti-Republican congressmen. The suggestion merely seemed to amuse Mr. Reed, however, and he peevishly remarked: "What ails your state anyway?" Several of the Minnesota congressmen are of the opinion that he may discover the ailment too late to prescribe the remedy.

* * *

Several members of the Wisconsin delegation have upon three occasions openly opposed arbitrary rulings of Speaker Reed and voted with the Democrats. If the full committees of the house were appointed, it is reasonable to assume that the speaker would encounter very strong opposition from the Northwestern members. At present, however, he knows his power and does not hesitate to use it.

* * *

It is generally admitted that Senator Nelson struck a popular chord when he took up the matter of bankruptcy legislation. His clear management of his own bill in the senate demonstrated the fact that he is well equipped to take care of any matters in that body in which he takes a personal interest. While it is well understood that his bill is not acceptable in the house it is probable that he would work for the adoption in the senate of any reasonable bankruptcy measure which might be passed by the lower branch. No matter how radically Nelson's bill might be amended in the house, the junior Minnesota senator would very likely use his best efforts to secure its adoption by the senate.

* * *

Representative Morris has not in any degree relaxed his efforts to secure an assignment upon the important committee on rivers and harbors. He has the solid backing of the members of the house from Minnesota, but as yet Mr. Reed has in no way indicated what he proposes to do in this matter. There is always strong competition for places upon this committee, and it is not believed that Judge Morris will be able to land this assignment. The appointment of Mr. Towne on this committee was largely due to the reputation which he had attained before coming to congress and not to any particular effort on his own part.

* * *

A number of measures of local interest to the Sixth district introduced in the Fifty-fourth congress by Representative Towne failed of passage. Among them were bills for the establishment of a branch hydrographic office at Duluth, and also a branch assay office. Through Mr. Towne's energetic work an amendment was attached to one of the appropriation bills making provision for a hydrographic office, but the plan fell through because of the failure of President Cleveland to sign this bill. It is not expected that Congressman Morris will have an opportunity to do anything in this matter at the present session, but when congress meets next December he ought to be able to secure the passage of a bill of this character, in view of the precedent established by previous action of congress. While the director of the mint has never made a report upon the bill for an assay office at Duluth, it is known that he will not oppose the proposition, and with the proper effort this great convenience to the miners in the Rainy Lake region might be obtained. So far Congressman Morris has not introduced any of these old bills, probably for the reason that no action can be had upon them at the present session because of the failure of Speaker Reed to appoint committees.

* * *

The Sixth district requires more local legislation than any other district in Minnesota, and the member who represents it is usually kept too busy with these matters to devote much time to national affairs. Congressmen Towney and McCleary represent districts which have little need of local legislation, and outside of looking after the interests of old soldiers who are applying for pensions and making a few appointments they have few local matters that require their attention. Both have important committee assignments that deal with the affairs of the whole nation and can give the necessary time for the consideration of the subjects with which they are called upon to deal. The question of a new currency law will undoubtedly be taken up at the regular session of this congress. Representative McCleary was a member of the banking and currency committee in the Fifty-fourth congress, and has requested Speaker Reed to reappoint him on this committee, which the speaker will doubtless do. Since coming to congress McCleary has given a great deal of attention to the currency question and is now regarded as an expert. In view of the fact, however, that business experience has been confined to the figuring he has done upon his salary as a schoolmaster and a member of congress, it is not likely that he will draft any currnecy bill which will receive the approval of practical business men. The Wilson bill demonstrated very clearly that something else is required in a legislator besides theories. As is well known, Mr. Wilson, like Mr. McCleary, was evolved from a pedagogue to a congressman.

* * *

Mr. Towney has made an efficient member of the ways and means committee, and has protected the agricultural interests of his district as far as it was possible to him to do. He is a radical protectionist, and if he had been given his own way in all the schedules affecting the interests of his district the chances are that he would have placed prohibitive duties upon every product which comes into competition with those produced by his constituents. He is not likely to be censured at home for this, however.

* * *

The district represented by Frank M. Eddy, like the Sixth, also requires considerable local legislation. Mr. Eddy is a man of good intentions, but he moves slowly. In the course of time, however, if his constituents will just keep him in congress long enough he will attend to all their needs. So far in his congressional career, he does not seem to have got around to anything.

AMONG THE PLANTS.

We have had our usual cold spell. There is not much difference between this year and last, only our three days of cold came a little later than last year. Some plants in exposed places have suffered, especially those that were planted too early; many have been killed outright, for a craze seems to come over people with the first few bright days in May and out go the plants from the warm rooms, generally much too warm for bedding and box plants, the first frost kills them or injures them so there is but little vitality left It is queer how things are hurried out into the ground in this far north, in May, while as far south as Rochester, N. Y., and Northern Ohio planting is scarcely begun before the first of June.

We shall have no more killing frosts this spring, so you can go ahead and plant all you want to, for frost does not hurt anything when the moon is light. I do not know why this is so, but long my observation in the market garden taught me. I have, as a large grower of tomatoes, gone to bed worried because frost seemed certain, and next morning the vines might be white, and ice on the pools, but if the moon was bright, no harm resulted, while if the night was dark, good-bye to any more dollars from that crop.

See that the earth is fine in your window boxes. I saw one the other day down town, and the lumps and roots in it let the air down to the roots of the plants so that no root action could take place. Should a fine feeding roo; start the dry air penetrating the soil would surely kill it. The earth should be light and fine for this purpose. Hurry up your planting now, we have the season just at hand when things grow marvellously; they fairly jump up; they know they live in the great Northwest and have a great deal to do in a short time.

Hydrangea—If your plant has done blooming and you do not want it in the house, you can plunge it in the garden, only be careful to give it water. The shoots may be cut back at once, and the plant will make a lovely specimen for next Easter's blooming.

SENATE DRESS PARADE.

Alfred Hnry Lewis in New York Journal: Today, whether as a fashion or ground swell of Decoration day, appeared to be a sort of dress parade. As a rule your senator is not beautiful in his dress. Our Spanish Senator Hale and, mayhap, one or two others, are a bit Brummellish, but the body of the senate caparison themselves like a lot of farm hands. That is, as a rule. Today our old gentlemen made a garish, almost a gaudy, appearance. Hale, as of right, led the van, triumphing over all in a pair of ox-blood shoes. Nothing came up to Hale's ox-blood mocvasins, which dazzled all they did not daunt.

Next for true color worth came Davis with socks of a pure arterial crimson. Davis, very proud of this ardent hosiery, went and sat on a sofa, and made coquettish display of it for gallery good. Ex-Senator Call was there and became quite heart-hurt over Davis' red socks.

Call had once made a record by pulling off his shoes and hanging his pair of sky blue socked feet across his desk. But Call's sky blues were as tame nothings when compared with Davis' scarlet footwear. Allison, Stewart and Kyle, probably by some coy concert, came clothed in New Prince Albert coats. Thurston, Quay and Perkins were also highly clothed.

Your uncle Hanna, while not shabby, well knew he could compete with those named above in raiment, so he took Thurston and Davis with his blood-beet socks over to a far sofa and told them merry tales whereat they laughed aloud, such was their full throat glee. Your uncle Hanna is usually lame and wan, and with the face of one much fear-plagued. Today, however, he broke forth as a Senate Joe Miller. Your uncle Hanna has determined to return to Ohio in person and look after his own defeat next autumn. That may have been the ebullitory cause of today's Hanna hilarity.

CEDAR GETTING SCARCE.

The scarcity of cedar wood for cigar boxes and other purposes has caused dealers to look to foreign countries to supply the demand, says the Philadelphia Record. The steamship Borderer left this port a few days ago for the Colombian coast to load a full cargo of cedar logs for the Philadelphia and Boston markets. The logs are cut high on the mountain sides and are drifted down the streams to the coast. The Borderer will stop at Imagua, a small island in the Bahamas, where she will take on board forty-seven negro laborers, who will stow the cargo in the vessel's hold, it being impossible to secure men for the work at the loading places. There is more or less danger attending the securing of this cargo, because of the absence of lighthouses along the Colombian coast, which renders navigation hazardous close in shore, and because of the prevalence of fever.

ELASTIC STARCH has been before the people of the United States for twenty-three years, and is without doubt the greatest starch invention of the Nineteenth Century. Last year its sales reached the unprecedented number of twenty million packages. It is prepared upon scientific principles by men who have had years of practical experience in fancy laundrying. It makes ironing easy, restores old summer dresses to their natural whiteness, and imparts to linen a beautiful and lasting finish. It is the only starch manufactured that is perfectly harmless, containing neither arsenic, alum or any other substance injurious to linen, and can be used even for a baby powder.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

In the trial of Cadott, at Williamsport, the Indian, Standing Bear, took the stand this morning and corroborated in almost every detail the story of Holy Track as far as he could remember, but he stated that he was too drunk to know all that occurred the day the murders were committed. The case of Black Hawk will be tried next, and it will take much longer to secure a jury than in the present case, for nearly the entire panel was exhausted for Cadott, and the county is not large. Conviction in Cadott's case is considered almost certain, and there seems little doubt of the conviction of the whole five, except possibly Black Hawk.

The tax commission created by the last legislature at Bismarck to compromise taxes due from the Northern Pacific Railroad company on its lands in this state has ordered the company to appear June 10 and an attempt will be made to adjust the matter.

State Superintendent Halland will hold examinations for teachers desiring state certificates at Fargo and Grand Forks commencing June 28. Governor Briggs will return to hte state about July 1.

By a stipulation, the supreme court will board of regents of education to restrain the new board from further proceedings. The stipulation that the case should be heard o nthis date was made by C. N. Herried, a member of the new board, who is anxious to learn is the board of which he is a member has any legal standing. Other members of the new board are angry that he should have consented to have the case heard, their policy being to prolong uncertainty and continue to exercise the functions of regents.

The Interstate company's elevator at Beresford burned last night. It contained 3000 bushels of wheat and 2000 bushels of oats, which was a total loss. A large corn crib and contents was also burned. J. H. Queal & Co.'s lumber yard, immediately adjoining, by sharp work of the fire company, was saved. The fire is supposed to have been caused by some tramps.

FRIGHTENED AWAY.

Washington Star: "I want to get a good suit of clothes made to order," he said to the tailor, "I never had a suit of clothes made to order, and my wife thinks it's time that I put on a little style."

"Certainly," was the reply. "You can look over the stock and make your selection. And here is a picture showing styles. You can make your choice from that, as to how you will have your suit made."

"You're not going, are you?" asked the tailor.

"Yes. I hate to disappoint my wife and to see you lose a customer. But I guess I'm happier as I am. I'm not vain, but if this suit of clothes is going to make me look like a stiff-kneed, wooden-elbowed graven image with glass eyes and false mustache, I'm going to go without it."

THE SCHOOL BOARD.

Cleveland School Contracts Let---List of Graduates.

At the meeting of the board of education Saturday night contracts were let for completing the Cleveland school. Thompson & Dunlap received the contract for setting the blackboards at 22.4 cents per square foot. The Burgess Electric company was allowed to wire the building for $120, and Thompson, Waugh & Co. were given the contract for the heating and ventilating plant for $1677. Director Cobb reported that the lease of the ground on which the old building stood ran only from month to month, and that at the end of the school year there would be no further use for the building. The building committee was instructed to determine what disposition should be made of the building.

A protest by a committee of West Duluthians against a reduction of the force of the Stowe school was referred to the committee on schools and teachers, President Hugo remarking that West Duluth would have no more than her proportionate share of reduction to stand.

President Hugo was appointed a delegate to the national convention of boards of education, which will be held at Milwaukee during the summer. The bill of the West Duluth Light and Water company for water furnished the schools, came up and was turned down. On the strength of an opinion from Walter Ayers the executive committee was authorized to convey its regrets to the company and inform it that the bill would not be paid because the law provides that public buildings shall be furnished water free of charge.

The building committee was authorized to proceed with the construction of a sewer from the Cleveland school to the lake, the permission of the council having been secured. President Hugo suggested that a commission beappointed to investigate the courses of study during the summer, and to suggest revisions if it seemed advisable. The matter was reported back to the president to report in July. It was decided to pay the June salaries June 18 as the schools close on that day.

The committee was instructed to engage Miss Mary Clark and two assistants for the kindergarten system for next year.

Superintendent Denfeld reported the list of graduates from the high school. Out of a class of sixty-seven President Hugo was authorized to issue diplomas to sixty-two, who are as follows:

Imogene Austin, Charles William Benson, Fannie Bowers, Lena Brown, Selby I. Brown, Arthur Herman Burg, Daisy Ida Butchart, Earl W Kelly, Gertrude N. VERY LOW

Difficult to See How This Can Be Done Without a Loss.

Missabe Ore Dock Breaks Its Record For Loading Out Ore.

It is reported that the ore sold by the Biwabik mine, which is now being shipped, brought but $2.25 a ton in Cleveland. At this price it is difficult to see how the company can get out without a loss, as the cost of mining, freight and royalty will equal if not exceed this figure. Men who have watched the iron ore market closely fear that mine operators who have thus far been unable to sell ore are becoming desperate and that a still greater falling off in prices is imminent. So far the schedule adopted by the new ore pool has been rigidly adhered to, but even at those prices there has been little demand for ore. Operators whose leases make it necessary to effect sales have been earnestly soliciting buyers, but the sale of the Biwabik ore is the first one that it is thought has been made at so low a figure that not the slightest chance of a profit remains.

RECORD IS BROKEN.

Missabe Dock Shipped More Ore Than Ever Saturday.

Twelve boats were loaded with iron ore at the docks of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company between the hours of 7 a. m. Saturday and midnight. They took on 40,736 gross tons, which breaks all former records at this or any other ore dock. The largest former shipment made in a single day was about 35,000 tons, which was accomplished last month. The biggest shipment made in one day last year was a little more than 28,000 tons.

Disturbed the Concert.

The concert given at the Pavilion last night was cut short because of the disorderly conduct of a lot of hoodlums, who persisted in interrupting the music. Once the band was forced to stop playing in the middle of a number. The disturbances were continued and finally Professor Meier ordered a short march and abruptly terminated the concert. The Herald some time ago called attention to the necessity of having an officer at the Pavilion.

Car Service Report.

DANGER IN SODA.

Serious Results Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended for a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice almost daily, and one which is fraught with danger; moreover the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach trouble gets worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlandson recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20-grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, peptones and digestive elements essential to good digestion and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create a healthy appetite, increase flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic but intended only for stomach diseases and weaknesses and will be found reliable in any stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

A Sudden Death.

Mrs. Nicholas Bangs, of 1001 East Superior street, died suddenly Saturday evening in the Northwestern Produce company's market at 217 East Superior street. She was making purchases for Sunday at about 10:30 o'clock and while waiting at the counter was attacked with faintness and fell. Before help could arrive she was dead. The body was removed to Durkan's undertaking establishment and subsequently taken to her home. Mrs. Bangs was 47 years of age and leaves a husband and five children. She was a member of St. Paul's Episcopal church and Rev. A. W. Ryan conducted the funeral services at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The body was taken to Oshkosh for burial.

Ministerial Banquet.

The special order of business of the meeting this evening of the Duluth and Superior Ministerial union will be a banquet at the Spalding. After the disposal of this matter there will be held a discussion of the "Relation Between the Labor Unions and the Churches." Labor's side of the question will be presented by two representatives of Duluth labor, one of whom will be E. R. Cobb and a representative from West Superior. Bishop Morrison will respond for the churches.

Want to Play Ball.

The employes of the street railway company want a little exercise, and to that end have issued a challenge for a ball game to either the policemen or firemen, whichever may choose to take it up first. The game is to be played at the West End ball ground at such time, within thirty days, as may be named by the club accepting, and it is provided that the winner must agree to play the club not playing in the first game. The proceeds are to go to the Women's and Children's home.

A Fishing Party.

A fishing party left Saturday evening to fish over Sunday in Canadian streams. The Nautilus carried the fishermen. They returned today. The party included: Frank Ashley, of Iron Junction; D. Murphy, superintendent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern; M. A. and Dan Murphy, and J. A. Dennis, dispatchers on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, of Proctorknott; C. H. Martz, chief engineer of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern; I. L. Lynch, conductor of the same road, and others.

Wrangle Over a Bill.

Saturday's meeting of the board of county commissioners ran into the afternoon over the poorhouse plans and the architects bid of $1200 for drawing them up. There was quite a discussion over the bill, Commissioner Williams opposing its payment and Commissioner Dinham supporting it. As it seemed likely that it would be defeated if it came to a vote it was put over to the next meeting.

To Aid the Hospital.

An entertainment for the benefit of St. Mary's hospital will be given by the pupils of the Sacred Heart institute at the Lyceum next Thursday evening. A program of literary and musical numbers will be given and it will be quite elaborate. The sisters of the institute have been directing the rehearsals, which have been in progress for some time and the entertainment will be a very pleasing one. The pupils will give this entertainment in the hope of realizing a good sum to add to the fund for the erection of the new hospital.

Denmark's Independence.

The anniversary of the independence of Denmark was celebrated Saturday evening by the Danish sisterhood at the Kalamazoo block hall. The hall was filled and a fine program was given. Addresses were made by H. Jensen, C. A. Johnson and F. Sick. Refreshments were served and the festivities concluded with a ball. Fully 225 people were in attendance and the affair was a complete success.

DUNKARDS CONFERENCE.

Four Thousand Delegates Meet in Maryland.

Frederick, Md., June 7.—The annual conference of the American Baptist church of the United States, otherwise known as the "Dunkards" which began here this morning has brought together no less than 4000 men, women and children from points outside of Maryland, and promises to be the most interesting meeting in the history of the organization. Twenty thousand strangers were in the city yesterday and services were held in all the churches.

The missionary and tract board has made up its report, which will be submitted to the general conference tomorrow. The total receipts were $17,400; the disbursements, $20,210. Through the endowment fund the assets of the committee were increased from $175,886 to $224,017. The earning power of the increased assets will much more than cancel the expense.

KILLED HIMSELF.

Chicago Judge of Election Commits Suicide.

Chicago, June 7.—August Miller, an election judge in the Twenty-eighth precinct of the Twenty-sixth ward, shot and killed himself this morning after having been excused for half an hour on account of illness. Miller had been acting peculiarly all morning, and was finally told to go home for a while.

Without a word he walked out, went to his room, got a revolver, and going to the barn about 100 feet from the house, put a bullet through his brain.

Business reverses are thought to have unsettled Miller's mind.

WEDDED AT SARATOGA.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., June 7.—Miss Henrietta Marvin Shoemaker, daughter of Mrs. Francis Marvin Shoemaker, widow of Murray Colgate Shoemaker, formerly of Cincinnati, and Nash Rockwood, a prominent member of the Saratoga bar, were married at the Bethesda Episcopal church here today.

STRIKE IS BROKEN.

Pittsburg, June 7.—The strike at Jones & Laughlin's American iron works is broken and a general resumption is expected in a few days. When the gates were opened this morning the machinists, chain-makers, bolt-makers, and foundry men returned to work. Over 700 men are now working and the impression is general on the South Side that all the old men will go back before the end of the week. There was no demonstration, and all is quiet about the mill.

A KENTUCKY INCIDENT.

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—J. Breckenridge Payne, descendant of the best families of Kentucky, shot Percy Stackhouse, a driver and trainer of trotting horses, inflicting perhaps a fatal wound. Payne is reduced in circumstances and was living at the Stackhouse home. A quarrel over a slight matter brought out a collision, in which Payne used his revolver. He has been held for trial, and it is said, will be defended by his kinsman, W. C. P. Breckenridge.

SHE LIKES THE POLICY.

"Queen regent has expressed unqualified approval of present Cuban policy by reappointing the Canovas ministry unchanged, as that was the only question really involved."

Mrs. Kate Etter

OF MISSOURI,

Is Cured of Heart Disease by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

MRS. KATE ETTER wrote from Neosho, Mo., in March last. "Two years ago I was severely troubled with my stomach and kidneys, and a great affliction so unnerved me that my condition became alarming. The telegraph brought a prominent physician in a consultation which resulted in no benefit. I went to Wyoming for change of climate without benefit, was brought back to Atchison where nurses worked with me night and day to keep me alive to reach my friends here. My heart became so bad that my friends gave up all hope. I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Cure and Nervine alternately and was restored to health. It is now months since and I am perfectly well."

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Severe Pressure Against the Granger Stocks.

New York, June 7.—Some irregularity was noted in the initial dealings on the stock exchange today, but in the main the tendency was towards a lower level. The pressure against the grangers was quite severe. Rock Island yielded a point and Burlington ¾c. The concessions otherwise were moderate and such improvements as occurred were unimportant aside from Chicago gas which rallied ¾c following a break of ½c. The variations in the international stocks were mixed, some being slightly higher and some lower. Realizations gave the chief impetus to the early selling movement, but the ease with which these liberal offerings were absorbed, induced a change of front on the part of the traders, and values partially recovered. Southern preferred scored a decline of 1¾ per cent on the announcement that legal proceedings would be instituted to set aside the consolidation of the system, under a state law forbidding acquisition by a company of a competing line. Some shares resisted the initial reaction, and registered marked gains, rubber preferred rising; and Pullman and spirits preferred 1 point each. Trading was in large volume with heavy blocks of many shares changing hands on narrow variations. The market ruled somewhat feverish at the rally for the grangers, but the general list held fairly steady at the expiration of the first hour with purchases of Sugar stimulated by an advance 1 1-16 cents in some grades of the product. No quotations were received from London, owing to the general observance of the Whitsuntide holiday.

The share speculation was quite erratic and changes were very pronounced in a number of shares after 11 o'clock. The industrials displayed general strength, Sugar rising to 119¼ and Lead, General Electric and Tobacco exchange gaining a point. Chicago Gas was exceptionally heavy and yielded about a point from the lowest point. Grangers were pressed for sale on rumors of damage to crops in the Northwest. This group served to retard improvement in other railroad shares and C. C. C. & St. L. sagged 1 per cent on renewed liquidation. The internationals received some support at the low level. Oregon Navigation, preferred, was conspicuous for a jump of 2½ per cent in expectation of improved traffic report. Business in railroad mortgages showed a falling off in volume, but prices were firmly held. The sales of stocks to noon were 141,500 shares.

AN OLD MAN'S PLIGHT.

New York, June 7.—James J. Keating, an octogenarian was picked up by a policeman last night as a vagrant. Keating appears to be feeble minded. He stated in court today that he came from Cincinnati, where he had lived ever since as a boy he came from Ireland. He had a note for $1700 drawn by the Bank of Ireland on the Bank of England, and a leather bag containing 22 sovereigns. The magistrate told a policeman to take Keating to the Immigrants bank and see if they knew anything about him, and if not to place him in the charge of the commissioners of charities.

MINERS' REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Monongahela, Pa., June 7.—By an explosion of gas in the Black Diamond mines of the Brown Coal company, two miles south of here this morning, several men were injured, but none fatally. The explosion occurred about 7 o'clock and a rescuing party went immediately into the mine and all of the men were taken out before they were overcome by the deadly after-damp. The gas is said to have been ignited by an open lamp and the escape of the 300 miners was remarkable.

LARGE CLAIMS FILED.

Creditors of the West Superior Steel Company Appear.

In response of the Land and River Improvement company against the West Superior Iron and Steel company, to enforce the statutory liability of the stockholders, in which a receiver was appointed some time ago and the creditors ordered to become parties within six months, two big claims were filed this morning. The Land and River Improvement company, which is a heavy creditor as well as a heavy stockholder, neither admits nor denies the liability of the stockholders, but if there is any it wants to participate. It claims $250,026.13 for money advanced which in its capacity of creditor it would like to have set off against its liability as stockholder, if there is any.

The Central Trust company of New York has an unpaid note for $35,000 and bonds amounting to $1,029,116, under a foreclosure of which it has the defendant's claim. Old Directors and Officers of Minnesota Iron Company Re-elected.

No Likelihood of a Reduction in Merchandise Freight Rates.

The special train bearing the stockholders of the Minnesota Iron company arrived in the city from Two Harbors this morning at 9:30 o'clock. The party proceeded at once to the office of President Greatsinger, and at 10:30 the meetings of stockholders and directors of the Iron company and Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company began. The meetings were purely formal and no business of special interest to the public was transacted. The stockholders re-elected the old boards of directors for both companies and the directors re-elected the old officers. It was thought that as Charlemagne Tower had become minister to Austria, and in consequence would reside abroad for the next four years, that a change would be made in his case, but as he had not suggested the name of a successor it was decided to continue him on the board for another year at least.

It had been rumored that some action was to be taken by the board relative to a sweeping reduction in freight rates on general merchandise, but President Greatsinger informed a reporter for The Evening Herald that the question was not brought up. He said that during the recent visit of Frederick T. Gates, president of the Consolidated Iron mines and Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railroad company, the subject of freight rates had been talked over, and that Mr. Gates had suggested that freight and passenger rates might be reduced as a matter of policy, and while he understood that the range roads were realizing no profits from freight aside from iron ore, that the companies might find it to their advantage to make material reductions. Mr. Greatsinger, however, does not share this view with Mr. Gates, for he said today that as company had no intention of making any radical changes, although some slight reductions on certain commodities would undoubtedly go into effect soon.

Mr. Greatsinger said in defense of his position, that the state board of railroad commissioners had compared the rates in force on his road with those on other lines and had found them to be no higher than circumstances warranted and had even gone so far as to say that a passenger rate of 5 cents a mile would be more nearly just than the present rate of 4 cents, because passenger business is now being done at an actual loss.

Heretofore there has been no conflict of opinion between the management of the two roads on the freight rate question, the same schedules having been in force on both lines. The rates were first made by the Duluth & Iron Range, it being first in the field and when the Missabe road was built it simply adopted the Iron Range tariff as nearly as possible. Now, however, the demand for sweeping reductions having become so strong because of the changed conditions and the general falling in values in all lines of business, it is possible that President Gates may insist upon yielding to the demand of the patrons of his road and quote rates that will prove more satisfactory to them, independent of the Duluth & Iron Range. Should this be done the Duluth & Iron Range would be forced to do likewise.

If the Minnesota Iron company has come to any conclusion relative to the purchase of a controlling interest in the Pioneer mine at Ely it is not ready to make it public, and it is not likely that anything will be known about it before July 1, the time that the option on a large block of Pioneer stock expires.

There has probably never been a more uneventful meeting of Minnesota Iron company stockholders than the one held today. No changes in the policy of the company were considered and future operations will depend entirely upon the iron ore market. The situation is now so unsettled that plans which might seem wise today would be impracticable tomorrow. Consequently nothing can be done but await developments.

MERRITT VS. HARRIS CASE.

Forenoon Occupied in Getting a Jury.

The case of Alfred and Leonidas Merritt against A. A. and Henry E. Harris was taken up in district court this morning before Judge Moer, and almost the whole forenoon session was occupied in getting a jury. As originally stated the case included a number of matters which have been eliminated and at present it is narrowed down to the question of the ownership of 954 shares of the Security Land and Exploration company, said to worth something over $30,000. The stock is in the possession of the defendants, they having given a bond of $15,000 to secure the plaintiffs from loss. Both parties claim it. The Merritts claim that when they turned the stock over to the Harrises, who were then their attorneys, they were financially embarrased, and that they turned the stock over to secure the defendants their salary and the expenses they might be put to. The defendants claim that when they were retained to act as attorneys for the Merritts the only litigation in view was the suit against the American steel Barge company. Afterwards, when the Rockefeller suit came up, they believed themselves entitled to additional compensation besides the $10,000 a year agreed upon in the contract. Their claim is that the stock was given to them as compensation.

The jury had to consider only the question of whether the stock was given to the Harrises as collateral or as compensation, that question having been framed as a special issue for the jury. Keyes and Baldwin appeared for the Merritts, with J. L. Washburn as counsel, and S. T. Harrison and L. C. Harris appear for the Harrises. The Merritts, Alfred, Leonidas and A. R., were in court this morning, seated by their attorneys. They will go on the stand later in the trial.

The examinations of the jurors were very close, and the jury was not completed until nearly noon. Only three were excused for cause, and two peremptorily. E. H. Hall said that he had lived in Duluth for 42 years, that he had known the Merritts since they were boys, and that he had a very decided opinion about the case. He was very promptly excused, the bias being admitted by both sides. The jury as completed was as follows: P. E. Pinkman, Thomas J. Owens, Richard Stokes, L. H. Brooks, Richard Johnson, George A. Everest, Andrew G. Anderson, R. Harper, Olaf Gulbranson, A. L. Mcgregor, James L. Porter, Charles Schiller.

Just before noon O. W. Baldwin began his opening to the jury on behalf of the plaintiffs. The reading of the pleadings took until noon.

Changed the Boundary.

The board of public works at its meeting this morning, had under consideration a change in the eastern boundary of the Third street commissioner district, the boundary to be at the Duluth, Missabe & Northern trestle, instead of Forty-second avenue west. This, it is said, is in accordance with the desire of Alderman Richardson, who desires that his end of the Seventh ward shall be in the West Duluth district.

MARINE MATTERS.

Neither Coal nor Ore Cargoes Are Plentiful.

Cleveland, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—Coal cargoes are not plentiful this morning, and the number of loads of ore is barely equal to the vessels offered, but shippers of both coal and iron ores say that the movement will certainly increase to give employment to all vessels without a material advance in rates.

INCREASED BUSINESS.

Chicago, June 7.—(Special to The Herald.)—The volume of business transacted at this port during the past six months has been phenomenally large, the exports of petroleum during that time having reached 27,193,093 gallons in excess of the corresponding period of last year. The corn exports are 10,000,000 bushels and wheat shipments 1,000,000 bushels greater than during the first six months of 1896. Still further increase of business with correspondingly high freights is assured. Shipping men predict an area of prosperity at this port such as has never been known in the past.

SALVAGE CLAIMED.

The Singer tug line has libeled the steamer Cormorant for salvage, the tug Excelsior having rescued her from a perilous situation last Friday. The tug was returning from a trip after tows when she discovered the Cormorant between Beaver Bay and Castle Danger flying signals of distress. According to the libel filed the tug found the steamer lumber laden and in helpless condition, about ten miles out of her course and seven miles from shore toward which she was drifting. The tug brought her to Duluth. She is now here securing repairs to her machinery.

The libel alleges the value of the cargo to be $10,000 and the value of the boat $12,000. The court is asked to determine the amount of salvage which the tug ought to receive. Draper, Davis & Hollister are the proctors for the Singer line.

LET OFF EASILY.

The secretary of the treasury has remitted $1900 of the fine of $2000 imposed by Collector Olund on the tugs Prodigy and Industry. The fine was levied because the boats came from Bay City to Duluth without having the lifeboats required by law. The secretary found that the violation was a deliberate one, but from evidence submitted to him concluded that a fine of $50 on each tug would be sufficient penalty.

SUED THE MOWATT.

Capt. C. S. Barker has libeled the schooner James Mowatt to recover damages amounting to $966, alleged to have been caused by the schooner running into the libellant's dredge in the Portage lake canal.

A KISS FROM GEN. GRANT.

Now that all the papers are full of stories about Gen Grant, the children will feel neglected unless they are treated to one, says the Buffalo News.

One day in 1873 Gen Grant passed through the village of Plymouth, O., and a little rosy-cheeked girl hearing the news decided she would see the noted man.

So taking a bouquet of bright colored geraniums, marigolds, nasturtiums and other old-fashioned but sweet scented flowers, she hurried to the depot.

The train was in and Gen. Grant stood on the rear platform of the rear car, grasping the hands of one after another of his old comrades, who crowded around him, and greeting one and all with smiles and pleasant words.

The little girl was somewhat abashed at the large crowd of men, but soon some of them noticed her with her flowers and helped her to the car steps. When she got within reach of the president she hashfully presented him with her bouquet.

He took it, thanked her and then reached down and kissed her on the lips—a good, hearty smack, too.

Then a happier little maiden never existed than the one who took the bouquet to President Grant.

This shows that Gen. Grant possessed not only the heart of a brave soldier, but a genial and appreciative heart as well, and the little unknown country girl, with her unegagy of simple home-grown flowers, was treated as gallantly by the great soldier as though she had been the daughter of a queen and had presented him with a bouquet of the most costly exotics.

AN ALLIGATOR ENGINEER.

One of the curiosities of the flood in this section developed at the Morgan railroad wharf early yesterday morning, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. There has been trouble there for some days with seepage, and a force of men has been employed closing the crevices and cracks through which the water percolated. There was an unusual quantity at one place Thursday night, and the foreman of the gang, in going over the spot yesterday morning to ascertain the reason, announced the hole had been caused by an alligator, which had burrowed through from under the wharf. His trail could be plainly seen in the mud and the workmen, in speaking of it to Sergt. Cologne, commanding the Algiers station, last night, said that they judged he must have been at least four feet long. They think the water covered all the resting places that he might have had under the wharf, and he decided to bore a hole through the bank and thus mix his time between dry land and water.

The strong wind last night made the water run through the cracks in the wharf in large quantities, and the nearest track was submerged. A gang of men was put to work stopping it with sacks of dirt, and they succeeded in shutting out the water.

AROUSED THE JUDGE.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Judge Randolph, of Kansas, was hearing a divorce case last fall. The witness was the plaintiff, a white-haired man broken in health and in spirit, and wearing a bronze button in his lapel. The examination was severe and the session monotonous.

"You say your wife abused you; tell us just how," thundered the attorney.

The witness looked appealingly at the judge. "Answer the question, sir," was the order from the bench.

"Well, she said I was an old hypocrite to be proud of my war record. She said all the brave men who went to the war were killed, and that only the cowards and deserters lived to come back, and——"

"Stop!" commanded the aroused judge. "This divorce is granted. The court spent four years in that war—and the court came back."

The monotony was broken for that day.

THE RICHEST PRINCE.

Story That Has Survived Five Centuries.

The richest prince is not always he that reigns over the most extensive and popular empire, with the largest and most prosperous cities and the best-filled treasure house, says the Chicago News.

Back in the middle ages there reigned a prince, called Eberhard the Good, who was a grand old man, just, wise and true, and his little principality was the envied corner of Europe, for though he was only a grand duke he ruled so justly and well that his subjects were happy and they loved him as a father.

There was a feast one day at the city of Worms and all the German princes were drinking wine at the banquet table, when a dispute arose as to which of them was the richest and most prosperous.

Prince Ernest of Saxony boasted of broad domains brimming with gold and silver, and his great palace filled with golden treasure.

"I am richer than he," said Elector Frederick of the Rhine. "From my grand castle at Heidelberg I can look over the leagues and leagues of hillsides covered with vineyards and valleys rich with golden grain fields."

King Louis of Bavaria claimed the palm of soveriegnty "because," he said "prosperous cities and rich old cloisters filled with works of art are greater treasures than gold or silver mines, vineyards or ripened grain fields."

Then they all looked at the old lord of Wurttemberg, whose hair and beard were white as the snow on Alpine peaks and whose blue eyes were shining with a smile.

"I have little to boast of," he said, meekly. "There are but few cities in Wurttemberg and no silver mines, no famous vineyards and no great store of treasure and precious stones. But I own one rare jewel—I can wander anywhere in my domain without fear and lay my old head in peaceful slumber in the cot of my humblest subject."

"It is enough," they cried in chorus. "We yield the palm to thee, for there are no richer treasures than a people's love and loyalty."

Duke Eberhard was one of the great heroes of the federal times. His little country of Wurttemberg was one of the most prosperous in Europe and the proudest kings counted him their equal. When he was laid in his grave the Emperor Maximilian of Germany declared:

"Here lies a prince who has left no equal in the German empire in princely virtues."

Nor has time been able to blot out his fair name, and though half a thousand years have passed away, dividing the living from the dead, it is always pleasant and refreshing when we look back upon those olden times to find the name of him they called the richest prince.

THE MAN OF HER CHOICE.

A man best fitted for a husband, according to the Chicago Record, must have several qualifications. For instance he must be—

One who can face the world.

One a wife can look up to.

One who will protect her.

Prayerful and truly virtuous.

Kind and considerate to all women.

Thrifty, broad minded, self-controlled, thoroughly domesticated, fond of animals and flowers.

One who believes his wife the best woman in the world, and would confide in her.

Not afraid of soiling his hands.

One who would find pleasure in being home of evenings, and would not be grumpy and miserable when the baby cried.

Willing to study not only his own benefit, but the interests of his country and the advancement of his race.

Fervent in business, patient and hopeful in adversity.

Satisfied to improve his position step by step.

Quick to forgive.

MRS. SAGE

The Wife of the Multi-Millionaire Fifty Years a Graduate.

She Will Celebrate the Event at Troy on Thursday Next.

Troy, N. Y., June 7.—Mrs. Russell Sage will next Thursday celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of her graduation from the Emma Willard seminary in this city. In honor of the event and on the anniversary day Mrs. Sage will address the graduating class of 1897. Mrs. Sage will bring her old diploma with her and have it read on the occasion, for Mrs. Sage's Latin has grown rusty in this half century lapse of time. The diploma bears the name of Miss Olivia Slocum, Mrs. Sage's maiden name. For many years Mrs. Sage thought this bit of parchment was lost, but it was found not long ago in an old trunk which had lain in a store house in Syracuse. Mrs. Sage values this diploma as one of her greatest treasures.

Mrs. Sage was once a pretty school ma'am at Syracuse, and time, that has changed her brown tresses into silver, has dimmed but little the brightness of her eyes. She knew Russell Sage in youth and was the bosom friend of his first wife. The first Mrs. Sage, according to local tradition, put the idea into the somewhat slow heart of Russell Sage that Margaret Olivia Slocum would make him a good wife.

Mrs. Sage, unlike the wives of many well-known men, has not sunk her own individuality in that of her husband. While she is a devoted wife, she follows the bent of her own inclination in those things which appeal to the intellectual side of her character. Nor does her husband seek to interfere with her. He, too, is devoted to her, and he is wont to say on the rare occasions that he speaks of her at all that she is the best business woman he ever saw. No children have come to bless his marriage, and it may be that this fact has tended to draw the wife and husband even more closely together. At any rate, those who know them point them out as a model couple in every respect. Mrs. Sage is not what might be called a woman of fads. She is, however, a woman who takes an interest in many things outside of her husband and household. Among other things, Mrs. Sage is a strong advocate of woman's suffrage, is a prominent member of the Woman's Suffrage league and a friend of the veteran advocates of this cause, Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Mrs. Sage owns $1,000,000 worth of property on Fifth avenue in her own right.

Mrs. Sage does not move in society, as it is usually called, to any extent, although its doors are open to her. She seems to prefer her literary and philanthropic pursuits. Now and then there are afternoon teas, quiet receptions and literary meetings in the Sage mansion, a handsome house on Fifth avenue above Forty-second street. These are always quiet and select, and not a few members of the 400 are glad to be present on such occasions. Mrs. Sage is usually the life of such parties. Mr. Sage rarely puts in an appearance at such symposiums. They are not in his line, and so he leaves such matters entirely to his wife. About two years ago Mrs. Russell Sage gave the Russell Sage Memorial hall to the school she used to attend at Troy. It is said to have cost close on to $125,000.

The Sages have a country house on Long Island, in which they spend most of the summer months. Mr. Sage keeps some very fine trotters there. Their home life is very quiet. Every night before retiring Mrs. Sage gives the order for the breakfast for the following day, and the first thing she does on arising is to see that the instructions have been faithfully carried out. Mr. and Mrs. Sage sit down to a modest breakfast at 7:30 o'clock. There is no French cookery in the Sage house. The food is simple and palatably served and is of the best kind. At 10 o'clock Mrs. Sage dons a street gown and orders her brougham, an ordinary vehicle, with no crest or coat of arms emblazoned on the door. Then begins the real work of the day.

AN ELEVATOR BURNED.

Pontiac, Ill., June 7.—At Saunemin, last night, a grain elevator containing 30,000 bushels of oats belonging to Bartlett, Frazier & Co., of Chicago, was burned to the ground.

CALLS IT A TRUST.

Kansas City, Mo., June 7.—At the direction of Attorney General McKenna, United States District Attorney John R. Walker today filed suit in the federal court against the traders' live stock exchange, alleging a violation of the Sherman anti-trust law of 1890, and averring that the exchange is interfering with interstate commerce by its existence. The suit is directed against the 150 members of the exchange.

OLD MISSIONARY DEAD.

Pittsburg, June 7.—Word was received in Pittsburg today that Rev. Dr. Metheny, senior missionary of the Reformed Presbyterian church, died at Mensine, Syria, June 4. The deceased was well known throughout the country.

POSTAL CONGRESS.

The Junketing Party Arrived in Chicago Early.

Chicago, June 7.—A special train on the Chicago & Alton consisting of nine Pullman cars, two dining cars and an observation car, arrived here this morning at 7:30 with the delegates to the universal postal congress, their wives and friends, in all about 200 people. The delegates proper to the congress number about ninety. The postoffice officials who accompanied this excursion were First Assistant Postmaster General Heath, Second Assistant Postmaster General Shellenberger, Capt. White, general superintendent of the United States mail service; Capt. Brooks, general superintendent of the foreign United States railway mail service, and five or six other prominent postal officials. The five American representatives to the congress, headed by Gen. Batcheller, who is president of the congress, were all present. There were present also Spencer Walpole, postmaster general of Great Britain; Dr. Neubaur, postmaster general of Austria; Bruno Eritch, director general of postoffices and telegraph of Germany; Saba Pasha, postmaster general of Egypt; Postmaster General Stevenson of Denmark; Postmaster-General Heyerdahl of Norway; Postmaster General Ansault of France; Postmaster General Chabez of Mexico. Nearly every other nation was represented by its highest postal official.

The Palmer house was tendered and accepted by the delegates as their headquarters during their stay in the city. Mayor Harrison welcomed the delegation in a brief speech, which was responded to by E. Rosewater, of Omaha, and Spencer Walpole. The delegates then entered carriages and were driven over the city, ending up at Jackson Park for lunch and entertainment during the afternoon. They will leave at 8:30 tonight for Niagara Falls and Buffalo, making short stops at Albany, Syracuse, Rochester on their way from the falls to Boston. From there the delegation will go to Atlantic City, N. J., and Philadelphia, thence to Washington.

HIS VETO RECORD.

Governor Culberson of Texas is Making One.

Austin, Texas, June 7.—Governor Culberson today did something unprecedented in Texas legislative circles by vetoing at once four bills passed at the regular session of the legislature, recently closed. During this session he has vetoed sixteen bills more than any previous governor has ever negatived and today he added four more to the list.

The most important bill vetoed today is a general occupation tax bill, which sought to tax everybody and every industry in the state to increase the revenues. The governor says that while the object of the bill is commendable, he must veto it because it would authorize the circulation of obscene literature and sanction gambling by pool selling and legalize the fire insurance companies now operating in the state and which have lately been prosecuted.

HIS FATAL ERROR.

Chicago Post: "He asked me if I could whistle," said the demure little girl in gray.

"It's an old trick," said the worldly girl in dark blue.

"I know it," admitted the little one with a blush.

"When a girl puckers up her lips to whistle a man seems to think that a sort of special invitation is thereby extended to him," asserted the worldly girl in dark blue.

"I know it," was the quiet answer.

"The idea is so old and has become so common that men of the world seldom resort to it now," continued the worldly girl in dark blue.

"I know that, too—now," returned the little girl in gray with some spirit.

"Well, what did you do, then?"

"I undertook to show him that I could whistle."

The worldly girl in dark blue laughed merrily.

"He must have thought you delightfully green," she said.

"He didn't," answered the demure little girl, and her eyes began to flash angrily.

"He didn't?"

"No, he didn't."

"You seem to be very sure," suggested the worldly girl in dark blue.

"I am," replied the demure one.

"What did he say?"

"He didn't say a thing."

"What did he do?"

There was a pause and the demure little girl ceased to be demure for a minute in her excitement.

"He didn't do a thing," she said at last.

WAS MISREPRESENTED.

Even when her speech was obscured by sobs there was something about her voice that showed she could sing high C and assert her right to the center of the stage. It was pathetic to see a strong woman so utterly dejected, says the Chicago News.

"I want to see the horrid reporter who wrote the contemptible piece about my miserable suit for divorce," she said after her paroxysm of weeping had abated.

"He's out," was the prompt and positive answer of the editor, who is a humane man.

"Can't I see him later?"

"No. He took a week's salary and went on a vacation. He said he wasn't coming back till his money was all spent, and we don't look for him in any time less than six months."

"Perhaps somebody else could attend to what I want, although I don't suppose there is any use in my asking for justice. It must have been pure malice."

"You refer to the item about your divorce?"

"Yes."

"Well, it seems to me that you are exceedingly unfair to the reporter. Why, he did his best to be complimentary. No less than three times he alluded, to you as the 'fair' plaintiff."

"Yes. That was very nice of him. But read on."

"I don't find anything that is not in the same vein. He says: 'The lady's toilet had evidently been an object of much care. It was a triumph of the milliner's art and a monument of her elegant taste in such matters.'"

"That's the sentence?" she exclaimed, rising to her feet. Her indignation dried her tears, and, shaking her clinched fingers at the newspaper, she said: "What did he mean by trying to humiliate me in the eyes of all those spectators? How dared he insinuate that the common old things I wore to that court room are the best clothes I have?"

LIVELY

Senator Hoar Criticised the Tactics of Some Democratic Senators.

Quite a Strong Opposition to the Proposed White Pine Duty.

Washington, June 7.—Quite a lively turn was given the senate tariff debate this afternoon by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts. Mr. Bacon of Georgia had spoken in favor of a duty on lumber as according to the Democratic tenets, and Mr. Caffery of Louisiana had opposed it as un-Democratic. Mr. Hoar thereupon referred to the peculiarities of the way some Democrats acted on the tariff. Mr. Caffery's idea of tariff, he said, was "sugar, sugar, and nothing else." He added that Mr. Caffery was so anxious for a protective duty on sugar when the Wilson bill was being considered that, when the vote was taken, he first cast his vote against the bill as a protest and before the completion of the call changed to yes. Mr. Hoar said Mr. Bacon wanted protection and revenue to go hand in hand when it came to the duty on lumber. If the Democratic side could make a tariff bill it would be found that everything in their own states would be protected.

Mr. Bacon asked Mr. Hoar what he would do about a duty on hides.

Mr. Hoar said he would support a tariff bill if it contained a duty on hides which his colleagues thought proper. He said he thought a duty of 1 cent a pound on hides was not protection and from that point of view was folly. Mr. Stewart insisted that while there was a duty on the products of leather there should be protection on hides for the benefit of the farmers who were subject to competition from South America.

Mr. Caffery defended his vote on the Wilson bill, saying it was a protest against the action of his own side in changing the time when the bounty should be repealed. He said while he might have deceived himself on the tariff he did not, like Mr. Hoar, deceive others. Mr. Hoar confessed that a duty on hides was absurd, but only because it was not protection enough to do any good.

Mr. Allen said Mr. Hoar's statement that the proposed duty on hides was only 1 cent was not correct. He then continued the debate on the lumber schedule. He moved to substitute the provisions of the Wilson bill, which placed lumber on the free list. The senator spoke against restoring white pine to the dutiable list, urging that the rates were designed to be prohibitory against Candian pine.

There was nothing, he said, in the "slap trap argument" of American high wages, as the wages of lumbermen in Canada were on the whole higher than in the United States. This was simply an attempt to pay back to the lumber syndicate the advance which it had possibly made less than a year ago and in the eyes of every honest man was nothing short of absolute larceny—legalized larceny.

Mr. Berry spoke against restoring the duty on white pine. He had been appealed to by the lumber interests of his own state to support the duty, but he could not do it when it laid such heavy tribute on the agricultural people of the Western states. Mr. Berry expressed his astonishment that any Democratic senator would support this restoration of duty on lumber.

Mr. Bacon, who is supporting the lumber duty, reminded Mr. Berry that his (Bacon's) support was due to the fact that the duty was a revenue rather than a protective rate.

Mr. Berry responded with a vehement arraignment of the bill, framed, he said, in the interest of every trust and combination in the country. When he saw in the bill that it gave a large increase of duty to the sugar trust and to every other combination of capital, this satisfied him that the measure was framed distinctly on the lines of protection and not of revenue.

HYPNOTIC MURDER.

Strange Tale of Crime Committed By a Child.

St. Louis, June 7.—As a sequel to a terrible struggle in a little room at 805 Allan avenue, Joseph Feiferlick will probably die and a charge of murder will lie against George, his 7-year-old brother. From stories told by relatives, it would seem that another is responsible for the crime. It is one more case into which enters that mysterious power termed hypnotism.

The Feiferlick family is one of the oldest in St. Louis. While in San Francisco one year ago George was hypnotized at an entertainment. Since then he has acted strangely, and his crazed attack upon Joseph is attributed to this influence.

CURIOUS TOWNS.

Two Bit is the novel name of the youngest town in the Black Hills. It is located in the gulch of that name in the northern hills near a mine which yields red paint, says the New York Sun.

Skiddan is a township in England that contains but one house and the occupier of that has no vote.

The most remote village in England is Farley-Cam-Pitton. It is thirty miles from the nearest railway station.

Trimley is a village in Suffolk. It has two churches in the same churchyard. Services are held in both three times a week at the same hour.

Hamilton has the deepest well in England, 250 feet.

On the top of the parish church tower in Bicknoller, Somersetshire, is a yew tree, now five feet high and still growing.

Perhaps the most splendidly decorated church in the United Kingdom is that of Whitley Court, Worcestershire. It is entirely constructed of white marble, the pews are chastely carved, and the pulpit is of genuine Carrara marble, richly panelled with precious stones.

On the village green at Meriden, in Warwickshire is a large stone cross, which is supposed to mark the central point of England.

SHARKEY AND MAHER.

The Big Heavyweights to Battle on Wednesday Night.

New York, June 7.—The next man to tackle Champion Fitzsimmons will probably be decided Wednesday night, when Tom Sharkey, the sailor pugilist, and Peter Maher, the Irish champion, meet in a 20-round bout at the Palace Athletic club. The winner will doubtless be taken on by Fitzsimmons even though he has defeated both men. He has declared that he would not fight Sharkey again because of his claim of foul in their fight at San Francisco, but if Sharkey shows a crushing superiority over Maher, Fitz may be compelled by public sentiment to "take on" the sailor. This fight will be Sharkey's third ring battle with stars. His first was last winter when he sparred half a dozen rounds with Jim Corbett in San Francisco. Corbett was with his theatrical company at the time and not in good condition. He undertook to knock Sharkey out, but failed. He claimed it was because the sailor hugged and clinched and used foul tactics.

Then a few weeks later Sharkey met Fitzsimmons in a 10-round bout for $10,000. It was a hard fight from the start. Fitz landed many of his worst blows, but they seemed to have little effect on the iron frame of the sailor. Finally, in the eighth round, Fitz led for the stomach. Sharkey went down like a skull-fractured bullock, and writhed about the floor. His seconds claimed a foul and Referee Earp gave the fight and stakes to Sharkey, sustaining the claim of foul. Fitz went to law to get the purse, but failed to prevent its going to Sharkey. The Australian has always claimed the blow was such a one as knocked out Corbett, and since the Carson City affair sporting men believe Sharkey's claim of foul was a "fake."

Maher has met Fitz several times, and has never really bothered the ex-

PETER MAHER.

blacksmith. In their battle two years ago on the Mexican border Fitz knocked him out in the first round. Maher claimed then that his eyes had been blinded by the alkali dust. Judged from the "line" taken on Fitz, the odds ought to be slightly in favor of Sharkey, for though practically a novice in ring tactics he was able to stand off Fitz for a long time. That he can take punishment there is no doubt. That Maher can is a question. More than once Peter has been called a "quitter." Maher has some marked advantages over the sailor. He is taller by three inches and his reach is two and a half inches longer, a vital point in these days of shifty fighting. His ring experience, too, is far greater than Sharkey's. On the other hand he is at a disadvantage in age for Sharkey is fully several years his junior. In bulk he will be less formidable than Tom. Sharkey's expanded chest measures 47 1-2 inches, while Peter's swells the tape to only 44. The purse is said to be for $11,000.

PLAGUE IN ARABIA.

Jeddah, Arabia, June 7.—Several cases of sickness, believed to be bubonic plague, have occurred here.

HER MAGNETIC HANDS.

A strange exhibition of a wonderful power was recently given in the presence of Governor W. G. Atkinson of Georgia, says the New York Journal. The demonstration occurred in the governor's reception room in the capitol at Atlant, and the possessor of the marvellous power was Miss Fannie Hester, of Greene county, Georgia.

The first experiment tried with the young lady before Governor Atkinson and his party was with a silver dollar. This was placed near the palm of her hand, and the muscles immediately began to twitch and jump. Several of those present felt her hand, and noticed the strange pulsation. A large, round stick was then placed in her hand, and as long as it touched the palm it kept continually in motion, whirling around with great rapidity. Several tried to push against her, but she could not be moved from her tracks. The governor's private secretary, a strong, powerful young man, used all his strength to push the girl back, but could not move her.

Experiments were then tried with a chair, and although four men caught hold of it and attempted to keep it still, Miss Hester moved it easily in all directions with one hand. She seemed to use no exertion whatever, yet the four men opposing her were powerless in resisting her. It was the greatest difficulty to lift her from the floor, and when she stood on wood it was an impossibility to lift her feet more than an inch from the floor.

In this respect Miss Hester's abilities are very similar to the celebrated Lulu Hurst, but the magnetic palms are a distinctive feature.

QUANTRELL'S NERVE.

A Very Close Call For the Famous Guerrilla.

Current stories regarding the dramatic career of Quantrell, the noted guerrilla chieftain who continually harrassed Union soldiers during the war, has resulted in bringing to light the fact that this noted character's most thrilling, and probably his most narrow, escape from death occurred in Danville. Quantrell made but one excursion through this region of Kentucky, but it was a bold dash and he left a trail of blood behind him, more than one Federal soldier or sympathizer being found with the Quantrell scar—the bullet hole in the forehead just between the eyebrows, says the Philadelphia Times.

On the day of Quantrell's close call he had arrived in Danville from Hustonville, in Lincoln county. At Hustonville he had halted to lay in a fresh stock of horseflesh, and there some of his band had foully murdered a Union officer. A woman who had been at Hustonville preceded the guerrillas to Danville, and when Quantrell reached this city she not only recognized him, but spoke to him, calling him by name. Quantrell simply smiled and said to her, "Why, madame, you were never more mistaken in your life. I am Capt. —— of the Federal army."

Quantrell and his men were attired in Federal uniforms and were posing as Federal scouts. They halted in Danville, and as Federal soldiers were in the habit of passing in and out of the town in small squads, no particular attention was paid to the guerrillas until they had been in the town some five or six hours. The woman who had accosted Quantrell upon his arrival believed that he had deceived her, and she told a young Federal lieutenant then in town what she thought about the men who had arrived that morning. Quantrell and his men were going about town pretty much as they pleased, lounging about the hotels and saloons with a feeling of perfect security. The lieutenant, from the description furnished by the woman, and from what he had heard of Quantrell from other sources, was convinced that the fine-looking fellow masquerading in Federal clothing was none other than the dreaded guerrilla, and he determined to kill or capture him.

The lieutenant procured a carbine and started upon a hunt for his man. He finally caught sight of him walking down the main street of the town. Quantrell was alone. He walked the length of several squares down one side of the street and started up the other side, the lieutenant with the carbine in his wake all the time, waiting for an opportunity of cornering his man. About midway of the main square Quantrell entered a saloon, stepped to the counter and called for a drink.

Just as Quantrell reached over the bar pilling to take the glass he glanced into the big mirror against the wall and noticed the Federal lieutenant entering with the carbine ready to fire. Quantrell very coolly set the glass down, quietly turned about and faced his pursuer. The carbine had by this time been brought to the shoulder of the lieutenant, its muzzle was within three feet of the guerrilla's breast and the eye which ran down the shining barrel was keen and cool. Quantrell dared not make a false move and he was then powerless to protect himself by force. His heavy overcoat was buttoned up to his chin, making the pistols buckled at his waist entirely useless. He gazed at the determined lieutenant very complacently for a brief period, smiled and said:

"How now, comrade; what are you going to do with that gun?"

"Shoot you like a dog if you move a muscle," was the reply. "You are Quantrell. You have played it for a long time, but now you are my prisoner. March into that room there."

Quantrell glanced to an open door at the end of the bar, but didn't obey the command. It was not his intention to do so. His nerve was superb and his self-possession complete.

"Ah, I see," he quietly observed. "You take me for Quantrell, but you wrong me, I assure you. My resemblance to that scoundrel has been most provoking. Permit me to call my orderly sergeant and I will show you that I am as true to the Union as you are. He has all of my papers."

The lieutenant looked surprised as well as somewhat confused, and Quantrell noted his discomfiture. This was a signal for the deception to be redoubled, and so he continued: "I have also heard stories about the guerrilla being in this section. To my certain knowledge he is not now in Kentucky, and you are simply making a d—n fool of yourself. Put down your gun and as long as we are in the same cause let us be friends."

The lieutenant, completely nonplussed at Quantrell's cool effrontery, and considerably abashed, told him to call his orderly, but keeping the carbine ready to fire. On the street not far away Quantrell saw some of his men talking, and he called to one of them to enter. The man whose name was uttered went into the saloon, and as soon as he saw his chief covered with a carbine, drew his heavy revolver.

"Stop!" shouted Quantrell. "Not so fast. Put up your pistol. Our friend here has heard that I am Quantrell. It's quite amusing. Show him our papers from the secretary of war himself, in order that this little embarrassment may be removed."

"All right, captain," was the reply, as the man began feeling in an inside pocket for his papers, still holding his revolver, however, in his right. He approached the lieutenant as he started to withdraw his hand from his coat, but instead of bringing out the papers, he suddenly, with the quickness and ferocity of a wildcat, sprang upon the young Federal, felled him to the floor, and held him fast, with the muzzle of the revolver against his head, as he hissed:

"These are the papers you are looking for. We always have them on hand for such as you. Must I give him the old mark, captain?"

"No; let the gentleman up," replied Quantrell.

The lieutenant arose and was disarmed, and expressed himself as very well satisfied with the papers. Then the two took a drink together. As Quantrell and the lieutenant continued the conversation the other guerrilla quietly slipped out, passed the word, and in ten minutes more Quantrell's horse was standing in front of the bar room ready for him to mount. He shook hands with the man who had given him one of the worst scares of his life, left the saloon and rode away. Before the lieutenant could collect his thoughts and realize the deception that had been practiced upon him, Quantrell and his band were far on their road toward Louisville.

A SURE CURE.

Tobacco Journal: "Yes," he said, "I quit smoking nearly a year ago and haven't even taken a single puff since."

"It must be considerable of a struggle for a man who has been in the habit of smoking a good deal," said the man who never had tried to stop, but was always promising himself that some day he would.

"I had smoked for twenty years," said the man who had quit.

"Yes, I know it," returned the man who had never tried. "That's what surprises me in your case. It must have required a good deal of nerve and self-control."

"Not at all! Not at all! Merely judgment."

"Judgment?"

"Precisely. It is very simple when you know how."

"Why, I've always understood that a man went through all kinds of torture and only hung to his determination by the very greatest exhibition of will power."

"When he doesn't understand or grasp the proper method, yes," said the man who had quit; "but if he exercises a little judgment and common sense it is the easiest thing in the world. Now, I didn't go off by myself and make a solemn vow that I never would smoke again and then stop right short off."

"Limited yourself, I suppose, and graded down?"

"Not a bit of it. That's where all the struggle and the fight comes in. I didn't undertake to put any limit on my smoking and I made it a point for several weeks to keep a box of cigars open on my desk at home, only—"

"Yes."

"I let my wife buy them."

"Ah! I begin to understand."

"I gave her the money that I usually spent for cigars and told her that she was a better bargain hunter than I and would naturally be entitled to anything that she could save out of my cigar money. Of course she was delighted."

"That was to be expected."

"Three days later I was sick and the smell of cigar smoke soon became nauseating to me. I never could stand poor cigars, you know. I quit smoking from choice inside of a week."

NOT ALL BLUE.

It is commonly believed that the sapphire is known only as a gem of a rich velvety blue in color. As a matter of fact, the sapphire occurs in various hues, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. In Ceylon, where the finest specimens of this gem are found, it ranges from the soft, velvety hue to the peacock blue, graduated in the latter to an almost faultless white. It also occurs in whites, greens and yellows, the latter shade being known as the Oriental topaz and the green the Oriental emerald. The white sapphires are often found clouded or streaked with blue, so that many specimens are cut which are white when looked at transversely, but having a bit of fine blue tint on the upper point. Then there is the red sapphire, or Ceylon ruby. It is valued as highly as the finest Burmese rubies. Those most highly prized are of a rich pigeon blood or rose red color.

MAY BE McGILVRAY.

Council May Reconsider Its Former Action.

It was said at the city hall this morning that there is a strong probability that the vote taken Monday on the confirmation of T. F. McGilvray as city engineer will be moved for reconsideration. Those "on the inside" say that if those who voted for McGilvray before stay by him he will go through, as he will get enough new votes to give him a majority. Alderman Duren has returned from Rainy Lake and his vote will probably go to McGilvray.

President Smith of the board of public works said that the board would not await a possible reconsideration by the council tonight unless it had positive assurance that Mr. McGilvray can be confirmed. If such assurance is not forthcoming by 3 o'clock this afternoon, it was thought that E. H. Spalding would be recommended by the board. Mr. Wilson will not vote for him, but will again recommend Mr. Duffies. Messrs. Smith and Flood were in conference with a number of the aldermen at noon, talking over the situation.

There were "no overt acts" by either side in the engineer fight this morning, and it appeared as if a tacit truce had been agreed on pending the result of tonight's meeting of the council.

HEAVY FROSTS REPORTED.

June Record Was Broken at Duluth Last Night.

In the twenty-five or twenty-six years during which the weather bureau in Duluth has been in existence the thermometer never drooped so low in June as it did last night. It registered 32.8 degrees above. That is lower by one half of a degree than the lowest ever recorded up to this time. But there were colder places than Duluth. At Huron, S. D., the lowest was 32 degrees, and the frost was sufficient to cause considerable damage to garden truck if not to grain. At Sault Ste. Marie the thermometer went as low as 32 degrees and all over the Northwest the cold snap was general, breaking all previous records at a number of points.

Judgment Through Default.

The appeal from the allowance of the claim of the Associated Charities for $75 per month from the county, which was instituted some time ago, came up before Judge Moer this morning, and judgment was entered by default. The appeal was from the monthly appropriation by the board of $75 for the secretary of the Associated Charities. On the second day of the present term of court pleadings were ordered to be filed within ten days. As no pleadings were filed, judgment was ordered against J. W. Miller, who appears as defendant, this morning, on motion of the county attorney. Capt. Miller claims that he received no notice of the order requiring pleadings to be filed, and an application may be made to have the judgment set aside.

Was Short of Evidence.

On motion of County Attorney Asbury the case against Matt Weiss, Jr., who was indicted for forgery in the first degree, was dismissed and the defendant was released. The ground given for the dismissal was that there was not enough evidence to secure a conviction. Weiss was charged with endorsing another man's name to a county treasurer's check for $5 and getting it cashed. After the indictment was found, Under Sheriff Meining arrested the defendant in New Paynesville, Minn.

HOT TIME

Colored Brethren Engage In a Rather Exciting Exchange of Bullets.

Duel Between Thomas Sidney and Budd Redd in St. Croix Alley.

A shooting affray in two chapters took place between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning, and as a result Budd Redd, colored porter at Belle Stanley's bagnio, lies at St. Luke's hospital with a bullet through his right thigh. Harvey Bazzle, colored, piano player at the same resort, is limping around with a wound in the left leg and Thomas Sidney, colored, employed as cook at Blanche Spencer's bagnio, is locked up at police headquarters charged with assault in the first degree.

The trouble began in the apartments of Lizzie Carroll, a colored damsel residing at 116 West Michigan street. Here Redd and Sidney, who had been drinking beer with the Carroll woman, got into a dispute. According to Sidney's story, Redd threatened to shoot him when he caught him on the street. Sidney then went out, "to take a walk," he said in the course of a narration rendered hazy by the effects of beer. At any rate, Sidney met Bazzle and the two returned to the Carroll woman's place, Bazzle saying that his object in going was to get Redd to behave himself. As they went up the stairs, Bazzle in the lead, Redd hauled out a revolver and fired at Sidney, the ball a 38, striking Bazzle just below the knee and partially embedding itself in the bone. Bazzle and Sidney beat a retreat, Sidney, as he tells the police, going for a gun.

Bazzle jumped on his bicycle, rode to his home at 1006 West Superior street, dug the bullet out of his leg with a knife, procured a large knife and started back for the scene of action.

Redd, meanwhile, had returned to the "Point," and it was in St. Croix alley, near Sutphin street, that he and Sidney came together and the second engagement was had. Redd was talking to a girl in the door of a restaurant near Sarah Bliss' dive, when Sidney hove in sight.

Then, according to the latter's story, "the noise begun." Redd, according to Sidney, said to the latter "are you ready?"

"You bet I am," Sidney says he replied, and they went at it.

Officer Hawkins, who was standing near, says that the combatants ducked their heads and peppered away at each other and fired as rapidly as they could pull the trigger, Sidney firing five shots and Redd three. The latter went down and Sidney at once started in the direction of the police station, carrying his revolver in his left hand. He was overtaken at the railroad tracks by Detective Troyer, to whom he said he was going to give himself up.

In response to Troyer's question as to what he had been into, Sidney said he was after "that nigger" to kill him.

"This ain't no joke," said Sidney. "That nigger took a couple of shots at me and I done made up ma min' I'd do a little shootin' maself."

Bazzle was intercepted on his way to the "Point" by Detective Donovan. Bazzle was also looking for "that nigger," with his large knife up his sleeve.

"I done tell you, Mr. Donovan, that if I'd foun' that Redd nigger afore you foun' me he would done need no mo' lookin' after. We was the bes' o' frien's and I was just tryin' to make him behave himself an' he done shot me in the laig, an' it made me hot. De Lord saved his life, I tell yuh."

Bazzle assured the detective that the wound was not dangerous.

"I done had six forty-twos in me in Mexico," Bazzle remarked. "Dis heah don' 'mount to nothin'."

It was the principle of the thing that had made Bazzle hot, evidently. He was taken to the county attorney's office where he made a complaint against Redd for assault.

Charged With Assault.

Israel Goldstein appeared before Judge Edson this morning, charged by Mary Goldstein with assault. The defendant pleaded not guilty and his trial was set for Wednesday morning, he being released under a $25 bond. The police say that the complainant was in a terrible state when she appeared Saturday to make complaint, her face and neck being bruised and bleeding. The defense will have seven witnesses and the prosecution five.

SETTLING THE JUDGMENTS.

Number of Those Against the Merritts Being Assigned.

A large bunch of legal documents were filed in the office of the clerk of district court Saturday afternoon, which indicate that the Merritt family is beginning to clear itself from the entanglements of indebtedness resulting from the collapse of their Mesaba range interests a few years ago. It is clear, at least, that a very large proportion of their indebtedness represented by judgments has been cleared up, and it is said on good authority that every dollar of it is in process of settlement.

The terms have not been made public, so it is not known whether the judgments are paid in full or compromised. The papers filed Saturday consisted of satisfactions and assignments of judgment, and there were also stipulations dismissing all pending actions against the Merritts, which means that the cases have been settled. The names of Alfred and Leonidas Merritt appear most frequently in the documents, though A. R., E. T., F. W. and others are also concerned.

Satisfactions of judgment were filed in about fifteen cases. In some of them the Merritts are the only defendants, and in these cases the satisfaction is in full. In others various other parties are co-defendants, and in most of these the judgments are satisfied as to the Merritts alone. The assignments are to the Merritts' attorneys or to Jane E. Merritt or Etta M. Merritt, and they mean that the claims have been settled just as much as the satisfactions.

There were pending in the district court about half a dozen or more suits to recover on notes on which the Merritts are principals or endorsers. The indebtedness thus cancelled is not all that of the Merritts directly, much of it being that of others endorsed by the Merritts. The whole amount of indebtedness represented is over $30,000.

DENIED BY DELOME.

He Has Not Urged Gen. Weyler's Recall.

Washington, June 8.—Senor Dupuy DeLome, the Spanish minister here, characterizes as absurd reports that he has advised his government to withdraw Capt. Gen. Weyler from his command in Cuba. The minister pointed out that it would not be within his province to advise his government as to the lines of its policy concerning any country outside of the United States to which he is accredited.

If the government of the United States had any suggestions to make as to the conduct of affairs in Cuba it would, if it followed the usual customs of diplomatic exchanges, make its representations to the Spanish government through the United States minister to Madrid, Mr. Taylor.

IRON AND STEEL WAGE SCALE.

Pittsburg, June 8.—The first conference on the iron and steel wage scales of the Amalgamated association will be on the tinplate scale. It will be held here on Wednesday, June 16. Both sides are busy gathering data to support their claims. The workers are firm and say they will not concede a point. They will ask for a restoration of the rates paid under the McKinley tariff law, which means an advance over present wages from 12 1-2 to 15 1-2 per cent. The manufacturers assert that the conditions will not justify advances in wages.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET GAME.

Oxford, Eng., June 8.—Heavy rain fell all night long and this morning, and it was impossible to resume the cricket match at noon. Consequently play was postponed until 5 o'clock. Oxford's score is 363, and Philadelphia, which has just started in, 16. Ralston was caught by Hartley, bowled by Cunliffe, his score being 17 runs. The score was 30 at the fall of the first wicket.

At the close of the play today Philadelphia stood 162 to Oxford's 363. Play will be resumed tomorrow.

SOUTHERN MILLERS MEET.

Kansas City, Mo., June 8.—The Southwestern Winter Wheat association, all millers in the entire southwest, began a two days' session this morning at the Coates house. Perry H. Brown, of Parsons, Kan., presided. Routine work and the reading of papers consumed the early part of the meeting. One hundred millers and millmen are expected.

KILLED HIS FATHER.

A Methodist Minister Shot By His Son.

Louisville, June 8.—A special to the Evening Post from Barberville, Ky., says: Rev. Berry Lawson, a Methodist divine of this county, was shot and instantly killed this morning by his 15-year-old son. The father whipped the boy Sunday for some slight offense and he left home. The punishment rankled in the little fellow's heart, and he returned home this morning and finding his father in a corn field, slipped up behind him and blew his head from his shoulders with a shotgun. The youthful parricide escaped.

ALBERT SCHEFFER FREE.

Indictment Against the St. Paul Banker is Quashed.

St. Paul, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—The indictment against Albert Scheffer, president of the Allemania bank, is quashed. Judge Lewis so ordered this afternoon. John Lindquist was an alien in this state. His presence on the grand jury, which found the indictment, vitiated that indictment, making it of no effect.

While the court does not in terms express itself, it is probable that all the doings of that grand jury were vitiated by the fact that Lindquist was a member of the jury. The court avoids applying the decision to the other indictments against other prominent bank officials, in which the same motion to quash had been made, because there are some points of difference in the situation. But he finds no difficulty in throwing the Scheffer indictment out.

BUYING UP COAL MINES.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 8.—An English syndicate has options on all the coal mings and lands in East Tennessee and Southern Kentucky, along the Cincinnati Southern road. Robert Walton, manager of the Rugby Land company, the English company which built Rugby, Tenn., says an agent is now en route to London to close the options. The trades for the mines along the Cincinnati Southern will be closed first and the Jellico and Coal creek mines secured later.

SILVER

Provisional Committee of the National Silver Republican Party Meets.

Thirty-Two States Are Represented By Committeemen --Others Present.

Eloquent Opening Address Delivered By Charles A. Towne of Duluth.

Chicago, June 8.—Thirty-two states were represented at the first meeting of the provisional committee of the National Silver Republican party, which met in executive session at the Leland hotel today. Besides the committeemen of the various states represented, over a hundred Silver Republicans were present from all parts of the country. The states represented were: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming and West Virginia. Promptly at 1 o'clock the meeting was called to order by ex-Congressman Charles A. Towne, of Minnesota.

Chairman Towne, in calling the committee to order, said in part: "I give you greeting upon the auspicious opening of this conference and congratulate you and the great cause wherein we are engaged that so numerous and representative a body of men has gathered from a large majority of the states and territories to participate in the first general council of the Silver Republican party of the United States. We are happy to welcome the inspiring presence of a delegation representing the bimetallic organization of the country whose sympathies are enlisted as ever in behalf of justice and humanity." After referring briefly to the circumstances attending and the motives instigating the inception of the movement he spoke of the organization of the provisional national committee at the suggestion of the Republican senators and congressmen.

Continuing, he said: "Our motives were these: We desire above all things else of immediate political concern the speedy re-establishment in the United States of true bimetallism, the same privilege of free coinage at the mint for both gold and silver, and absolute equality between them in all money power when coined, with the option to every payer, whether the government or an individual, to choose what coin shall be the basis of payment in every instance. We wish to do all we can to advance this happy consummation, and we realize that if this great cause is to succeed in the elections of 1900 it can do so only through the addition to the allied armies of 6,000,000 that followed the banner of the joint standard in 1896, of at least some hundreds of thousands of the Republicans of that contest.

"We have other plans, or may have, and we believe in other things also, but the restoration of silver as basic or primary money along with gold is the first and engrossing object of our activities and shall remain so until the crescent of promise shall have rounded into the full orb of success. The general method of our procedure will be that demanded by the depths of our convictions and the dominant importance of the issue that has moved us. With us the cause is everything. Men and parties sink into relative inconsequence. All armies marching to invade the citadel of the gold standard are our allies, all their soldiers our comrades. We will loyally and tirelessly co-operate with all other organized forces of bimetallism that honestly profess the faith and resolutely and undeviatingly keep it.

"Harmony is of vital concern to the success of the cause, and nothing but consideration of its welfare shall limit the burdens we will gladly bear or the sacrifices we will eagerly make to advance. But the sincerity we offer we shall also require. Our allegiance is to the cause alone and we should as readily abandon an ally who would imperil the cause as we turned from the old Republican party when it was false to its duties. Our allies must recognize that the present critical situation in American politics signalizes the interaction of forces preparing a realignment of parties. Old things are being done away and all things are becoming new. Let the dead past bury its dead. Regret for the necessary sundering of accustomed ties must be swallowed up in the satisfaction of forming new ones that shall link us to the duties of the future rather than to the memories of the past.

"It would be useless to deny that social and industrial evolution is shaking for political treatment other questions that will successively ripen for settlement after the monetary reformation shall have been accomplished, and that the underlying principles on which their wise settlement depends are such as naturally place their achievement in the same hands. Many of these have been long advocated by that great advance guard the Populist party, and some of the most urgent ones are more and more commending themselves to the reason and sympathies of men. Is it too much to expect, or is it injudicious to express the hope that silver Democrats, Populists and silver Republicans may, by 1900, be welded into one strong and serviceable instrument in the hands of Providence for the political regeneration of the country and the beginning of reform restoring the spirit of the constitution and contributing to the advancement and happiness of mankind?"

In conclusion, he said the immediate business in hand was the determination of the time and place for holding a national convention, the membership of which could make an authoritative declaration of principles—the discussion and adoption of a plan of general organization in the states and territories would follow.

At the close of the chairman's address, J. B. Manager, of West Virginia, was chosen secretary of the conference. Telegrams of regret were read from Senator Cullom, of Utah, and Gen. Warner. A feature of the opening session was the visit of a delegation of women representing the Women's Bimetallic union and headed by Mrs. Tillinghast, of Cleveland.

Just previous to the national meeting, the district delegates from Illinois met at the call of Chairman C. C. Strawn, of Pontiac, and perfected the state organization.

Committees on order of business and plan of organization were then named, of which later ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho was made chairman.

A resolution was passed admitting to the meeting the visiting Silver Republicans who were not members of the provisional committee, and giving them all privileges except that of voting.

Although nothing has as yet been fully determined upon, a general plan of organization has been outlined by the leaders. This plan contemplates the appointment of chairmen of state committees, who will appoint county and township committees and an enrollment of silver Republicans precinct by precinct.

An executive committee to consist of five or seven members, the chairman of which will be the chairman of the national committee, will also probably be appointed. It is said also that resolutions will be adopted appointing Senators Pettigrew of South Dakota; Cannon of Utah; Mantle of Montana, and ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho, as commissioners to visit Japan and China and report on the financial conditions prevailing in those countries.

MURDER HINTED AT.

Sensational Development in the Hoffman Death Case.

San Francisco, June 8.—A sensational arraignment of Theodore Figel, bookkeeper for Isaac Hoffman, has been made by Attorney Henry Ach, speaking for partners of the dead merchant, who he declares was deliberately murdered. This statement was made in the presence of H. M. Rothschild and Joseph Napthaly, counsel for Mrs. Hoffman. It reviews the details of the case, and is a strong argument against the theory of suicide.

When questioned directly as to whether the books would come out right, Figel frankly admitted that they would not, as he had made false entries in the bank account in the firm's ledger, at Hoffman's suggestion to cover up drafts, showing an excess of his allowance. Figel further said that no one but himself could make the books balance as many entries had to be made of which he alone knew.

In his racing affairs Figel employed Edgar Eatkinson, C. Burlingam and William Taylor as agents. They managed the stable, and bet at his direction. They claim that Figel was a heavy winner, but admit that they have wagered over $1000 on a single ratio for their principal.

ADDITIONAL STOCK.

Western Union Telegraph Co. Wants to List $2,000,000.

New York, June 8.—Formal application has been made by the Western Union Telegraph company for permission to list $2,000,000 additional stock. The stock is issued against improvements, including eighty-eight miles of new lines and a new building in Chicago, costing $1,600,000.

In its application the company says that its stocks have been sold. The application came before the stock list committee exchange yesterday, and there is reason to believe that it was favorably acted upon. It will next come before the governors, who meet tomorrow. The authorized capital stock of the Western Union Telegraph company is $100,000,000.

SAFE CRACKER FREE.

Files His Way Out of a Kansas Jail.

Hiawatha, Kan., June 8.—Charles Patterson, who has cracked safes at Corning and in Brown, Nemaha and neighboring counties, has escaped from the Brown county jail by filing his cell bars and digging his way out. He is still at large. Patterson is a man of wonderful nerve and daring. Before being captured, several months ago, he stood off a posse of farmers for hours, using Farmer Elliott and two farm hands and a baby, which he snatched from Mrs. Elliott's arms, as a shield.

CANNON FOR DULUTH.

Judge Morris Secures One For Culver Post.

Washington, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the request of Representative Morris, the war department will ship one condemned cannon each to Culver Grand Army post at Duluth, Farragut post at Wadena and Sedgewick post at Monticello. These guns are 30-pounders, weighing 4200 pounds each, and Capt. Van Sant, who owns a line of steamers on the Mississippi, has been requested to transport them from Rock Island to the nearest point on the Mississippi where they can be shipped to their destination.

WATERWORKS ASSOCIATION.

Denver, Col., June 8.—The seventeenth annual convention of the American Waterworks association assembled today, about 150 delegates from the principal cities of twenty states being in attendance. Welcoming addresses were delivered by Governor Adams, Mayor McMurray and others, to which President Davis, of Indianapolis, responded. Many subjects, most of them of a technical nature, will be discussed during the sessions, which will continue until Thursday evening. Today's program embraced the following papers: "Pumping Machinery," by Charles A. Hague, New York. "Lifting Water From Wells With Air," and "Pumping of Natural Gas," by F. A. Davis, Indianapolis; "Conduits," by W. F. Allen, Denver.

Republican Senators Confer and Order an Entirely New Sugar Schedule.

Washington, June 8.—In the course of his prayer on the opening of the senate today the acting chaplain, Rev. Hugh Johnson, invoked a speedy return of contentment and prosperity and that the condition of the poor and suffering may be ameliorated by the great measures before congress. The consideration of the tariff bill was promptly resumed and Mr. Allison, Iowa, requested that the sugar schedule be passed over.

Mr. Vest remarked that it was an open secret that the majority had made modifications in the sugar schedule and it as important that some understanding be had as to when the modifications would be presented and when the schedule would be taken up.

This led to a definite statement from Mr. Allison. There were no open secrets that he knew of, and he would now announce that the committee proposed to modify the sugar schedule by asking the senate to disagree to the committee amendments to the house bill or, if in order, to withdraw those amendments and insert others which he named. Mr. Allison stated also that the committee was not yet prepared to present a provision relating to sugar imported from the Hawaiian islands. Under the circumstances he asked that the consideration of the sugar schedule be temporarily passed over and taken up tomorrow.

Mr. Vest said this would be satisfactory. He wanted the consideration of the sugar schedule to proceed tomorrow, as it was "the most troublesome, most scandalous and most irritating in the whole bill," and it ought to be got out of the way.

Schedule G, relating to agricultural products and provisions was then taken up. When the agricultural schedule was taken up Senators Jones of Arkansas and Vest of Missouri made strong efforts to have the duty on cattle, barley, wheat and other products reduced on the ground that the high duties on them were unnecessary and merely intended to hoodwink the farmers, but they failed each time and the committee rates were adopted. McEmery, Rawlins and Tillman, Democrats, voted against their party on most of these motions.

Senator Bacon of Georgia offered an amendment placing a duty of 20 per cent ad valorem on raw cotton, and it was taken up and discussed.

Mr. Chilton, of Texas, opposed the proposed duty, saying it would do no good. Egyptian cotton did not compare with cotton grown in this country.

Mr. McLaurin, of South Carolina, took issue with Mr. Chilton and said Egyptian cotton competed with certain cotton grown in South Carolina.

Mr. Vest said the Bacon amendment would be adopted as the Republicans would vote for it because it would forward the scheme for breaking up the solid South. Mr. Vest said he would not have voted for the Chicago platform if it had meant what Mr. Bacon claimed for it.

Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, opposed the amendment, arguing along the same lines as Mr. Chilton. He said the manufacturers, before the bill passed, would insist upon an increase in the compensatory duty on manufactured cottons, and the Democrats who supported the Bacon amendment would have no answer to make to the request.

NEW SUGAR SCHEDULE.

Senate Finance Committee to Report Another.

Washington, June 8.—The Republican senatorial caucus today voted to stand together on all schedules in the tariff bill. The caucus instructed the finance committee to report a new sugar schedule. The text of the new sugar schedule is as follows:

Sugars not above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, tank bottom syrups of cane juice, melada, concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses, testing by the polariscope not above 75 degrees, 1 cent per pound, and for every additional degree shown by the polariscope test 3 100ths of 1 cent per pound additional, and fractions of a degree in proportion; and on sugar above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, and on all sugar which has gone through a process of refining, 1 cent and 95 100ths of 1 cent per pound; molasses testing above 40 degrees and not above 56 degrees, 3 cents per gallon; testing 56 degrees and above, 6 cents per gallon; sugar drawings and sugar sweepings shall be subject to duty as molasses or sugar as the case may be, according to polariscope test; sugars, tank bottoms, syrups, cane juice, beet juice, melada, concentrated melada and concrete molasses, the product of any country which pays, directly or indirectly, a bounty on the export thereof, whether imported directly and in condition as exported therefrom, or otherwise, shall pay in addition to the foregoing rates a duty equal to such bounty, or so much thereof as may be in excess of any tax collected by such country upon such exported article or upon the beet or cane from which it was produced.

RESIGNED HIS OFFICE.

Monmouth, Ill., June 8.—Dr. J. B. McMichael, president of Monmouth college, resigned his office today after twenty-three years of service. His successor has not yet been elected.

FAVOR POOLING.

But Differ Exceedingly as to Its Form.

Cincinnati, June 8.—In response to the calls of the freight bureaus of Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Nashville and Memphis, with other bureaus since co-operating, the subject of railroad pooling legislation was discussed at a large meeting here today. Delegates were present from the freight bureaus of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Louisville, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Savannah, Milwaukee, St. Paul and other cities.

These delegates favor legislation that will legalize pooling, but there is divergence of opinion as to the form. Reports were presented from 2100 organizations of shippers favoring pooling legislation, and from thousands of individuals.

The provisions of the Foraker and Chicago bills on the control of pooling by the inter-state commerce commission were given special consideration.

CHIEF ARTHUR'S OPINION.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 8.—Chief P. M. Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, endorses the Foraker pooling bill which is designed to permit railroads to agree on freight rates. "Our organization," said he, "favors anything that helps the earnings of the railways. We realize that if the railroads make money they can pay good salaries, but if the reverse is the case they must necessarily reduce salaries."

NO SLUGGING.

Police Will Prevent it at the Maher-Sharkey Fight.

New York, June 8.—Chief Conlin said today that he would see that there is "no slugging" at the Maher-Sharkey bout at the Palace Atheletic club tomorrow night. The Horton law would be observed to the letter, he said. The men will be permitted to go on sparring only in strict accordance with the Horton law, and as soon as there is any slugging the bouts will be stopped and the men arrested. A mere bloody nose, however, will not be taken as evidence of slugging.

SOME NOMINATIONS.

Several Enlisted Men Will Receive Commissions.

Treasury—Frank A. Leach, of California, to be superintendent of the mint, San Francisco; William M. Lynch, of Louisiana, to be assayer of the mint, at New Orleans.

Justice Henry M. Hoyt, of Pennsylvania, to be assistant attorney general.

War—Sergt. T. M. Anderson, Jr., Fourth cavalry, to be second lieutenant; Corporal J. E. Hunt, Eighth cavalry, to be second lieutenant; Second Lieut. V. A. Caldwell, Twenty-fifth infantry, to be first lieutenant.

RICH FREAK DEAD.

Millionaire Richardson Dies in "Spite House."

New York, June 8.—Joseph Richardson, an eccentric millionaire, died here today. He made his fortune in railroad building and was closely associated with the Vanderbilts and Goulds. He constructed large sections of the Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain and Mexican Central railroads. He came as a poor boy from England. Mr. Richardson's fortune has been estimated at $20,000,000.

He dressed more like a tramp than a wealthy man and lived and died in a house which was only five feet wide. This place has been called "Spite house." It was built because the surrounding property owners refused to meet Mr. Richardson's terms for the narrow lot. He afterwards refused fabulous sums for the little piece of ground on which his house stood amid the tall houses on the best part of Lexington avenue. His greatest aversion was to seeing his name in print.

BRITISH CONSUL DEAD.

New Orleans, June 8.—Charles L. St. John, consul of Great Britain at New Orleans, died this morning of meningitis, after an extremely brief illness Mr. St. John was a scion of the house of Bolingbroke. His father was the fifth viscount of St. John. He is a twin brother of Frederick Robert St. John, her majesty's present minister to Switzerland, who was minister to Venezuela when diplomatic relations were broken off. The dead consul was 66 years of age and had been in the consular service since 1867. His wife and son are now in Paris.

SHRINERS

Supreme Lodge of United Workmen Commences Its Milwaukee Meeting.

Detroit, Mich., June 8.—Grand Potentate Harrison Dingman and the imperial council of Mystic Shriners were escorted to the Masonic temple today and formally welcomed to Detroit by Mayor Maybury. The march from the potentate's headquarters, the Russell house, to the temple was a gay spectacle and the rich and varied costumes of the several companies of Arab patrols who formed the escort, were picturesque in the bright June sunlight. Each temple represented by patrols was headed by a band of music. The grand potentate, officers and members of the imperial council rode in open carriages and tallyhos. Prominent in the patrols were Ismaila temple, of Buffalo; Murat, of Indianapolis; Zabrah, of Minneapolis; Medinah, of Chicago; Zemzem, of Erie, Pa.; Mecca, of New York; Alma, of Wisconsin, and Moslem, of Detroit.

The first session of the imperial council in the auditorium of the Masonic temple lasted from 10 o'clock to noon. It was strictly a star chamber session. Mayor Maybury delivered one of his unctuous addresses of welcome. He gave the visiting shriners the freedom of the city and authorized them to take anything in sight they wanted. Supreme Potentate Dingman then presented Mayor Maybury with a strand of rope, tied at both ends with ribbon, with the suggestion that he hang on to the rope and also to his present office. The only business transacted at the session, except the announcement of the committees, was the fixing of mileage and per diem of the delegates.

Steamer excursions and suppers at the St. Clair flats are on the social program for this afternoon.

UNITED WORKMEN.

Will Have Some Knotty Problems at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, June 8.—The twenty-fourth annual meeting of the supreme lodge Ancient Order of United Workmen of the United States and Canada, opened in Milwaukee at 10 o'clock this morning with all the supreme officers and members of standing committees, as well as about 160 delegates. The sessions, which are held in the lodge hall of the University building, will continue from day to day for a week or ten days.

It is understood there is an unusually large amount of legislative work in hand, including final action upon a move made by the grand lodge of the order in Ontario to secede from the supreme body, and, doing away with all name and reference to the supreme lodge, conduct a grand lodge of its own in the Dominion, independent of the order in the "states."

This, it is claimed by the supreme officers, would be tantamount to open rebellion and strong efforts are being made to avoid such results. Action upon the matter was postponed by the grand body in Canada until the matter could be fully heard before the supreme body in its Milwaukee session at this time.

AMERICAN TOBACCO CO.

Long Expected Litigation Commenced in New York.

New York, June 8.—The case against the officers and directors of the American Tobacco company, indicted fifteen months ago for a conspiracy, was begun in the court of general sessions today before Judge Fitzgerald. The ten defendants in the case are: James B. Duke, president; William H. Butler, vice president; Josiah Browne, secretary; Charles G. Emery, treasurer, and William A. Marburg, Lewis Ginter, George Arents, George Gail, Benjamin M. Duke and George W. Watts, directors.

Josiah Browne was the only defendant in court. The others are scattered all over the world, but the case can go on without them, as the offense is only a misdemeanor and their presence is not required. The work of choosing a jury was begun. It is said it will occupy the entire day.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Appleton, Wis., June 8.—The Wisconsin Federation of Labor convened here today for a three days' session with fifty delegates present, representing sixty trades unions. Tonight the state organizer, F. G. Webber, of Milwaukee, will deliver a public address to workingmen. Special effort will be made during the session to organize unions among the various trades in this city. The Oshkosh Garment Workers' Union No. 126 is represented by Miss Angie Sanborn, the first woman delegate ever accredited to the Wisconsin Federation of Labor.

IOWA WOODMEN MEET.

Marshalltown, Iowa, June 8.—The seventh anniversary log rolling of the Woodmen of the World, of Iowa, is in session here with a large attendance. A business meeting, election of officers and a public parade were the features of the forenoon, with field programs this afternoon. Cedar Rapids was chosen for next year's meeting. G. L. Mentzer, of Cedar Rapids, was elected president.

INDIANS

Sheriff Gibb Will Try to Arrest Chief White Bull Tomorrow.

Military Authorities Busy Rounding Up the Strolling Bucks.

Several White Men Have Been Killed But No Indians Punished.

Miles City, Mon., June 8.—In the Indian situation no new developments are looked for before Wednesday. Sheriff Gibb and his party are well on their way for the reservation, and will arrive there late tonight or Wednesday morning. He expects to arrest White Bull, a distinguished chief of one of the bands of Cheyennes. Chief White Bull has a large band of followers who are willing to obey his command, so if he does not feel inclined to give himself up there will be trouble sure, as Sheriff Gibb and the stock inspectors are brave men, and said they were going after these Indians and were going to get them if they had to put up a fight for them.

No reply has yet been received from Washington in answer to county attorney's message of last evening to Senator Carter, requesting military authorities at the reservation to co-operate with the civil authorities in making these arrests. The military authorities have been kept busy for the last two days rounding up stray bucks that are off the reservation. They found a band of about thirty Cheyennes near Praton ranch on Rosebud creek, about thirty miles away from the reservation, and it is said that there were two Crows and ten Sioux Indians in this bunch, and that Yellow Hair, one of the Indians that the sheriff has warrants for, was also there.

Other bands are still off the reservation. The country is rough. The Indians can travel faster than the soldiers. In the last few days a number of white men have been killed by the Indians. Many times they have been arrested but not a single Indian has paid the penalty of hanging or imprisonment, owing to the prosecuting attorney not being able to get evidence to convict.

INHUMAN CRUELTY.

How the Philippine Monks Were Roasted Alive.

Vancouver, B. C., June 8.—Further interviews with officers of the steamer Hupeh, now in port elicit the fact that twenty-five Roman Catholic monks were roasted by the rebels in the Philippine Islands, and not by Spanish troops, as previously reported. The information was furnished by a prominent resident of Ilo-Ilo, in the group of islands and corroborated by a foreign consul. In consequence of cruelties practiced by the Spanish troops on the rebels, or those suspected of being in sympathy with the rebel cause, the rebels in revenge perpetrated acts of cruelty on the helpless monks who came in their clutches.

The customary mode of roasting sucking pigs in the island is by thrusting a bamboo through the pig and then fastening it to an iron and roasting it over a slow fire. This was done to the monks, the bamboo being thrust through them while they were alive. Previous to the voyage to the spot, the Hupeh made a trip from Hong Kong to Ilo-Ilo and it was just previous to this voyage that the acts reported occurred near Manila.

DUTY OF TWO DOLLARS.

White Pine Rate Fixed By the Senate.

Washington, June 8.—In the senate yesterday, Mr. Vest's amendment to except white pine lumber from the $2 rate was lost 20 to 18. The negative vote included eight Democrats, viz: Bacon and Clay of Georgia, McEnery of Louisiana, McLaurin and Tillman of South Carolina, Martin of Virginia, Rawlins of Utah, and White of California. Heitfeld (Pop.) Idaho, who has been voting with the Democrats voted no. Carter (Rep.) Mont., voted yes, and Quay (Rep.) Pennsylvania, was paired for the amendment. Allen (Neb.), Harris of Kansas, Kyle of South Dakota, (Pops.) voted yea as did Cannon of Utah, and Mantle of Montana (Silver Republicans.)

Mr. Allison offered a new paragraph, which was agreed to, placing a duty on boxes of fruit at 30 per cent ad valorem; when such boxes are exported they may be reimported at one-half their rate. The house rate on manufactures of osier or willow of 50 per cent was restored. The lumber paragraph as a whole was then agreed to; also the paragraphs on clapboards, shingles and chair cane heretofore passed over. Mr. Allen then moved to substitute the provisions of the Wilson bill for the entire lumber schedule. Rejected 21 to 37.

SHOT FOR COWARDICE.

New York, June 8.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Havana says: A Spanish captain and two lieutenants were tried by courtmartial in La Cabana fortress and sentenced to be shot for cowardice in having after eleven days' siege surrendered the government forts at Cascorro, in Eastern Cuba, to the patriot forces of Gen. Callixto Garcia.

A WOMAN LAWYER.

Anderton, Ind., June 8.—Mrs. Harriet Wilkie, of Wood, has been admitted to the Madison county, Ind., circuit and superior court bars over the protest of Attorney John B. Eler, of this city, who protested on the point of constitutionality. The case has been under advisement for some days, and this ruling is a very important precedent, as this is the first time the question of the legality of a woman practicing law has ever been brought up in this state.

Death grimly bars the passage-way through the door of happiness for thousands upon thousands of wistful women. The woman whose nerves are racked by pain, and whose strength is sapped by debilitating drains, due to weakness and disease of the organs peculiar to women, cannot be happy. She is not only shut out from happiness, but death daily confronts her. Maternity, to a woman thus afflicted, is fraught with great danger. Even if she escapes with her life, it is only to live a martyr to untold agony. This is needless. Thousands of women have found a sure, and certain remedy and have spoken in no uncertain words of its almost miraculous action.

This remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly upon the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It gives them health and vigor. It stops weakening drains, allays inflammation and soothes pain. The nerves, no longer tortured, resume their natural function of directing the healthy action of all the organs of the body. Under its benign influence the weak, sickly, nervous, fretful invalid, becomes a robust, capable, helpful, amiable wife, fitted for the duties of motherhood. All good druggists sell it.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. J. N. Messler, of 1793 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York, N. Y., "I was given up by some of the best physicians in this city. They said there was no cure for me—unless I would go to a hospital and have an operation performed. I could not walk across the room for the pain in my side. I thought I would die. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and after I had taken three bottles I could work, walk, and ride. I could write a year and not praise your medicine enough."

Dr. Pierce's book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser" is a treasure in any family. It contains 1008 pages and 300 illustrations. A copy FREE to every person who will send to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. For cloth binding, send 31 stamps.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Chief Justice Start in a Sustaining Mood.

St. Paul, June 8.—There was but one reversal in seven decisions handed down by Chief Justice Start of the supreme court yesterday. That was the case of the Merchants' Insurance company, appellant, against W. S. Herber et al., defendants, and William Wright, bondsman.

Herber was the agent for the insurance company in Minneapolis. His appointment as sole agent dated from May 1, 1893; prior to that time he had been in partnership with a man named Wilson, and together they had been agents for the company for a number of years. It appears that they were indebted to the company for premiums collected. When Herber retired as the agent of the company in October, 1894, he was still indebted to the company $891.21, and the company went after the bondsmen, of whom Wright was one. Wright fought the case and claimed that the money Herber had collected and paid to the company during the time he was on Herber's bond had been applied on the payment of back debts, and demanded that it be applied on the debts for which he was liable as bondsman, because it had been earned and collected during that time. The company contended that the general rule providing that a surety cannot direct the application of payments made by his principal and that he is bound by any application made by the principal and the creditor of either, applied to this case.

Wright was sustained by the district court, but the supreme court reverses the order.

In the case of the Minneapolis Trust company as assignee of Martin Ring, insolvent, appellant, against school district No. 5 of Pine county, respondent, the court holds that under the insolvency laws of the state an assignment for the benefit of creditors must be made by the insolvent's own hand, and this power cannot be delegated to any other power.

Other decisions: Charles B. Parker, appellant, against John Bradford, respondent. Judgment affirmed. Start, C. J. Bernard Silberstein, as Silberstein & Bondy, and D. D. Crowley, under the firm name of Crowley Electric company, respondent, against the Duluth News Tribune company, appellant. Judgment affirmed. Start, C. J. John Webster, respondent, against Andrew C. Hedberg et al., appellants. Order affirmed. Start, C. J. Lizzie H. Francis, respondent, against Robert P. Lewis, appellant. Order affirmed. Start, C. J. Fred Pell, respondent, against Matthew C. Burke, appellant. Order affirmed. Start, C. J.

WORKMEN'S INSURANCE.

Growth of Such Companies Throughout Germany.

Washington, June 8.—Some valuable statistics relative to the growth in Germany of the workingmen's insurance system have been received at the state department from United States Consul Stern at Hamburg. These societies insure against sickness, accidents and old age, and in the opinion of the consul have had a beneficial influence upon the economical and social position of the German working classes.

He says that in a country like Germany where wages allow but a small fraction of the laboring classes to put by something for a rainy day a great deal has been accomplished by this system which he hopes may be extended to other countries. In ten years from 1885 to 1895 claims to the amount of $294,015,824 have been paid to 25,061,620 persons, and $250,000 per day is disbursed in such benefits.

ANALINE OILS EXEMPT.

Washington, June 8.—United States Minister Quinby, at The Hague, reports to the state department that the Dutch government has by royal order exempted analine oils from import duty.

CONFLICT

Spanish Marines and Americans and Mexicans Fight About Cuban Affairs.

Row Occurred at Vera Cruz But Was Stopped By the Police.

Many Arrests Made But Consuls Secured the Release of All.

New York, June 8.—A dispatch to the Herald from Mexico says: A conflict has occurred at Vera Cruz between twenty marines of the Spanish gunboat Nueva Espana and J. Lang and Charles Holbrook, of Texas, and about a score of Mexicans who sympathized with the Americans. The Texas men used their knives and the marines their bayonets. The Mexicans were not all armed, but they rendered effective assistance to the Americans.

The trouble was ended only by the appearance of a large force of police and a company of 100 soldiers ordered out by the authorities. The fight was caused by the marines who shouted "Viva Cuba Espanola" in the streets. This was answered by cries of "Cuba Libre" from the Americans. They were immediately attacked by the Spanish and would unquestionably have been killed had it not been for the assistance of the citizens of Vera Cruz, who seeing their peril and noting the fact that they were outnumbered hastened to their assistance.

The police arrested the whole party, but the consuls of both nations interfered in their countrymen's behalf and all were released.

GOLD MINING CONVENTION.

The Denver Meeting Will Be a Success.

Denver, Col., June 8.—The great number of favorable responses now received daily assures an immense attendance at the international gold mining convention which will meet here July 7. Delegations have been appointed by the governor and various organizations named in the call for a number of states in all sections of the Union. Every state west of the Mississippi will be represented by large delegations, while thus far every state east and south interested in any department of mining has either selected delegates or given notice in advance of ample representation. According to the basis of representation, which embraces state, county and municipal organizations and all mining and commercial and general industrial associations at the present rate of appointments, it can safely be said that delegates will be named by thousands during the intervening four weeks.

Many inquiries accompanying the lists sent in indicate the intention of the people to come West on this occasion. Besides the attractions offered by the convention, the low railway rates from Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and Fort Worth furnish extraordinary inducements to a Western trip at a favorable time. Special rates will also be given for excursions through the state, while the Rio Grande Western will make reduced rates to Salt Lake and other points. The excursions to the working mines will be a feature of the convention.

ALIEN LABOR BILL.

Canadians Are Agitating a Measure of That Sort.

Ottawa, Ont., June 8.—The house of commons has passed the alien labor bill. The bill is a fac-simile of the American bill, with two exceptions. In the first place, while the American law can be put in force by a custom house officer, the Canadian act can only be forced by the attorney general of the Dominion, or somebody whom he authorizes to do so. In the second place, the act only applies to the United States.

As already said, the act will never be put in force, but be used as a measure of getting some satisfactory arrangement with the United States.

AN ENGLISH VIEW.

London, June 8.—The St. James' Gazette this afternoon, commenting upon the dispute between the Japanese and Hawaii, which it describes as a "corrupt little republic run by a handful of American filibusterers," says: As Hawaii has no resting power, the question arises, will the United States government see its protege through its trouble? The Japanese may land an armed party at any moment. Then what will the Philadelphia do? Japan, since she smashed the Chinese, is believed to be spoiling for a fight with a white power, and she may find America ready to oblige her sooner than she expects.

A RECORD LOST.

Chicago, June 8.—To the carelessness of the graduate committee having charge of the Western inter-collegiate athletic games, J. H. Mayhury, of the university of Wisconsin, is indebted for the loss of the honor of having created a world's record in the 220-yard run. Careful measurement reveals the fact that the course was twenty-two inches short of the required distance.

CAIRO'S BAD BLAZE.

Cairo, Ill., June 8.—Fire today destroyed $80,000 worth of property, including the new Baptist church and annex, the Halliday warehouse and contents, Glynn's transfer stables with twenty-six head of horses and several dwellings. The loss was only partly insured.

MONEY MAKING.

Munyon Teaches You to Doctor Yourself.

L. M. Sherman, professor of dancing, at 248 Fourth Avenue, South Minneapolis, Minn., says: "I am a convert to the efficacy of Munyon's Remedies because of their beneficial effect on me. I had been troubled with rheumatism in my elbows for a long time. I bought one bottle of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure and used it according to directions. The result was all I could have desired. The pain in my elbows and through my arms left as if some wizard had exercised it, and I am absolutely and entirely rid of it."

Where you are in doubt, a personal letter to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa., will be answered with free medical advice for any disease.

GOTHAM'S GOLGOTHA.

Old Trinity Cemetery Disturbed By Building Excavating.

New York, June 8.—A human skeleton and bushels of bones have been found by workmen who were excavating for the foundations of Astor's 30-story building on the site of the old structure at Broadway and Rector street, in which Jay Gould and Russell Sage used to have their offices.

At first the workmen thought they had discovered a clew to some great crime, but a bystander declared it was only the overflow from Trinity churchyard, which embraced what is now Rector street and the land south for several hundred feet, while to the west it ran down to the North river in a lawn-like park. These bones, he declared, may have been those of illustrious New Yorkers, for some of the first families of Trinity parish who had been interred there were evidently overlooked when the contents of the southern portion of the churchyard were taken up to make room for Rector street and adjoining improvements.

The skeleton lay facing the east fully six feet below the lowest foundation stones of the Gould building. It was below the sewers of Broadway—lower than the private vaults of old Trinity, not fifty feet away.

SOUTH AMERICANS.

Visit Washington and See President McKinley.

Washington, June 8.—The South American commercial tourists paid their first visit to the national capital today. Unfortunately the weather conditions were not favorable to sightseeing, as a cold, penetrating rain was falling. The party arrived from Baltimore at 8.45 o'clock and was received by a committee of the Washington board of trade. Of the South American ministers only Ministers Mendonca of Brazil and Meron of Argentine were there to greet their compatriots.

From the station the visitors were driven directly to the magnificent congressional library. The program for the day also includes visits to the capitol and the executive mansion, where President McKinley will receive them.

DUNKARDS STILL GATHEING.

Frederick, Md., June 8.—Special trains over both the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio railways continue to bring large numbers of German Baptists, or "Dunkards," to attend the annual meeting now in session here. The quaint costumes worn by many of them are seen in every part of the city, and every hour of the past forty-eight, save those needed for sleep, has been given up to the discussion of subjects of interest to the sect. The annual business session was formally opened this morning by Elder L. W. Teeter, of Hagerstown, Ind., moderator; Elder Daniel Hays, of Broadway, Va., reading clerk; Elder David Eby, of Illinois, assistant, and Elder J. L. Moore, of Mt. Morris, Ill., writing clerk.

LORNE SAYS SOMETHING.

London, June 8.—The marquis of Lorne, son-in-law of Queen Victoria and former governor general of Canada, is the author of a lengthy and eulogistic review of the progress and present position of Canada, published in the Daily Graphic today. Dealing with the vast mining resources of the Dominion, he says: "The half-veiled proposal to repudiate debts owing to the British investors, heard from the platforms of some of Bryan's supporters in the election contest, should make us cherish more than ever the field of investment in our colonies."

EXCLUSIVE DUTIES OBJECTIONABLE.

Valencia, June 8.—Serious disturbances have occurred at Benicarlo and Chelva, this province, on account of the octroi duties. At Benicarlo a man attempted to blow up a house with a bomb, but it exploded prematurely and dangerously wounded the man.

SPAIN'S SHAKY CABINET.

Madrid, June 8.—The Epoca, an official organ, says it does not deny the possibility of changes in the cabinet adding, however, that it is impossible for the duke of Tetuan, the minister for foreign affairs, to resign, in view of the position of the negotiations between Spain and the United States.

A CHEERING REVIVAL.

Portland, Ore., June 8.—The board of directors of the Oregon Railway and Navigation company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1 per cent on preferred stock, payable July 1. This is the first dividend the company has paid in several years.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Disobedience of orders caused a bad wreck on the Omaha road near Hudson, Wis., yesterday. A way freight, west bound, ran into an east bound work train and five men were killed, two fatally injured and some others seriously hurt. The company's loss will be over $60,000.

A boiler exploded yesterday in the print works of Noriega Bros., in Pueblo, Mexico, causing the death of twenty or more persons, the number not being positively known as it has been impossible to remove the debris caused by the explosion. WOMEN BICYCLISTS

Same Old Crowd Starts at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., June 8.—The first day's racing in the women's interstate 6-day bicycle race brought out a crowd of over 4000 people. The contestants are Dottie Farnsworth, of Minneapolis; Lizzie Glaw, of Chicago; Ida Mack, of Cleveland; Nellie Brown, of Rochester, and Lillie Harp, of Minneapolis. The prizes aggregate $1000, and the starters will ride for two hours each day.

Rain stopped the contest after twenty-six and one-half miles had been covered by the three leaders, Farnsworth, Glaw and Mack, who tied for first place. At the end of the first hour Farnsworth, Glaw, Mack and Brown in the order named, had wheeled twenty miles, breaking the world's record of nineteen miles ten laps for the first hour of a 12-hour race outdoors, made a year ago by Farnsworth at Winnipeg. In a mix-up just as the riding was stopped Glaw, Mack and Harp received severe bruises and their wheels were wrecked.

STRONGER

Wheat Made an Advance of Over One Cent Here Today.

Damage By Frost in the Northwest Cause of Early Strength.

Larger Increase in the Visible Than Expected Aided the Bulls.

Wheat opened active and strong with first sales at a good advance. There was considerable nervousness at Chicago over the belief that Armour was a large holder of July and on the small stocks there, not over 5,000,000 bus of all grades. To the crop reports, however, was due most of the strength, advices from St. Paul indicating much damage by frost throughout Minnesota and the Dakotas. Northwest receipts were comparatively small, 330 cars against 907 last week and 650 the year before. On the other hand the world's shipments were large, and an increase on passage of 440,000 bus was reported. The market grew stronger on the posting of the visible supply figures, showing 2,447,000 bus decrease. This was much more than expected.

Chicago receipts since Saturday were 15 cars, and 174,000 bus were inspected out of store. The world's shipments of wheat to Europe last week were 6,680,000 bus, of which Russia furnished 3,520,000 bus and this country and Canada 2,000,000 bus, the small remainder of 560,000 bus being sent out by the Danubian provinces. Export clearances of wheat and flour from the Atlantic coast since Saturday amounted to 530,000 bus. The total quantity now in the visible supply is 24,450,000 bus against 20,147,000 at the corresponding date last year.

July wheat opened ⅝c up at 70¼c, sold up to 70⅝c, reacted to 70⅜c but quickly recovered and ruled strong and advancing, selling at 71⅛c during the last fifteen minutes. The close was firm with buyers at 71⅛c, an advance of 1⅝c for the day. The mills bought 25,000 bus of cash stuff at 1¾c over July, and the shippers took 12,000 bus at ⅞c over July. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72¾c, No. 1 northern, cash, 72c; July, 71¼c bid; September, 68⅞c bid. No. 2 northern, 69½c. No. 3, 64¾@65⅞c. Rejected, 48½@52½c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 72½c; No. 1 northern, 72c. Rye, 34½c. No. 2 oats, 21c; No. 3 oats, 20½c. Flax, 76¾c.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 8.—Traders who have ignored the rapidly decreasing stocks of wheat and sold the old crop options short had a taste today of what the result might be. July wheat closed 2¼c higher than Saturday while September and December lagged badly behind, gaining only a cent. The advance was almost entirely on the July scare, the shorts becoming alarmed at the possibility of a squeeze and as the suggestion that a well-known operator might show his hand in this direction any day. Outside of this the news did not favor an advance. Foreign advices and domestic shipping demand were both quiet and crop news favorable. The Orange Judd farmer report agreed with Thoman in a crop of 160,000,000 bus larger than last year and the cold weather appeared to cause no alarm. The visible decrease of 2,500,000 bus and the prospect of a world's decrease tomorrow of 4,000,000 in our already depleted supplies were the important factors. If trade was more active a runaway bull market in July wheat might be the consequence.

Corn and oats rallied sharply, corn advancing a cent, on buying of shorts induced by the cold weather, but eased off at the close on predictions of warmer weather tonight. Reliable advices are that considerable damage has already been done.

Provisions improved on good local buying while packers were about the only sellers. With present corn outlook provisions ought to do better.

Puts, July wheat, 68@68¼-⅜c.

FATAL LABOR RIOT.

Strikers Attack Mine Officials and Are Shot.

Pontiac, Ill., June 8.—A labor riot occurred at Minkok today. All the miners there have been on a strike since May 1. During the last week a few men have been working against the wishes of the majority. Today while Superintendent Morgan and one of the bosses, Joseph Erbeland, were escorting one of the men to work a crowd of miners interfered. A fight ensued and Morgan and Erbeland commenced to shoot, killing instantly a young married miner named John Wotoski and wounding another. This so enraged the miners that they attacked Morgan and Erbeland with clubs and stones and beat them badly. Morgan may not live. The town is excited and there is no telling where the trouble may end.

VALUABLE PATENT.

Workman Invents a New Casting Annealing Process.

St. Louis, June 8.—Richard King, superintendent of the steel works in Belleville, Ill., has invented and patented a new process for annealing castings which, its claimed, will revolutionize the iron and steel industry. Mr. King says with his process the cost can be cut in two. He exhibited his work to a number of iron and steel men and they told him his discovery was one of the most important in the history of iron manufacture.

IOWA G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

Marshalltown, Iowa, June 8.—The twenty-third annual state encampment of the G. A. R. and allied orders opened here with drizling rain. The skies cleared towards noon, however. All incoming trains were crowded and fully 5000 strangers arrived. The forenoon was occupied by the various organizations with receptions, committee conferences, etc., and the afternoon was devoted to visiting the state soldiers' home, hospital and grounds. Numerous camp fires occur tonight. Tomorrow will be the big day of the meeting.

WEST END

Marked Improvement In Business Is Reported By the Merchants.

Sawmill Workers' Protective Union Will Hold Its Mass Meeting Tonight.

Col. Cody Cannot Comply With the Request as to Cody Sanatarium.

Merchants in West Duluth note a marked improvement in business in the West End this month, and while there is room for a still further increase of trade, the outlook is much more favorable than it has been for some time. There are very few unemployed men in this part of the city, those who failed to secure positions having for the most part sought other locations. The sawmills have put large sums of money in circulation, all of which has passed quickly into the regular channels of trade and created a more hopeful feeling among all classes.

MILLWORKERS MEETING.

The Sawmill Workers' Protective union will hold a mass meeting in Great Eastern hall, to which they especially invite the attendance of ladies and non-union workingmen of all classes. It will be addressed by Rev. H. H. Craig, pastor of the Oneota M. E. church, and Mr. McEwan, president of the Trades and Labor assembly. Mr. Wood of the International Cigarmakers' union, who was to have been present was forced to leave the city because of a threatened attack of typhoid fever.

CANNOT DO IT.

Mrs. Helen C. Wetmore, who has been engaged in devising means for the reconstruction of the burned Cody sanitarium on Bay View Heights, received a letter from Col. William J. Cody yesterday in response to the numerously signed petition requesting him to devote one day's receipts of his Wild West show to that purpose. Col. Cody said that he did not have the authority to give the proceeds of one of his exhibitions to that purpose, however much he would like to do so. Mrs. Wetmore and her friends have not, however, abandoned the idea of rebuilding the sanitarium, but are at work upon other plans to accomplish the desired result.

MARRIAGE TOMORROW EVENING.

August Lofgren and Miss Anna Anderson will be quietly married at the home of the bride's parents, 613 Fifty-seventh avenue west, at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, ev. A. F. Elmquist of the Swedish Lutheran church officiating. Only the immediate relatives and friends of the contracting parties will be present. Mr. and Mrs. Lofgren will leave on the night train over the St. Paul & Duluth road for St. Paul. They will visit relatives of the groom in St. Paul, Minneapolis and other towns in Southern Minnesota, after which they will return to West Duluth and begin housekeeping at 514 Fifty-seventh avenue west.

WILL PRODUCE AN OPERETTA.

The ladies of St. James' Catholic church will produce the operetta "Snow White" at Great Eastern hall tonight. The entertainment has been in course of careful preparation by the best talent in Duluth and West Duluth for some time, and a creditable performance is assured. Many tickets have already been sold, and there is every promise of a large attendance.

KRETCHMAR-LAWRENCE.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock W. E. Lawrence and Miss Emma Kretchmar will be united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, 615 Fifty-fifth avenue west. Dr. Robert Forbes will perform the ceremony. Many invitations have been issued, and a large number of friends and relatives will be in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence will make their home with the latter's mother.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

William P. Raley, the grocer at 410 Fifty-fifth avenue west, is disposing of his stock, and will retire from business.

ALL IS NOW QUIET.

No More Trouble Among the Cheyennes.

Washington, June 8.—The Indian bureau remains in ignorance of the situation among the Cheyennes at Tongue river, Mont. The latest information received from Capt. Stouch is a telegram dated Tongue River Agency, June 6, via Rosebud Agency, June 7, which reached Washington today. It is very brief, merely stating that everything is quiet on the reservation and that newspaper reports are false. This information is two days old, but the department feels no apprehension of trouble of a serious nature.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Heavy Opening in Sympathy With Foreign Marts.

New York, June 8.—The stock market opened with its usual heaviness in sympathy with the London market for Americans, in which the recessions extended to 3-4 for Louisville & Nashville. The decline here averaged about 1-2 for the leading shares, offers of the internationals and grangers being quite liberal. The losses in the industrials were quite pronounced, and transactions in them were restricted to a few stocks. Manhattan held steady on yesterday's gain, but Western Union fell off 1-2 per cent.

The selling movement was soon exhausted and a brisk rally occurred in which the Gould shares were prominent. The specialties were the features of the operations and scored decided gains. Leather, preferred, rose 1⅜c and Oregon Navigation 1 per cent. The failure of the market to react materially in consequence of the London weakness and sales by the local bears caused more general purchases for the long account by the traders. Towards 11 a. m., the general list displayed an easier tendency owing to the development of heaviness in the Gould stocks. Manhattan receded a fraction below yesterday's close. The Anthracite Coal shares did not participate in the rally and maintained general weakness.

Pressure against the general list became more pronounced after the first hour and recessions of a fraction extended throughout the list. Special bear attacks were directed against Chicago Gas, which broke 1 1-2, Tennessee Coal 1¾ and Western Union a point, the latter on the reported sale of $2,000,000 of treasury stocks for betterments. The dealers also receded on the hearing of the argument to vacate the order to examine witnesses in the coal trust in the cases at Albany. Manhattan fell 1 1-4. Leather preferred was an exception to the weakness and showed a further advance. The bond market was quiet, but higher prices were current. Louisville and New Albany consols and Missouri Pacific consols gained 2 per cent each. Sales up to noon 112,000 shares.

CALHOUN IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, June 8.—W. J. Calhoun, the special commissioner to Cuba, arrived here this afternoon and at once went to the state department. He said that his plans were unmatured, and that he did not know whether or not he would go to Nashville. When asked concerning the publication of what purports to be Consul General Lee's report on the Ruiz case, he said he had not compared the publication with the report, but that the newspaper publication looked very much like an accurate copy of Gen. Lee's report.

A BANKER ESCAPES.

Kansas City, June 8.—A special to the Star from Sioux City, Iowa, says: On motion of the prosecution, the indictments for fraudulent banking against President Oldfield of the bankrupt Commercial Savings bank of this place were today dismissed. WILL NOT BURN.

Fireproofing paints of effective quality are now prepared in different ways, of course no oily or greasy substances entering into their composition, the blending agent being simply water, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. One of the standard paints of the class is described as consisting of forty pounds of powdered asbestos, ten pounds of aluminate of soda, ten pounds of lime and thirty pounds of silicate of soda, with the addition of any nonresinous coloring matter desired, the whole thoroughly mixed with water, that is, enough of the latter for producing a perfect blend and rendering an easy application. Two or more coats of this is the rule in applying it to any wood surface, inside or outside of building. Another formula involves the use of forty pounds of finely ground glass, a like amount of ground porcelain and similarly of china clay or the same quantity of powdered asbestos and twenty pounds of quicklime. These materials are ground very fine and then mixed in sixty pounds of liquid silicate of soda, with water, as in the preceding formula. Two or more coats, if necessary, are given. Each of these paints is applied with a brush in the ordinary way, the drying being accomplished in a few hours, and, if coloring matter is desired, the above proportions are varied accordingly. Further, if used one after the other, the following solutions are effectively fire resisting, namely, a solution of silicate of soda in water and then a mixture of quicklime, asbestos and some white lead.

NERVE OF A SETTING HEN.

Fire broke out shortly before noon yesterday in a shed in the rear of 549 East Washington street, owned by George Hoffman, says the Indianapolis Sentinel. The firemen saved a life and prevented the fire from spreading. A setting hen occupied a nest in one corner of the shed and notwithstanding the fact that she was drenched with chemical matter, she refused to move. The fire was all about her, and finally one of the men picked her up and carried her, nest and all, into the alley. The hen showed her disapproval of the familiarity on the part of the fireman by cackling loudly.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), June 8.—The barometer has risen decidedly in the lake region, and is highest in Michigan. A corresponding decrease in pressure has taken place in the Canadian Northwest, Montana and the Dakotas, owing to the advance of a storm of moderate strength which has moved from British Columbia to Montana, attended by a shower in Montana and the adjoining Canadian provinces. Showers have also occurred in Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Western Minnesota and Upper Michigan. The temperature continues cool for the season in all reporting districts save Montana and Wyoming, though it has risen generally during the past twenty-four hours.

Duluth temperature at 7 a.m. today, 43; maximum yesterday, 56; minimum yesterday, 36.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Showers tonight and Wednesday; northeast winds becoming fresh.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 8.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Fair and warmer tonight and Wednesday; variable winds shifting to fresh southerly. For Minnesota: Partly cloudy and warmer tonight with local showers; Wednesday showers; fresh southeast winds.

THE OFFICIAL PAPER.

The common council last evening reelected The Herald as the official paper of the city. For this honor thanks are due the aldermen who decided, by a large majority, that The Herald was entitled to it by reason of its circulation excelling that of the other bidder, and because it is always in close touch with the people and never loses an opportunity to advocate the interests of the city.

This vote of confidence by the representatives of the people is highly appreciated, and it is sufficient to say that The Herald will continue to pursue the same policy as in the past and retain the strong endorsement which it received last evening.

LEADING THE WORLD.

The American Machinist recently sent one of its editors to England especially to investigate the subject of importations into that country and the continent of Europe of American machine tools. He has already forwarded two long articles and they give much interesting information regarding the extended and constantly growing foreign use of American labor-saving machinery.

The Iron Trade Review of May 20 had an editorial on "Machinery Exports" which quoted a Cleveland manufacturer as stating that American automatic machinery has been extensively purchased in France, but that the workmen are incompetent to use it properly; and this is a serious difficulty which American labor-saving tools have to encounter abroad. The foreign mechanic lacks the intelligence required to operate these machines; and this incidentally furnishes an answer to the statements sometimes made by philanthropists and theorists that automatic machinery is detrimental to the intellectual advancement of the mechanic. The Phiadelphia Record says that during the Columbian exposition a party of distinguished foreigners visited a large machine shop in that city. One gentleman was a manager of an important gun manufacturing establishment abroad. Presently he pointed to a certain automatic machine, and said: "Ah! We have two from your house. Very good tools." The machine was then put into operation, and soon this gentleman displayed a lively interest and great astonishment at its performance. "Ah," said he, "it is not the same. This one does all the work itself. How long since this wonderful improvement was invented?" On further examination it was found that his machines were precisely of the same design, but certain attachments sent with them, and fully explained in the circulars, which made them automatic and added tenfold to their daily value, had never been employed in the foreign shops, because the workmen did not understand how to use the Yankee gimcracks! Yet the foreman thought they were very good.

A recent issue of the National Industrial Review contained an article, headed "American Machinery Abroad," written by a traveler who had spent three months in going through the mechanical establishments of England and the continent, who reports that he carried samples to show of some light machinery, and in two weeks he took $20,000 worth of orders. He says: "In England I found the manufacturers ripe and ready for American machinery."

The United States consul at Ghent, Belgium, (H. P. Morris), states in his latest report that American labor-saving machinery is taking the lead in all branches of industry in that country, in spite of the fact that arrangements for exhibiting and selling in competition with English, German, French and other manufactures is sadly inadequate. He makes the practical suggestion that a European distributing center for American machinery should be established, and says that a neutral ground should be selected, on which French, German and other nationalities could meet without any feeling of jealousy. For such reason he selects Brussels as the most suitable location.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

The St. Cloud Times says: "The intimation given out that the state capitol commission may decide to construct that building of Georgia marble, or any other material from outside the state, should cause a unanimous protest of our people, from St. Vincent to Winona. To think that a commission representing a great state like Minnesota, with the finest granite in the world, and with other stones not surpassed anywhere in the country, should for a moment consider going outside the state for materials for the walls thereof, almost surpasses belief! If these men find that the means at their disposal is insufficient, they should refuse to go farther; they should say: 'If we cannot be permitted to use our own state's unexcelled material in its capitol building, we will resign rather than go outside!' Such a declaration on their part would meet with hearty and unanimous approval from the people. Better far that we have no new capitol at all than that that capitol be erected and stand before the world as a declaration that Minnesota's people condemn Minnesota's stone quarries!

"Out upon such pusillanimous, such contemptible, such weakling ideas! Away with such false economy! Suppose the people do save a few thousand dollars on the building, and lose untold millions in the years to come, by thus crippling our stone industries, where is the economy or common sense in such management of the people's affairs."

The St. Cloud paper is right. Minnesota contains stone that is unexcelled for building purposes, including granite of beautiful color, and the capitol should be constructed with this stone. There is no necessity for going outside the state for one foot of stone of any description. The commission should understand that the people who are paying for this building are opposed to going outside of Minnesota for any material.

NON-PARTISANSHIP WON.

There was no straight Republican or Democratic ticket in the field at Chicago yesterday. It was a judicial election, and party lines were down. The Republican ticket, which was non-partisan, and contained all the names of the old judges, was victorious. Under the non-partisan standard were anti-machine Republicans and anti-machine Democrats alike, members of the bar, business men and taxpayers from all walks of life, whose sole appeal throughout the campaign was to keep politics off the bench. The Democratic ticket omitted the names of several of the old judges, and was undoubtedly machine made. Such prominent Democrats as Judge McConnell and Clarence S. Darrow bolted, and Judge McConnell was chairman of the non-partisan campaign committee. There were other tickets on the ballot by petition—the silver and anti-machine, united silver, Citizens' and Lawyers' league, people's and constitutional rights. All these drew votes from the Democratic ticket.

The result must be highly gratifying to every man who desires to see the judiciary kept out of politics and men elected to the bench because of their legal ability and judicial qualities, and not because of their political activity.

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

The Chicago Chronicle says it was thought that the introduction of bicycle riding would work a change for the better in the form and color of men's clothes, the uniform ugliness of which has been a subject of a great deal of pain even to those not aesthetes, but the reverse has been the case. It is true that the long trouser, so inexpressibly bad, has been to a certain extent superseded by the knickerbocker, which is better, but the costume as a whole is far from being an improvement. In fact, the average man or woman upon a wheel is a fright of so terrible a character that it is a wonder that all the clocks in town have not gone on a strike and ceased to run.

The average man who rides a wheel thinks it necessary to get himself up in a costume the ugliest that can be imagined. It is shapeless, and, in the Chronicle's opinion, the combination of colors is sufficient to give a cat fits. The materials, texture and colors of the average costume are simply shocking, and they are making our streets and boulevards moving panoramas of hideousness. The women's dresses are somewhat better, but there is vast room for improvement in these also. The ungainly, crouching attitude of many riders and the strained expression of their faces add to the uncouth ensemble and tend to keep many from adopting this graceful and expeditious means of locomotion.

The expenses of administering the municipal government of Philadelphia have increased in ten years from $8,483,000 in 1886 to $22,500,000 in 1896, and, according to the newspapers, "the thoughtful citizen is appalled at the possibility of a similar ratio of increase in the future." But what else, asks the Kansas City Star, can be expected in a city where the people are politically divided into a combine, a new combine and an anti-combine in one party, and an organization as corrupt as Tammany and ready to trade with either of the divided factions in the other party? This situation invites the spoilsmen to pluck and pillage to their hearts' content. But this increase in the cost of municipal government it not limited to Philadelphia, and though the cause of complaint is less aggravated in some other cities, it is sufficiently present in all to excite alarm.

THE CITY ENGINEER.

The nomination of Thomas McGilvray as city engineer was confirmed by the council last evening, and the long and somewhat bitter contest over the office may be said to be ended, because it is not likely that the present incumbent will refuse to hand over the office and records to Mr. McGilvray. The Herald congratulates the aldermen upon having thus decisively settled the vexed question, which was creating complications of a rather serious nature.

Mr. McGilvray is a young man, but he has had considerable experience in engineering work and should fill the office in an efficient manner.

In a recent article on the Rainy Lake gold fields reference was made to the new steamer Keenora, to be placed on the Lake of the Woods by Graham, Horne & Co., of Fort William, but by a typographical error the dimensions of the vessel were misstated. Her dimensions are: Length, 126 feet; beam, 30 feet; beam on water line, 25 feet. The Keenora is fitted up in as fine style as any passenger boat on the lakes.

The effort made a year ago to preserve a portion of Elmwood, the home of James Russell Lowell in Cambridge, Mass., as a public park, is to be renewed this year under more favorable auspices. The metropolitan park commission has agreed to give one-third of the $35,000 required, thus reducing the amount to be raised to about $23,000. Five thousand dollars has already been raised by private subscription.

A personal friend of ex-Secretary Carlisle says that after twenty-five years of public service he retired from the treasury department in debt, while within the last three months he has received in actual cash for professional services $6000, or nearly as much as a year's salary for a cabinet officer and $1000 more than the salary of a congressman.

RELIC OF NAPOLEON.

A peculiar gun was recently found on the battlefield of the River Moskva, and presented by the Russian Capt. Alexander Von Meyer to the military governor of Paris for the French Artillery museum, says the London Times. This gun, which must have been lost in Russian during the ill-fated campaign of 1812 was of the flint-lock type, but evidently altered into the percussion type later on. On the gun stock there is a silver plate surrounded by a laurel wreath, and the following inscription in French: "Given by the First Consul to Citizen Charlin sharpshooter of the Twenty-second light brigade, for bravery and courage shown at the siege of Joppa, in storming the breach and scaling the walls."

EXPENSES OF THE SCHOOLS.

Mr. Simonds Again Urges Necessity of Retrenchment.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The revenues of the board of education of Duluth for operating the schools are derived entirely from the following sources:

First—A permanent annual tax of 1 mill on the dollar on the valuation of real and personal property in the district, called the local or county mill tax.

Second—A permissible annual tax levy of not to exceed 9 mills on the dollar of valuation, the amount of which levy, within the limits named, is determined by the school board. This is often called the special school tax.

Third—A variable fund apportioned by the superintendent of public instruction from the available current school funds in the state treasury, according to the number of scholars enrolled in the public schools of the various counties and known as the state apportionment. These funds come in considerable measure from the state 1 mill tax.

Fourth—A fund known as the county apportionment, which is variable and comes from certain fines, penalties, etc., paid to the county. It is a small item.

The district has no other sources of revenue for operating the schools. Other funds are collected for building, interest, sinking fund, etc., but none for carrying on the schools.

The first and second items named above, and in some measure the third, depend upon the payment of the annual tax levies, and any inability or neglect to pay these is felt at once in lessening the revenues for school purposes. For some years past the percentage of unpaid taxes has been on the increase, and in my opinion this circumstance should have long since arrested the attention of the school board, and produced a decided effect in economizing school expenditures, in some measure at least commensurate with the ability of the people to meet these obligations. The policy of the board in fact, however, seems to have been otherwise. As the payment of taxes fell off the amount of the levy was increased not only to keep pace with earlier years but to add at least 25 per cent per pupil of average attendance to the cost of instruction, as will be shown later in this communication. Beginning with 1890 these levies have been as follows, expressed in mills on the dollar of valuation: 1890, 2.8; 1891, 2.6; 1892, 2.7; 1893, 5.8; 1894, 7.5; 1895, 7; 1896, 8.9.

During the past few months the attention of the board has been plainly called to our financial situation by many citizens and for a time there seemed to be some disposition to curtail expenditures and to the efficiency of the schools to the highest degree warranted by the resources at command. But this interest has died out, and how far the levies will be increased next year under more favorable auspices. The secretary of the board, however, thought matters were not in such bad shape and prepared a statement over his signature and submitted it for the information of the board. The figures shown on this statement, while in the main correct, are full of minor errors, and the manner in which they are grouped is misleading and the conclusions drawn are unwarranted. I reproduce below all figures for 1892. Similar tables are made for 1892, 1894, 1895, 1896. My data of comparison does not extend back to 1892.

General fund	$250,000 00
Building fund	75,000 00
Sinking fund	25,000 00
	$350,000 00
Amount collected 1894-5—
Special mill tax	$192,438 75
One mill tax	62,630 78
State apportionment	25,967 05
County apportionment	1,002 35
	$282,088,93
Building fund tax	78,070 17
Sinking fund tax	20,486 27
	$381,664 37

113 per cent of general fund, 115 per cent of building fund, 82 per cent of sinking fund, 369 per cent upon total levy. Special school tax collected, 77 per cent; 1 mill, 25 per cent; together 102 per cent of 1893 levy.

From conversations I have had with different persons there can be no doubt that the impression made by the above on the mind of the public was that the collections mentioned for 1894-5 were made from the stated tax levies and that no ground existed for any special cutting down in the expense of the schools so long as the supply of money was so ample. The following, based on official data, is a much more accurate statement of the condition of things for the same period:

Tax levy October, 1893—

County tax 1 mill	$ 34,959 69
Special school tax 5.8 mill	250,377 65
	$285,336 74
Building fund	77,703 32
Sinking and interest fund	25,901 07
	$388,941 13
Amount collected 1894-5 upon above and like levies for former years—
One mill tax	$ 34,959 69
Special school tax	184,056 87
	$218,087 54
Building fund	75,219 02
Sinking and interest fund	20,018 44
	$313,310 00
Also received—
State apportionment	$25,967 05
County apportionment	1,002 35
	$ 26,969 40
The amount levied to carry on the schools was	$285,336 74
The amount collected was	218,087 54
Shortage	$ 67,249 20

I have taken pains to learn what the relation of payments has been to school tax levies for the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896, and when and how fast the levies have been collected and submit the result of my investigations below.

Levy of county mill and special school tax for 1893 $285,336 74

Collected upon the same in 1894	$167,912 29
Collected upon the same in 1895	43,908 61
Collected upon the same in 1896	6,351 30
To March 1897	757 83
	218,830 03
Uncollected and delinquent	$ 66,506 71

Or 23 per cent. The same percentage of delinquency exists as to building and sinking and interest funds.

Levy of county mill and special school tax for 1894 $340,697 54

Collected in 1895	$232,300 87
Collected in 1896	45,457 75
To March, 1897	2,361 32
	280,120 00
Now unpaid on levy of 1894	$ 60,577 54

Or 18 per cent. Sinking and interest funds same proportion.

Levy of county mill and special school tax for 1895 $328,106 10

Collected in 1896	$196,298 68
To March, 1897	9,304 06
	205,602 34
Now unpaid on levy of 1895	$122,502 76

Or 37 per cent.

The county mill and special school tax levies for 1893, 1894, 1895 aggregate	$854,140 38
Now delinquent and uncollected on same	249,587 08

Or 29 per cent.

For the same years the aggregate levies for above and building and sinking and interest funds were $1,028,359 44

Amount received	741,178 91
Delinquent and uncollected	$ 287,180 53

It must be apparent from these statements that even if funds can be secured to conduct the schools for the ensuing year on the scale of expense contemplated, it will crowd the legal tax limit to the utmost and to double that levied by any other school district in the state, very soon we must call a halt. Is it not better to begin before getting closer to the brink of insolvency?

I have been looking over the school records a little to see how we are tending in these hard times; whether the policy of the board has been economical or lavish, and I confess to some surprise at the real facts. Fault has been found by some of the members of the present board because comparisons have been made with the cost of education in other cities, on the ground that the cost of operating the schools is necessarily greater here than elsewhere. While not willing to admit the validity of this plea as it wholly ignores the extent of our resources, I propose now to compare Duluth with Duluth. I have before me an official statement showing among other things the "cost per pupil of operating the schools of Duluth from 1890 to 1896, both inclusive.

1891	26 73
1892	33 15
1893	42 24
1894	37 29
1895	45 16

While the first year is not the lowest nor the last year the highest, yet the latter is 28 per cent larger than the former, and this increase of cost amounts to $62,469.35 for 1896. These results have been achieved by a board undisturbed by criticism from the public and in years when to use the language of a prominent member, "the board had been entrusted with the running of the schools without outside interference and they had always been satisfactory.

The average attendance in 1890 was 1992 and in 1896 6474, so that the interest upon the cost of construction of school houses, now $40,000 per annum, cannot be much if any in excess of that of 1890 in proportion to the average attendance. Are there any who would contend that we are better able now to provide education for the children than we were in 1890, or that the instruction given in that year would not serve the purpose well now?

Some prominent trustees have been continuously on the board for all these years. The question begins to arise as to how long this community can stand it to have these gentlemen in charge who decline to regulate their expenditures by the revenues in sight. The views of these gentlemen have found complete expression in the records of the years named and it is idle to expect a change in their official conduct. Of this they give public notice.

If the better sense of the people demands a change, it must be secured by the election of new men. It seems to me that this city owes it to itself to elect three candid fair minded men as school trustees at the election soon approaching, who may be trusted upon their records to take up this subject and do what is right in the matter of educating our children, taking everything into consideration. Get men who are concerned in the welfare of the town, not for today only, but for the future, and who will devote enough time to the schools to accomplish the best results with the means fairly available. For my part I would ask but one pledge from any candidate and that would be to so manage our schools that we can pay as we go, not only for today but for the years to come; and that the same methods be applied to the conduct of the schools that prudent men exhibit in their own affairs. It is not a question of kindergartens, superintendents or employes, but of the election of three men fresh from the people, able and disposed to look at the situation as it is and maintain keep them approximately within the income reasonably to be expected. The secretary of the board, however, thought matters were not in such bad shape and prepared a statement over his signature and submitted it for the information of the board. The figures shown on this statement, while in the main correct, are full of minor errors, and the manner in which they are grouped is misleading and the conclusions drawn are unwarranted. I reproduce below all figures for 1892. Similar tables are made for 1892, 1894, 1895, 1896. My data of comparison does not extend back to 1892.

O. H. SIMONDS.

Duluth, June 8.

THE NEW KANSAS.

Ewing Herbert in the Kansas City Star: The politicians at Washington are as blind as the politicians of Kansas were in the beginning of the unrest which overthrew them. While congressmen are fiddling away at the tariff and making spread eagle speeches their constituents are hoping for more statesmanship and less politics in legislative speech and action. The Kansas idea is epidemic. For thirty years war records have been pawed over and paraded with oratorical finish before lusty-lunged enthusiasts; but the approving yells of partisans are no longer easily provoked.

Few men care to read or hear the speeches of the law makers. They want the law to some work. The Republicans believe that the present administration will redeem every promise, but they are impatient because so much talk is indulged in. They don't like the idea of oiling and starting so much political machinery to accomplish reforms agreed upon. The fact is there are more John Wanamaker Republicans in Kansas than there are of the Quay kind. The Populists rule the state by the consent of Republicans grown tired of the old party methods.

The new Kansas is coming out of the difficulties which have beset the state. In business and politics the conservative element will rule. The wild business man and the wild partisan are unworthy of serious consideration. The great Republican majorities of old Kansas were as unreliable as the rapid growth of the boom country. No boom can come again—no 80,000 Republican majority can be hoped for, but the best men and the best party and the best principles stand a better chance at this time to rule Kansas than at any period since the birth of a free state.

The Populists, for all their vagaries, have blazed the way for improvement in the business and political life of Kansas. They have failed to improve their opportunities, but they have enabled the best men of the state to see the needs of the hour.

The withdrawal of Eastern investors and Eastern money has stimulated economy and a desire to develop home things. The Kansan is beginning to look around and find prosperity at home. He has discovered new riches in coal, stock, salt, gas, lead, zinc and oil. Investors of today invest of their own accord, without hope of a bonus. Eastern money is coming in without invitation. The people no longer cry for it. Investment in Kansas is no now a matter of sentiment. It is a matter of business. No man is putting in a cent without positive evidence that there is money in his venture. The zinc and lead country is being honey-combed with mines equipped to handle the rich ore deposits. Smelters have been built. Gas is being piped from the wells to cities. Oil is being tanked by the Standard Oil company. Cattle are being fattened in the west by the tens of thousands.

The newspapers have little to say about political prospects. In dull times and on wet days the old errand may talk politics, but more likely the price of grain or cattle or hogs is of the most concern. The local papers print market reports which give the prices not only of produce and stock, but often quote the price of oil, naphtha and gasoline. Here are items from the Register newspaper, printed at Neodesha:

The large oil storage tank will hold 12,000 barrels.

A gas illumination was given last night from a six-foot pipe forty feet high. A dozen or more towns in this section of the state have plenty of gas and the supply seems to be inexhaustible.

An out-West paper states that a leading farmer has just shipped $10,000 worth of steers to market.

In another community a wheat raiser sells his product for $4000.

Corn is yet low, but when fed to stock it brings a good price. Where the land is rented the corn is the main crop, and the renter usually has little stock to feed. He is forced to depend upon a higher price for corn before he can see better times.

But a newer Kansas is evident.

The Old Booming, Noisy, Reckless, Hurrah for Everything and Anything Kansas element has moved on West or South.

The Newer Kansas can be depended upon for solid worth and solid growth.

SETTLED

Council Authorizes the Removal of the Gray Mill Spur Track.

Commissioner McGregor Is Asked to Resign---Herald Gets the Printing.

The first thing the city council did last night was to quietly settle with little argument the city engineer matter for a time at least. The council had no sooner settled in its seats and the people in the tribunes braced themselves to enjoy all that the meeting might bring forth, when Alderman Harker moved to reconsider the resolution confirming the appointment of Thomas McGilvray as city engineer.

Alderman Jefferson moved to amend by laying the resolution over for one week for investigation. He wanted to settle it, he said, but he wanted to be sure whom he was voting for.

The amendment was lost, and the resolution was adopted by a vote of 12 to 4. The vote was as follows: Yeas—Aldermen Crasswseller, Dahl, Duren, Harker, Richardson, Rowley, Shannon, Simpson, Sang, Tischer, Trevillion, President Cochrane; nays—Aldermen Barg, Hanson, Jefferson and Stevens.

The bond of John Flood as a member of the board of public works was approved. The bill of $63, Duluth's share of the expenses for typewriting of the uniform charter commission, came up again, and was the occasion of considerable argument. Finally it was referred to the city attorney for one week. The appointment of the mayor giving Police Secretary Ed Force the rank of sergeant to look after payrolls, receive reports from poundmasters, and to do police duty at Lakeside evenings and Sundays, was received and filed, as also the appointment of D. D. McDonald as special police without pay for the Cranberry Lumber company on the lake and bay shore.

The city attorney reported that there was no legal objection to the city's setting aside the former condemnation proceedings for land for a spur-track to the pumphouse and entering new proceedings. The council thereupon appointed a set of commissioners in condemnation after an argument over the membership, consisting of John T. Dow, W. G. Joerns and J. H. Crowley.

Alderman Simpson introduced a resolution providing for the construction of a water distributing plant through the business and residence portion of the city. The matter was referred to the board of public works for a report upon the necessity and feasibility of the plan.

A large number of business men submitted to the council a protest against the spur track on Arthur avenue, near the Duluth-Superior bridge, and asked that steps be taken to have it removed. A resolution to that effect was introduced, and the city attorney reported that he could find no records of any grant to use the avenue for a track, and that he did not believe the road had any right as against the public.

Alderman Duren thought the millmen who used the track were entitled to protection, and Alderman Jefferson thought that as the city needs payrolls for its prosperity, it should have some consideration for an institution with a payroll.

Alderman Sang said that the track belongs to the railway company, and it never would give it up unless it was forced. It seemed to him the proper thing to do was to rip it out.

After more discussion the resolution to take the track out was adopted by a vote of 9 to 7.

A resolution granting permission to erect telephone polls within the city limits for a line to run to Canosia created some little stir. There was talk of "niggers" in the fence, woodchucks and other matters, and Manager Lomasney of the Duluth Telephone company and Mr. Seville, of Canosia, took part in the argument. Some scented a possible surreptitious long distance franchise. After an extended argument the request permission was granted.

The bill of Hartman & Patterson for $386 for renewals was allowed after much discussion, in which City Treasurer Voss took part, and explained the necessity of the bill.

The contract for the city printing was let to The Evening Herald for 75 cents per folio for the first insertion and 35 cents for each subsequent insertion. Aldermen Jefferson and Stevens of the committee presented a report giving the contract to the News Tribune, and Alderman Rowley presented a minority report giving it to The Herald. The minority report was adopted.

The question of allowing the April and May salary of Secretary Truelsen of the fire board at $40 per month caused a warm argument, at the end of which the matter was referred back to the board with a recommendation that the salary be fixed at $15 per month.

Alderman Duren introduced a resolution providing that as A. T. McGregor was a sub-contractor on the city's waterworks operation, he should be called upon to resign from the fire board that there might be no doubt as to the legality of the board's action. The resolution was adopted.

Alderman Simpson introduced a resolution which was adopted providing that the Duluth Salvage company shall make a report by June 15 of all its receipts and disbursements, their sources and objects, its list of stockholders and officers, a list of city officials who are or have been stockholders, and a list of its apparatus.

THE TONNING CONCERT.

A Musical Event of More Than Ordinary Significance.

The concert given at Turner hall last evening was one such as few cities, especially in this portion of the country, are privileged to have. It was remarkable in that the program was made up entirely of compositions by a Duluth musician and that the numbers were greatly varied in character and covered a wide range of musical thought. Mr. Tonning can hardly fail to attain considerable note, and possibly fame, as a composer. There is an individuality about his work which shows inherent genius, and that he is versatile was clearly shown by the variety in the numbers. His works will undoubtedly rank with those of many composers who are better known.

A romance for the violin, two vocal quartets, an intermezzo for strings, a sonata for violin and piano, three piano numbers and three songs made up the program. The intermezzo was one of the very best, having life, melody and spirit. The romance was remarkably good and the sonata no less so. The songs were all delightful. "So Blue Thine Eye" was remarkably pleasing, and the "Persian Song" was a brilliant number.

The numbers were all rendered in a manner which brought out their beauty to the best davantage. Herr Carl Riedelsberger has always since the first time he played here, held a place in the estimation of all Duluth music lovers which time cannot take from him and each appearance seems to strengthen that hold. He characterized his interpretation of Mr. Tonning's numbers with sympathy and intelligence. Mr. Tonning's rendition of his numbers was excellent.

Miss Elizabeth Spencer sang two songs. She has a soprano voice very sweet in quality and high in range and sings with fine feeling. Miss Farrell also sang and met with the same cordial reception which is always hers whenever she appears. The Temple quartet sang two numbers very pleasingly, in one Miss Shannon sang a solo with excellent effect.

TO HELP ROCKEFELLER.

Object of an Amendment Proposed By Senator Quay.

Senator Quay gave notice in the senate yesterday of an amendment to the tariff bill providing for the free admission of iron ore imported from mines owned abroad by citizens of the United States for their own use. The primary object of this amendment is to permit the importation of Cuban ore by John D. Rockefeller to supply the furnaces east of the Allegheny mountains. Some shipments of Cuban ore are now made, but they are very light and are for use in the manufacture of non-Bessemer products.

At present all large ore furnaces east of the Alleghenies are closed. None of the ore from the Lake Superior districts cross the mountains, and ore is produced here so cheap now that no foreign ores can be brought to this side of the mountains. Eastern furnaces cannot be operated with Western ores, and if they are to do any business they must get their supply from Cuba. It is to give Mr. Rockefeller an opportunity to find a market for an increased output of his Cuban mines that congress is now asked to accept Senator Quay's amendment. With a duty on ore importations from Cuba can be made for but few purposes, and the large Eastern furnaces must continue idle as long as the iron market can be supplied with ore from the Western mines.

PAYMENT IS REQUIRED.

New Rule Regarding the Canadian Gold Lands.

The Rainy Lake Journal is advised that the Canadian authorities have taken a decided stand against the blanket survey of the gold fields, and also against the plan heretofore in vogue, of applying for tracts of land, surveying them and then paying the government for the lands at one's leisure. It is stated now and evidence at hand proves it to be authentic and conclusive, that an order has been issued making it imperative that all lands heretofore surveyed, on which payment has not been made, must now be paid for by June 12 or a forfeiture of the lands will ensue.

It is also stated that any prospector who may so desire, may go on any of the lands surveyed by big syndicates like those surveyed the past winter by Duluth parties, and if a vein is located, the prospector has the right to survey the same and apply for and secure it. If this is true, and a number of resurveys on the Seine river indicate that it is so, it will make a big hole in the pockets of a lot of people in Duluth and elsewhere, who have gone into deals of that kind thinking there would be no change in the Canadian mining policy.

ROBERT J. BURDETTE.

This Noted Humorist and Lecturer Gives Good Advice to His Hearers.

"Bob" Burdette in a recent lecture said that it was not work that killed people. No one ever died from hard work. It was impure foods and bad habits that caused a large per cent of the deaths.

The coffee drinking habit has slain millions. A well known physician said a short time ago that he believed it caused more deaths every four years than the civil war. But few people know of the long train of diseases that follow the constant pouring in of the poisonous alkaloids of coffee into the stomach.

Some time ago a specialist after a great deal of study discovered that the mixing of a number of grains and their proper preparation would produce a beverage that had the deep seal brown color of Mocha coffee and the taste of the milder and more expensive grades of Java, but instead of tearing down the system it would build it up. He called it Postum Cereal Food Coffee and started in a small way at Battle Creek, Mich. Now it takes two large factories to supply the demand. Physicians who have tried it are recommending this healthful beverage as a cure for nervousness and dyspepsia. It is more economical than coffee, a 25-cent package making more than twice the amount of beverage that the same value of coffee will.

The success of Postum has led imitators to put substitutes on the market. Be sure you get the genuine. Look for the red seals and the trade mark, "It makes red blood."

Cannot Be Thoroughly Done.

Alex Fraser, who has been employed by the county to assist in the assessment of railroad lands for the purposes of taxation, left yesterday afternoon to look up Northern Pacific lands. Mr. Fraser says that there is a large amount of railroad land in the county that is of little value, but there are hundreds of thousands of acres that will be assessed at a good round figure, and that the county will derive a large revenue from the taxes paid by the railroad companies. He says that the time allowed for returning the assessments is so short that the work of looking up lands cannot be accomplished as thoroughly as it should be. The work must be completed before July 10.

Cannot Surrender It.

The Minnesota Iron company will continue to comply with the terms of its lease in the Norman mine, notwithstanding the fact that it served notice on the fee owners that it would abandon it July 1. The owners of the property objected to the proposition of the lessees to surrender the lease, and as their objections were based on strong grounds, they will continue to collect the royalty on the minimum output of the mine, whether it is operated or not.

ELECTRIC BITTERS.
Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

An Adjournment Taken.

Before any testimony had been introduced in the case of Merritt against Harris, yesterday afternoon, an adjournment was taken to June 14. Judge Moer granted the continuance at the request of the attorneys for both sides, because the latter have business before the supreme court this week. The case will be resumed next Monday.

Library Board Meeting.

The library board met last evening and elected officers as follows: Giles Gilbert, president; R. C. Mitchell, vice president, and Miss Angie Neff, secretary. The new members of the board, Messrs. W. M. Hubbard, W. P. Mars and Dr. Codding, were present.

DEAL GENTLY WITH THE STOMACH. If it proves refractory, mild discipline is the thing to set it right. Not all the nauseous physic that ever was concocted can do half as much to remedy its disorders as a few wineglassfuls—say, three a day—of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which will afford it speedy relief and eventually banish every dyspeptic and bilious symptom. Sick headache, nervousness, sallowness of the complexion, fur upon the tongue, vertigo and those many indescribable and disagreeable sensations caused by indigestion, are too often perpetuated by injudicious dosing. An immediate abandonment of such random and ill advised experiments should be the first step in the direction of a cure. The next step in the use of this standard tonic alterative, which has received the highest medical sanction and won unprecedented popularity.

THE GIBSON PICTURES.

Tonight the Gibson pictures will be presented at the Lyceum and the culmination of the work and planning of several weeks by the ladies of the Duluth Home society will be seen. That it will be a remarkably successful entertainment the final rehearsal last evening proved beyond a doubt. The pictures are charming, the selection having been made with excellent taste and discrimination, those which will please most and admit of the most clever posing having been chosen. The staging will be complete and the light effects and general arrangements will leave nothing to be desired. There will be twelve pictures in the first part and eleven in the second. During the intermission Mrs. Homer Collins will sing Sawyer's "Spanish Romance."

Those who will take part in the pictures are: Mesdames Homer Collins, A. H. Comstock, Robert Dowse, Morris Fischbein, Gamble, G. G. Hartley, R. B. Knox, B. F. Myers, J. Promberger, G. IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Last Friday a man was arrested at Winnipeg Junction, who was believed to be none other than the absconding Osnabrock agent, C. F. Ireland, of the Great Northern Railroad company. Upon being closely questioned, he told such a plausible story as to who he was that the authorities at Winnipeg Junction became convinced that he was not Ireland, and he was allowed to depart, which he did going south, headed for the Twin Cities. Since his discharge a careful examination and comparison of the description given of the Osnabrock absconder with that of the man who was arrested and allowed to depart, convinces the Winnipeg Junction authorities that they had none other than Ireland, and they are on his trail again. They feel chagrined, having had the man in their custody, that he should so completely have pulled the wool over their eyes.

The grand jury at Grand Forks presented three more indictments Saturday. Among them was one against Walter Larimore for attempting to shoot Melvine Sanders, the colored man. Larimore is under bonds and will be tried at the June term of the district court, which commences today. He will be defended by Hon. O. A. Wilcox, an attorney of Larimore. The present session of the grand jury has created consternation and alarm among the sightless porkers from various parts of the county, who, fearing indictments against them, have fled, and are now colonized in East Grand Forks, where quite a colony has already taken up a temporary residence, and have employed a special messenger to keep them advised, so far as it is possible, of the doings of the grand jury. As another jury term of the district court will be held in July, these people who are now in hiding will not gain much by appearing and giving bonds after the June term closes.

Daniel T. Stout, a prosperous farmer living near Fessenden, was in court there Saturday, charged with criminal assault on his 11-year-old daughter, Ethel. The testimony given by the little girl was of the most sensational character and spectators were excluded from the room. Stout was bound over to the district court, and, being allowed his liberty for a short time for the purpose of securing bondsmen, he disposed of most of his property and skipped.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The present outlook for a good crop is very favorable at Watertown. A heavy rain fell for two days this week, and the ground is in excellent condition for all growing crops. The wheat has fully recovered from the recent heavy frost and is growing very rapidly. Farmers are feeling very jubilant over the prospects and a great many are constructing new buildings on their farms.

Bishop O'Gorman has approved the plan of establishing a Catholic hospital at Pierre, and work will be soon commenced preparing the old Wells house, in East Pierre, for that purpose. The hospital will be opened about Oct. 1.

Farmers near James are trying to devise means to fight grasshoppers which are at work in that vicinity. Samples of the species are now in the hands of Professor Lugger of the Minnesota state farm, who will make a report today concerning them.

There are 140 school children at the government Indian school of the Yankton reservation at Greenwood.

WHAT IS YOUR TRADE?

Each Trade or Occupation Has Its Special Disease.

It is well known among medical men that certain diseases are more readily developed in certain occupations than in others. That each occupation has its attendant physical weakness. Engineers, railroad men and similar occupations suffer mostly from kidney troubles and men who are often exposed to the weather suffer from rheumatism, while clerks and professional men, in fact the army of people whose business keeps them indoors, are oftentimes great sufferers from piles and constipation. In this connection the following letter is of interest to people whose occupation will not allow sufficient outdoor exercise.

A. F. Calhoun notary public and jeweler and watchmaker of Circleville, W. Va., writes as follows:

I had been a severe sufferer from piles for years and had tried many remedies with but little benefit, when about three years ago I saw the Pyramid Pile Cure advertised and sent for it.

I was badly afflicted when I got them, but after only two applications the piles disappeared and from that day to this I have never felt a symptom of the disease.

I feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to sufferers from piles.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is free from cocaine, opium or any mineral poison, absolutely safe, pleasant and painless; sold by druggists at 50 cents per package. If there is any constipation the Pyramid Pills should be used with the pile cure. The pills are 25 cents per package.

Any druggist will tell you that the Pyramid is the best known and most successful and popular pile cure ever placed on the market and its reputation as a safe and radical cure has only resulted from the personal recommendation of people who have been cured of this distressing ailment.

Send to Pyramid company, Albion, Mich., for valuable little book on cause and cure of piles.

IN ITASCA COUNTY.

Extension of Itasca Lumber Company's Logging Railroad.

Grand Rapids, Minn., June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Active work began today on the seven-mile extension of the Itasca Lumber company's logging railway in the Bow String district. Its engine took the train of tools, supplies and the initial crew of 100 men from Deer River this morning to the scene of operations. These results are in accordance with the announcements made in The Herald correspondence from here on March 26 last, and the work seems like only the opening of a season of more important railway operations that have been looked for for several years. Though comparatively small, it gives a ray of hope to those who began to think they had waited and waited in vain.

President H. C. Akeley of the Itasca Lumber company, while here last March, said the value of the soils of Northern Minnesota for farming and live stock had something to do with their building a broad guage road with 60-pound rails, for they expect the road will be improved and extended into the Big Fork valley ere long. There is a fine crop of pine and hardwoods all ready to harvest along its line, and the roadbed of twenty-two miles from Deer River northward will be put in excellent shape this season for heavy logging trains. J. P. Sims and Chief Engineer George Cox, who represent the company here, have just returned and report that the work started off very satisfactorily.

The district court, in session here the past week, before Judge Holland, has had but six criminal cases for trial. Three of these are disposed of by pleas of guilty, as follows: Owen Kingston, for stealing corned beef, six months at Stillwater; Gid Raymond, grand larceny second degree, six months, and Patrick O'Neil, grand larceny second degree, six months. The civil calendar presents an equally unimportant grist. The adjournment will be had in two or three days.

B. & O. SUMMER BOOK.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has just issued a very handsome book for summer travel, describing the mountain resorts, springs and baths located on and adjacent to its lines; also the various watering places on the Atlantic coast. The routes for reaching them are set forth in a comprehensive and clear manner. The book is printed on fine paper, beautifully illustrated, and will prove of valuable assistance to parties contemplating a summer tour.

Copies can be had by applying to various B. & O. agents or by sending 10 cents in stamps to cover postage to J. M. Schryver, General Passenger Agent, Baltimore, Md.

JIMMY MICHAEL.

Fast Welsh Bicycle Racer Under Suspension Again.

New York, June 8.—Matters are complicated in the case of Jimmy Michael, the Welshman, who is still under suspension by the National Cyclists' union of England, although reported to have been reinstated some time since. When Michael sailed for this country the matter was under consideration by the National Cyclists' union, and they afterward notified him that he was under suspension until the matter was settled. As there is an alliance between the National Cyclists' union and this country, his suspension in England was also carried into effect in this country. It was stated, however, that if the Welshman would settle the difference he would be reinstated without delay. He claims to have ordered his solicitor in London to settle immediately, and the report came to this country to the effect that Jimmy was again in good standing, since which time he has ridden in a number of exhibitions in the South and also competed in a match race with McFarland, of California. When comes the report that his suspension was never raised, and he has, therefore, been illegally riding on the track.

Michael sent the cablegram to his solicitor in London, asking whether the Leeds matter had been settled. Word was received in the affirmative. Word was sent to Chairman Mott of the League of American Wheelmen racing board, and he replied that he had been informed that Michael was still under suspension. It would appear that Chairman Mott has allowed Michael to compete on the strength of newspaper reports which have been received in this country, and that the officers of the National Cyclists' union dislike this manner of doing things, and have therefore placed the young rider under suspension again.

MURDERED BY HIS CHUM.

St. Louis, June 8.—Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the finding of an unknown man on the tracks of the St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado railroad near Clayton, a suburban town, reveals the facts that the dead man was Isaac Michael, a Frenchman, who had been over but a short time. August Genar, a fellow countryman, who came from New Orleans with Michael and disappeared the day of the murder, is held by the coroner's jury to be guilty of the crime. Michael was known to have over $200 and a gold watch worth $40 in his possession at the time he was killed.

THE SPANISH CRISIS.

New York, June 8.—A special to the Herald from Madrid says: The whole country is stupefied by the extraordinary solution of the crisis. The Liberal feeling is violent against Senor Sagasta. The majority of the Liberals call him a traitor, accusing him of secretly refusing the queen regent's request to accept office. Great excitement prevails. The peril of the situation, so far from being finished by the Conservatives' continuance in office, is considered to be only just beginning.

New York, June 8.—The yacht Eleanor, owned by William A. Slater, of Norwich, Conn., which has been chartered by Col. Oliver Payne, of the Standard Oil company, and his nephew Harry Payne Whitney, who married Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, for a voyage to the North cape, went into commission at Port Washington last week in command of Capt. Charles Scott. As soon as her stores and provisions are on board, the yacht will leave for Bar Harbor, starting from there at the end of this week for a trans-Atlantic trip.

Messrs. Payne and Whitney, it is said, will take a number of guests with them, including Henry O. Havemeyer, the sugar king. The Payne party hopes to reach England in time to witness the queen's jubilee celebration. And it is just possible that Col. Payne and one or two others may cross in one of the Atlantic liners and meet the yacht at Southampton.

FAILED TO BREAK IT.

Drunken Man Attempts to Cut His Own Throat.

John Randall, who was arrested in an intoxicated condition by Officer McDonald on Fourth street last night made an unsuccessful attempt to cut his throat at police station this morning. He was being taken back to jail for a hearing on the charge of drunkenness this afternoon, he having pleaded not guilty, when he drew a small phial from his pocket, struck it against a radiator with the evident intention of breaking it to cut a good edge on it, and then drew it across his throat. He was so weak and nervous from the effects of dissipation that he did not even succeed in breaking the bottle, and his attempt was bootless.

When arrested he had under his arm a bundle containing a stiff hat, a pair of trousers and a suit of underwear. The latter were damp, and the theory of the police was that John had gathered them from some clothes line, but he stoutly insisted they had been given to him. Latter he pleaded guilty to the charge against him, and was sent up for ten days.

ROAD WINS

Lively Struggle For the Possession of the Arthur Avenue Crossing.

City Removes the Railroad Track and the Road Lays It Again.

A crossing war is on at Arthur avenue at the foot of the Duluth-Superior bridge approach, the parties being the city and the Duluth Street Railway company on one hand and the Northern Pacific Railroad company on the other. On the latter side the Gray & Stevens sawmill people are also interested, and the St. Paul & Duluth company aided and abetted the Northern Pacific people in the moves made this morning. Up to noon it was a contest in which physical force only figured. Now it is in the courts.

Trouble began last night. The council passed a resolution directing the removal of the track, which is a switch running into the yards of the lumber company. The switch, it was claimed by the street railway people, made a dangerous crossing. They claimed that it was an unused switch, hitherto buried under a lot of slabs, and that it had been resurrected to give them trouble. The resolution was passed in response to the request of the street railway people that the track be removed.

Within half an hour after the resolution had been passed a force of forty men under the direction of Superintendent Warren of the street railway company was at work removing the switch and laying a double street railway track along Arthur avenue. A train of Northern Pacific flat cars loaded with slabs, which was standing at Arthur avenue, was uncoupled and the cars pushed away, the track was quickly torn up, and by 2 o'clock this morning the work was complete.

Up to midnight Mayor Truelsen and the members of the board of public works were present to give sanction to the proceeding on the part of the city. There was no interference on the part of the railway people or the sawmill men, although an attack from one or other was expected. Their turn came later.

REGAINED THE CROSSING.

The Northern Pacific Railway company this morning regained the crossing from which it was evicted by the move made by the city last night. At a late hour this afternoon it was in possession of the field under protection of an injunction issued out of the district court.

It was at 4 o'clock this morning that the railway made its first move and recaptured the crossing. After the company's switch was torn up last night and the rails of the street railway company laid a guard of one policeman and fifteen street railroad employes was left to guard the pass. At the hour named a force of 100 men in charge of Roadmaster McGarvin of the Northern Pacific, loomed up. The city's force overborne by sheer force of numbers, was crowded gently but firmly aside and in a phenomenally short space of time the street railway tracks were torn up, the switch relaid and a train of six flat cars loaded with slabs, to which were attached a St. Paul & Duluth and a Northern Pacific engine, was planted on it.

This morning, the mayor, after a consultation with the city attorney and Superintendent Warren of the street railway company, ordered Chief Hansen to send a detail of police to cause the removal of the obstruction.

At 10 o'clock a squad of six officers under command of Capt. Thompson proceeded to the scene. The railroad people were found calmly resting on their oars, with the blockading train anchored by a car of slabs shoved in the sand at one end and by the two locomotives at the other.

Capt. Thompson had some difficulty in finding anybody who was in charge of the train, but finally ran down Roadmaster McGavin, who conceded that he had a passing interest in the affair. Mr. McGavin, when the question of pulling the train out was broached, suggested the difficulty of hauling a car loaded with slabs out of the sand. The captain said he would have the slabs unloaded and that then he would order the train pulled out.

SPARRING FOR TIME.

The railroad people were good-natured and were evidently sparring for time, and cheerfully allowed the street railway men to proceed to throw the slabs off the ditched car. This took considerable time, and while all hands were sitting around waiting for the next move, Superintendent Blanchard of the Northern Pacific and President Mendenhall of the street railway company appeared, and a conference took place between them, Mr. Wilson, of the board of public works, who had been on the ground from an early hour, and Capt. Thompson.

Superintendent Blanchard, after some parley, said the train would be pulled out if the ditched car was taken care of by the city's forces, claiming that the latter had taken possession of the car and that they must look after it. This was agreed to and the car was jacked up and uncoupled from the train.

Another demand, to move the train was made on Superintendent Blanchard. The latter, who had been glancing anxiously toward Garfield avenue, professed that it would be necessary to send for a yardmaster to order the engineer to back out. He started off to telephone for a yardmaster to order a train crew of the road of which he was superintendent to move their train a few rods, while Roadmaster McGavin, under whose orders the crew had run the train in stood around, seeming to be suddenly shorn of all authority.

Mr. Blanchard was gone a very long time after that yardmaster. Before he returned, there appeared a deputy sheriff, who served on Capt. Thompson and Mr. Wilson a writ enjoining them from interfering with the railway company's property. The police were at once withdrawn and the railroad company left in possession.

INJUNCTION TAKEN OUT.

The writ of injunction was issued shortly before noon by Washburn, Lewis & Bailey, in behalf of the Northern Pacific. It asked for an injunction against the city, Mayor Truelsen and Chief Hansen, to restrain them from interfering with the plaintiff's track. Judge Cant issued a temporary writ of injunction against the city compelling it to refrain from molesting the plaintiff's tracks during the pending of the action or until the further order of the court.

The road's complaint states that it is the owner of the Gray's mill track on Arthur avenue, having been for fifteen years in adverse possession of it. It therefore claims title, and alleges that the city is about to take up its tracks without authority, the tracks being necessary to the operation of its line. If allowed to proceed, according to the complaint, the city will work an irreparable injury to the property of the plaintiff, an injury which cannot be compensated by damages. Therefore the court is asked to restrain the city from trespassing on its right-of-way. Judge Cant granted the temporary injunction, and it was placed in the hands of the sheriff.

The road gave a bond of $250 to secure the city from damages in case it is decided to be the owner of the right-of-way. M. J. Forbes and F. N. La Salle are sureties.

THE RAILROADS' CLAIM.

The Northern Pacific and St. Paul & Duluth roads, which use the track jointly, claim that it is the only way of taking cars in and out from the Gray mill property, and that Mr. Stevens would be deprived of all rail facilities if it should be removed. The track has been in use for fifteen years. It is used every day, but only for a short time, so that it would cause but very slight delay at any time to the cars coming over the new bridge. It is claimed that the board of public works, on April 21, directed the Northern Pacific company to raise the track to the street grade, and as this order was promptly obeyed by the railroad company it is surprised that city employes, under the mayor's directions, should attempt to tear up the track.

BOUGHT THE WRECKS.

Alexander R. Sinclair Gets Some Inman Hulks.

The Duluth Trust company, as assignee for B. B. Inman, has sold the wreck of the steamer Winslow and the side-wheeler tug E. T. Carrington to Alexander R. Sinclair & Co. for $75. The petition of the company for the approval of the sale was filed in district court this morning. It is claimed that though the tug was invoiced at $1000, it is worth much less than that. It is sunk in the limekiln slip, and it would cost $1200 to raise and repair it. The Winslow, which is also in the mud at the bottom of the slip, is of practically no value, as it consists merely of a burned hull from which the machinery has been removed. The petition states that Sinclair & Co. have purchased the two for $75, and asks that the sale be confirmed. Judge Cant made an order confirming the sale.

A Geological Party.

A geological surveying party, in charge of E. M. Lehnerts, of Winona, passed through the city yesterday afternoon for Tower. From there they will go on an expedition under the direction of the state geologist to the extreme northern part of the county and will make some observations in the gold country on the American side of Rainy lake before returning. The party which includes besides Mr. Lehnerts James Blake and John Holzinger, of Winona, Francis Bean, of New Prague, and A. H. Elftman, of Minneapolis, will be out about four weeks.

A Book For Singers.

In reference to Edward J. Myer's book on "Position and Acting in Singing," the New York Musical Courier contains a letter from Lydia Torrigo-Heiroth in Paris, which gave an unqualified endorsement to the book and Mr. Myer's theory. He argues that the voice should be trained to work automatically, the singer having no thought as to the position of the larynx, vocal cords, etc. The book is attracting great attention among singers. The book is on sale at Smith & Smith's store, at 101 West Superior street.

The Omaha Improvements.

The Omaha freight depot has been removed to the south side of the tracks to make room for the new depot. The passenger station will also probably be moved to the south side of the tracks for the use of the public while the new depot is in process of construction, although it is possible that it may be temporarily located some distance east of its present site. As soon as the preliminary work is all arranged the actual work of construction will commence.

Assignee Brings Suit.

A. R. Macfarlane, as receiver of the Security bank, yesterday afternoon began five suits against debtors of the bank. They were as follows: Providence Building company and W. B. Silvey, $1300 on notes; Bay View Land company, draft, $401.15; Cleveland Investment company, $150.50 on a draft; W. B. Silvey, $4345.26 on notes; James Brady and the Northwestern Land and Loan company, $150 on notes. Washburn, Lewis & Bailey are the attorneys.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

All Branches Were Working on Court Cases Today.

With the Merritt-Harris case continued until Monday and the jurors all excused, the district court this morning was not the liveliest place in town though all three courts were working upon court cases. Gone were the crowd of spectators, jurors and the miscellaneous selection of impecunious hangers-on who linger along during every term of court hoping that the wave of prosperity will strike them in the shape of a call for talesman when the regular panel is exhausted. There were no spectators except the parties litigant and the court officers and attorneys.

The only place where there was the least semblance of a gathering was in Judge Moer's court, where the case of "Totunden Etsia No. 91 against Tapio a quasi-social society of Hibbing" was on trial. The parties are Finnish temperance societies of Hibbing, and the row is over the meeting hall, which both societies claim. It is in possession of Tapio, and the plaintiff claims that it was secured through force of arms. The plaintiff is an offshoot of the defendant society. It seems that some time ago there was a division in the old society over the question of whether dancing should be allowed in the hall. Seventeen members who did not want dancing pulled out and started the Totunden Etsia. Each society claims to be the only original society, and to own the hall. The case was still on trial at noon. T. Waldo Murphy appears for the plaintiff and John M. Mariar for the defendant.

Judge Ensign at noon was still hearing the case of August G. Grochau against Francis S. Kosmerl and the Church of St. Anthony de Padua. Judge Cant was hearing the case of G. T. Johns against Francis Omels et al. The case of the Farmers' Trust company against Eliza T. Dinham et al was submitted on a stipulation as to the facts.

CLAIMED HE FOUND IT.

Officer Ryan saw a lad of about 13 years of age draw a bundle from under the sidewalk on Michigan street, just east of the Lake avenue viaduct, this morning. Before taking the bundle from its lodging place the lad was observed to look carefully about him as if to see if he were observed. The officer's suspicions were aroused and he took the boy and the bundle to the police station. The package was found to contain three yards of new silk mixed stuff, valued at about $1.50 a yard. The boy gave his name as August Kutz and said he lived at 518 East Tenth street. He claimed that he had found the bundle merely by chance. He was allowed to go, the bundle being retained for identification by the owner.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

William Baker and James Fitzgerald, two Northern Pacific employes who were arrested at the Arthur avenue crossing for hindering the work of laying the street car track last evening, pleaded not guilty this moning to a charge of obstructing the street. Their hearing was set for Thursday.

MINISTERIAL BANQUET.

Labor Unions and the Church Were Discussed.

The Duluth-Superior Ministerial union held a banquet at the Spalding last night, and afterwards discussed "The Relation Between the Labor Unions and the Church." Rev. C. H. Patton presided, and after making a brief introduction of the subject he presented E. R. Cobb as a representative of the Trades assembly. Mr. Cobb, after speaking of the magnitude of the subject, said that the average sermon nowadays flies over the heads of the average working man, and are therefore ineffectual. He contended that the story of Christ should be told simply, and that it should not be addressed so much to the scholar as to the man. He thought there was an unhealthy condition of public morals in so-called church communities, and that great wrongs among church members are passed over lightly. The church missed a great opportunity through its reluctance to grapple with the slavery question, and he questioned whether it would not make another mistake by holding a neutral position in the struggle for humane conditions and living wages for all labor.

The donation of a church to a New York society at the same time that he was engaged in crushing the manhood out of his employes by George M. Pullman he considered was a more powerful sermon against the Christianity of today than Ingersoll could preach. He believed that the churches had forgotten that it was harder for a rich man to enter heaven than for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, for the rich man is welcomed with open arms and the poor man with condescension. In closing Mr. Cobb invited the members of the union to attend the meetings of the Trades assembly.

George C. Findley followed Mr. Cobb. He said that one reason for the gap between the church and the laboring people was that most ministers looked at things theoretically and the laboring man looked at them practically. Another reason was the fact that the majority of the laboring classes is like raw material. It must be moulded into shape, and the only way to do it is to go to it. In the old days the gospel was preached from the house and the hilltop, and the ministers went to the people instead of requiring the people to come to them.

The church could supply a great need of the people by going to them and lifting them up.

Rev. W. J. Johnson, of West Superior, replied for the ministers, confessing that he was unable to solve the problem of how to bring the church and the people closer together. Men today are too much given to judging the church from a distance, for its aim is to teach the brotherhood of man. The majority of the men in the pulpit are not college men, but have come up from the ranks of the toilers. Such men could not but preach such a doctrine. In answer to the invitation to visit the assembly he invited the laboring men to visit the churches. The betterment of the country will come from uplifting it and not from lowering ourselves to it.

After a general discussion it was decided that the invitation to visit the assembly should be accepted.

Does Not Belong Here.

Secretary H. H. Hart of the state board of charities and corrections this morning left for St. Paul with John Wojleckowski, an insane patient who has been lying in the county jail for several days. The man was picked up about three weeks ago on the street, and his residence is unknown. As he was not a resident of the county the county refused to care for him, and the case was reported to Secretary Hart, who arrived this morning to take charge of him. It is understood the man is from Winnipeg, and he will probably be taken there. He is 42 years of age, and he has some peculiar hallucinations. He talks a great deal, and he imagines that someone is talking through him. He feels as if he had no head, he says, and frequently when he looks at a man he sees half a dozen of him.

Question is Submitted.

The argument on the constitutionality of the ordinance requiring the licensing of theaters was taken up before Judge Edson yesterday. The claim was made that it is invalid, because it covers more than one subject. Judge Edson, however, decided that it is good. This morning the argument was continued, the stand taken being that the ordinance is invalid because it is unreasonable. This phase of the question will be submitted on briefs by Saturday.

MARINE MATTERS.

Capt. Charles Adams Arrested on a Serious Charge.

Buffalo, June 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. Charles Adams of the barge Abram Smith, in the Simon Angell's tow from Duluth, is under arrest here on the charge of criminal assault. The complainant is Katherine McDonald, cook on the Smith. The penalty for the crime, if proved, is death, under the moss-covered statutes of the United States, which were passed early in the century. Adams denies the charge most vigorously. Those acquainted with the case do not think the case can be sustained in the United States courts. The death penalty has seldom been inflicted on the lakes under the early statutes of the republic, which were copied after the severe English maritime regulations, where the death penalty so frequently appeared.

TOOK REDD AWAY.

Considerable Mystery as to How it Was Done.

Budd Redd, who was wounded in the shooting affray in St. Croix alley yesterday, is now confined in the women's department at police headquarters. Redd was taken from St. Luke's hospital yesterday afternoon and was found in the evening in a shack in St. Croix alley, where he was being cared for by an inmate of one of the colored dives. How it happened that Redd was allowed to leave the hospital is a matter of astonishment and annoyance to the police, the latter say. The woman who was found with Redd produced a letter, the police say, written on a St. Luke's hospital letter head and signed "superintendent," in good handwriting, stating that Redd would have to be removed as he had no money. The hospital people say that a policeman came after Redd to take him to the county jail. The affair seems to be shrouded in considerable mystery.

CLOUGH

Minnesota's Governor Refuses to Consent to Any Grand Jury Process.

Neither Will He Agree to Any Test in the Supreme Court.

Says He is Co-ordinate With the Supreme Court in Power.

Minneapolis, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Clough refuses to consent to the arrangement made by Attorney General Childs, whereby the power of the grand jury to subpoena him was to be tested in the supreme court. An attachment was to have been issued by the district court and the point brought to the highest state tribunal by habeas corpus proceedings.

The governor's refusal to consent throws the onus of action on the court. Inasmuch, however, as the governor has consented to have the bank reports examined in his office, it is probable that the grand jury will gain the information it seeks in this way and further proceedings will be dropped. The governor's position is that he is co-ordinate with the supreme court in powers and that he could not submit to its mandate.

Legislative impeachment is the only course of action against him which he will recognize and such extreme measures are, of course, out of the question.

PAINTED THE STATUE.

And Now He Has to Leave Harvard College.

Cambridge, Mass., June 9.—A special committee which was appointed by the president of the junior class at Harvard to investigate the recent painting of John Harvard's statue has reported that a special student in his first year had confessed. He acknowledged that he decorated the statue with red paint on the night of May 29 in celebration of the Harvard victory over Princeton on the diamond. The commissioners refuse to publish the name of the guilty student, but acknowledged that he was requested to leave the university, which he agreed to do.

Two members of the freshman class, whose names the committee also withheld, are also implicated and when confronted with accumulated evidence, they handed in their resignations. A fourth man, it is said, may also be asked to explain what connection he had with the affair.

The statue has been the mark of college vandals in times past and on this occasion, when it was found painted in red on three sides with an "H" on the front and back, and the score of 7 to 4 on the side, indignation was intense. After a thorough search of the local paint stores and the discovery of a suspicious spot of red paint on a young student's clothes which resulted in a confession, the other men responsible were cornered.

MAHER AND SHARKEY.

Much Betting on Their Contest For Tonight.

New York, June 9.—Much money has been wagered on the Maher-Sharkey battle tonight—more than on any pugilistic contest decided here in recent years. Maher is a pronounced favorite. The odds are 10 to 8 in the Irishman's favor. "Pittsburg Phil," the turf man, who is a very warm admirer of Maher, says he will bet as much money as he can get on at odds of 10 to 8. He has seen both men spar and believes that Sharkey's aggressive rushing style of fighting will suit the Irishman's fancy. He has told several friends that he thinks Maher should win inside of ten rounds.

Dan Lynch, the backer of Sharkey, says that he will be at the Gravesend race track today prepared to bet $3000 to $5000 or $6000 to $10,000 that Sharkey will win. The sale of seats for the contest is unprecedented, and the largest crowd ever seen at a ringside may witness the mill.

CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT.

Minneapolis, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. F. Kelley, the head of the failed firm of mortgage brokers A. F. & L. E. Kelley, was arraigned this morning under an indictment, charging him with embezzling, as agent, funds entrusted to him by Lydia M. Blood. He pleaded not guilty and was released under $2000 bonds. The affairs of the firm, which did a very large business on Eastern capital, are in a badly tangled condition and long litigation will follow.

SUGAR TRUST DIVIDEND.

New York, June 9.—The directors of the American Sugar Refining company today declared a regular quarterly dividend of 36 cents on common stock and 1 3-4 per cent on preferred stock.

'FRISCO'S INSURANCE TROUBLES.

San Francisco, June 9.—When the new compact between the fire insurance writers on the Pacific coast was formed a few weeks ago, it was thought that troubles which have besieged the insurance world for the last year or so, were almost over, but the sub-agents of the city of Stockton refused to agree to a cut of 25 per cent in their commissions and the trouble has broken out afresh. The board of underwriters have issued an ultimatum to the effect that all country agents must sign an agreement to cut before June 10 or give up their business.

MINNESOTA INTERESTS.

Well Cared For in the Tariff Bill.

Washington, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—So far in considering the tariff bill the senate has taken good care of Minnesota interests. The lumber schedule is all that was asked by the lumbermen, and the house rates on barley and other agricultural products have been maintained. The house rates on flax will probably be restored with an increase of duty on unhackled flax. The duty upon rice will benefit the barley growers as the brewers have within the past few years substituted broken rice for barley in the manufacture of beer.

MINISTERS NOMINATED.

And Several Other Important Positions Are Filled.

State—To be envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary of the United States: Henry L. Wilson, of Washington, to Chili; William F. Powell, of New Jersey, to Hayti; John G. A. Leishman, of Pennsylvania, to Switzerland; John F. Gowey, of Washington, to be consul general at Kanagwa, Japan.

Treasury—To be assistant appraisers of merchandise: Michael J. Brown, in the district of Philadelphia; Fred P. Vincent, in the district of Philadelphia. To be deputy auditors: Robert S. Pearson, of South Dakota, for the interior department; Daniel A. Grosvenor, of Maryland, for the war department.

Navy—Medical Inspector J. M. Flint, to be medical director; Surgeon C. U. Gravatt, to be medical inspector; Passed Assistant Surgeon V. C. B. Means, to be surgeon; Passed Assistant Engineer E. T. Warburton, to be chief engineer; Assistant Engineer John K. Robison, to be passed assistant engineer.

Postmasters—South Dakota: Walter McKay, Lead.

RULE OF THESSALY.

Turkish Government Will Try to Regain It.

Constantinople, June 9.—It is said that strong pressure will be needed to overcome the resistance of the Turkish government to the retrocession of Thessaly. Reports that Great Britain is opposing on religious grounds Turkey's retention of Thessaly are being circulated here with the view of exciting Mussulman fanaticism. The powers contend that, as they guarantee the integrity of Turkey, the latter must respect the integrity of others.

In a memorandum submitted to the Turkish government the powers propose that the crests of the mountains on the Greek frontier be occupied by Turkish, instead of Greek troops, and also that the indemnity be in proportion to the resources of Greece. It is further proposed to modify the capitulations, or special privileges enjoyed by Greek subjects in Turkey, with the view of abolishing certain abuses which have been the subject of complaint upon the part of the Turks.

The two latter questions will be entrusted to a commission of experts, and the delimiting of frontier will be executed by an international military commission. It now rests with the Turkish government as to whether peace will be concluded speedily or not, and it is believed the sultan will resist so long as possible. The dispatch of attaches of the British, Russian and Italian embassies to Thessaly with instructions from Constantinople upon the situation there is due to the reports in circulation that the Turkish irregulars have committed excesses in Thessaly where many villages are said to have been destroyed by them.

SAW A COLLISION.

French Schooner Tells a Tale of Marine Disaster.

Swansea, Wales, June 9.—A French schooner, which has just arrived here, reports that through the haze she saw two vessels collide off the Lizard with tremendous impact. Both vessels sank and all on board, according to the crew of the schooner, were drowned. The schooner further reports that the vessels sank so quickly that she had no time to go to their assistance.

JUST A FRENCH FAKE.

London, June 9.—The agent of the Lloyds at Swansea telegraphs that the story told by the crew of the French schooner as given in the foregoing dispatch is untrue and originated in the schooner picking up a rowboat having no name upon it.

CRETE'S FUTURE GOVERNMENT.

Canea, June 9.—The Cretan delegates will meet at Armyro in order to discuss today the proposed autonomous form of government for the island. The delegates from the western districts of Crete are willing to accept autonomy if the Turkish troops depart. The election of Prince Francis Joseph of Battenburg, who was recently married to Princess Anna of Montenegro, to be governor of Crete would be well received by the inhabitants of the island. The prince is a great favorite of Queen Victoria and the princess is a protege of the czar and czarina.

A LEPROUS ENTANGLEMENT.

Pittsburg, June 9.—The decision of the Baltimore health officials to return Miss Mary Sanson, the leper, to Allegheny, Pa., will, if carried out, meet with strong resistance from the health board of the latter city. Health Officer McLaughlin says the woman will not be received in Allegheny. He believes it possible to prevent her entrance into Pennsylvania from Maryland. A serious complication is likely to be the result.

NANCY CLEMENS DEAD.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 9.—Mrs. Nancie E. Clemens is dead. She was the central figure in Indianapolis' most famous criminal case; was tried five times for murder, sentenced to hang twice and finally escaped on a technicality. Mrs. Clemens was finally convicted of perjury and served four years in the state female reformatory.

REVENUE

Senate Finance Committee Figuring Now on Getting Enough Revenue.

A Bank Check Stamp Tax Has Been Practically Agreed to.

Additional Tax on Beer and Tax on Tea Are Abandoned.

Washington, June 9.—The Republican members of the finance committee will withdraw the amendments for an additional tax on beer and for the duty of 10 cents a pound on tea. In explanation of this a member of the finance committe said that the pressure for the withdrawal of these amendments has been very great and that many Republican senators have made decided stands against them. The members of the committee are still in doubt as to what shall be done with increases on tobacco in the internal revenue part of the bill, but there has been great pressure to have these taxes reduced.

The question of revenue is giving the committee considerable concern, and if there should be a withdrawal of the increases on tobacco, as well as those on beer and tea, the bill would not meet the needs of the government as a revenue producer. For this reason it has been practically determined to make a bank check stamp tax, and the question of additional revenue by means of a system of stamp tax on Rbeer has been under consideration. The committee is considering these questions and endeavoring to meet them as the proceed.

THE PINE ESTIMATES.

Hermann Favors La Pointe System of Selling Timber.

Washington, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.—Maj. Wright, the Indian inspector who made the investigation of the Chippewa pine land estimates last winter, is in Washington. The principal reason for his call to Washington is that Land Commissioner Hermann may confer with him about future estimates on the Leech lake and other reservations. It is probable that a determination on this point may be reached in a few days.

It is understood that Hermann is favorably inclined to the La Pointe system of selling timber, as recommended by Wright in his report. It is understood that Wright is also a candidate for the assistant commissionerhip of Indian affairs.

CUBAN EXPEDITION.

Well Drilled and Armed Party Leaves Jacksonville.

Boston, June 9.—Col. Shepard Young, a well-known local military man, in an interview today, divulged the details of a secret Cuban expedition which left Boston on May 23 and picked up several recruits in New York. He has received a cipher telegram from Jacksonville conveying the news that they had just sailed from that city on a fast, light draft steamer, 115 strong, armed with rifles of army pattern. All have seen service in the militia. A movement has been started to organize a sanitary commission to supply stores.

Col. Young says: "I conducted the drills in a hall in Boston, put them through in fancy tactics, cavalry tactics, and artillery tactics. Every man could load and fire a cannon, no matter what the size, and swing a saber or use a bayonet. Not a soldier left Boston until he was drilled sufficently to take charge of a regiment. The tactics were taught in this city mostly at night. We got word from New York that a spy had been sent to Boston. We did not see him. The troops practiced with the machete also. The machete is heavier than a saber, and the wielding of one is hard work, but the men soon learned to use it with skill."

CALHOUN'S CONFERENCE.

Has Had Another Talk With the President.

Washington, June 9.—Mr. Calhoun, the president's special commissioner to Cuba, had another conference with President McKinley this morning. Owing to the fact that Mr. McKinley was to leave at noon on the trip to Nashville, Mr. Calhoun went to the White House at 9:30 by appointment. He was accompanied by his secretary, Mr. Fishback. They remained with the president about three-quarters of an hour.

Neither Secretary Sherman nor Assistant Secretary Day was present at today's conference. After Mr. Calhoun's departure from the White House he said that he should not accompany the president on his trip to Nashville, but should return to his home at Danville, Ill., this evening. He had, he said, nothing to add to what he already given to the newspapers, beyond the fact that he probably should visit Washington again after the president's return from the South for a further consultation.

Mining Experts Break Into a Mine and Are Arrested.

History of the Famous Silver Peak Mines in Nevada Recalled.

A Mining Battle Which Will Be Watched With Great Interest.

San Francisco, June 9.—Mining men are discussing the strange stories which come down from Hawthorne, Nev., about the arrest for house breaking of Mining Experts Hague and Alexander Womble. They have been held to answer, released on bonds, and their trial set for July 7.

Behind the arrest is a story of the famous Silver Peak mines, located about 110 miles from Hawthorne. Long ago the mines came into the possession of John I. Blair, a New York millionaire, who shut them down. Four years ago L. J. Hanchette, father of Mrs. George Crocker, got at Blair, through D. O. Mills, and secured from him a bond on the mine with permission to work it and pay $750,000 at the end of a certain time. He pledged himself to spend $200,000 in erecting mills and making improvements, and with L. E. Hanchette, his son, has since been developing and working the property. Blair is 96 years old and had to retire from business because of mental incapacity.

The Hanchettes say that when they offered Blair's family the $750,000 purchase price it was refused, and a suit was begun over the matter a month or two ago. Now the Hanchettes charge that in their absence Experts Hague and Womble went to the mine with a force of nine, overpowered the watchman, broke into the tunnels and mine houses, secured a report on the mines, which the Hanchettes never would have permitted them to see. This report is supposed to have been for certain millionaires desirous of securing control of the property.

The elder Hanchette heard of the raid, hastened to Hawthorne, and when the experts returned there had them arrested. There was a big legal fight over the affair, eminent counsel having been engaged.

SILVER RESOLUTIONS.

Passed By the Silver Republicans at Chicago.

Chicago, June 9.—At the evening session at the Leland hotel last evening of the National Silver Republican party the following resolutions, outlining the party's plan of action were adopted:

Whereas, it is not the province of this committee to anticipate the action of the national convention in the formation of a platform and declaration of principles, but

Whereas, in order to preclude any basis for either misunderstanding or misrepresentation as to the object of this organization it is prudent to make known the controlling principle of its existence, therefore

Resolved, that the Silver Republican party of the United States, demands the immediate establishment of bimetallism by the independent action of the United States through the free coinage of both silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1 and the clothing of both metals equally with every attribute of full money with the right to every debtor to choose which coin should be the basis of payment.

And resolved, that the achievement of this great object is deemed by us of paramount political importance and should form the controlling motive of our political efforts until it is accomplished.

Your committee on plans and organization for the Silver Republican party of the United States beg leave to submit this our report:

First—We recommend the appointment of a national executive committee of seven members including the national chairman to be appointed chairman of the national committee.

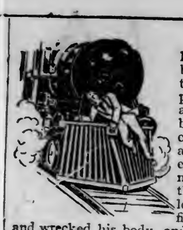
Second—That this committee be empowered to take action as may be necessary in order to fill any vacancies existing or that may exist at any time in the national committee.

Third—The executive committee with the advice and consent of the national committee is authorized to call the convention of the Silver Republican party to meet at such time and place as it may designate and to perfect the necessary details therefor.

Fourth—In those states where organizations are not complete the members of the national committee for such action under the direction of the national executive committee as is necessary to complete such organization.

The resolutions were signed by Fred T. Dubois, Idaho, chairman; J. J. Harper, Ohio; J. D. Clarkson, Missouri; E. C. Watkins, Michigan; A. J. Messet, Kentucky; A. M. Stourson, Colorado; Charles A. Towne, Minnesota, and Ben S. Dean, secretary, New York. Charles A. Towne of Minnesota was elected permanent chairman of the national committee.

The members of the national committee are as follows; Alabama, Cutler Smith; Arkansas, Thomas Boles; California, Nathan Cole; Colorado, A. M. Stevenson; Connecticut, Joseph Sheldon; Delaware, Charles G. Prettyman; Idaho, F. T. Dubois; Illinois, James H. Teller; Indiana, F. J. Anorhis; Iowa, William Connor; Kansas, Frank B. Lawrence; Kentucky, A. J. Mossel; Louisiana, D. S. Carri; Massachusetts, Norman Cameron; Michigan, C. E. Watkins; Minnesota, Frank A. Day; Missouri, J. D. Clarkson; Montana, Charles H. Hartman; Nebraska, D. D. Gregory; New Jersey, James H. Fleming; New York, Ben S. Dean; North Dakota, H. M. Street; Ohio, J. B. Harper; Oklahoma, F. S. Peck; Oregon, Charles W. Talmadge; South Dakota, B. H. Lien; Utah, W. C. Jones; Washington, J. W. Thompson; West Virginia, W. B. Menger; Wisconsin, Dr. Frank Powell; Wyoming, A. A. Johnson.



The man who has been struck by a locomotive and is picked up alive and carried on by the cow-catcher has had a miraculous escape. The man who through neglect has sacrificed his health and wrecked his body, and through the merits of a medicine is picked up alive and restored to health has had an almost equally wonderful experience. There are thousands of men, who have for years overworked themselves to the neglect of their health, and then when utterly wrecked in body and shattered in nerve have been picked up and restored to health by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

It is a marvelous remedy that corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, and fills the blood with the life-giving elements that build new flesh and muscle. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption and is a specific for diseases due to disorders of the digestion or imperfect nutrition. Druggists sell it.

"Myself and wife," writes Mr. H. G. Adams, of Turners Station, Henry Co., Ky., "have taken five bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription.' The medicines are curing both of us. We can't say too much for them or for you. My wife persuaded me to quit the doctor here and try one bottle of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I did so, and I thank God for it. I have recommended it highly to many of my neighbors. I told them that if it did not do them one dollar's worth of good that I would pay for it.

"I will give you a little statement of my own case. I was enervated, could hardly get up in the morning, never got a whole night's sleep, was short of breath, had a tight feeling in the stomach, and was restless. I would throw up my food, and had numerous other ailments which I have not time to write about now. I now feel better and look better than ever before in my life."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the surest, safest, quickest cure for constipation. They never gripe. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Substitutes are sometimes dangerous, and always cause discomfort.

A DEADLY DUEL.

One Boy Unintentionally Kills His Companion.

The boys—Clarence, 16 years old, and Bertram, 14 years—tried to prepare in part for the celebration on July 4, and went to their rooms to clean two revolvers which had been given them for use on the holiday. They laid the weapons aside after a short time, and when they picked them up to replace them in the box, Bertram said to his elder brother: "Let's fight a duel."

Clarence was delighted with the novel suggestion, and the lads, standing back to back with the revolvers by their sides, waited until Bertram counted "three." They then gravely took four paces in opposite directions. "'Bout face," called Clarence, and the boys turned on their heels, weapons extended and smiling at each other. Both hammers fell, and from the muzzle of Clarence's weapon shot a little line of fire. There was a report, and Bertram, clutching at his chest, fell forward on the floor.

Clarence was frightened and ran screaming down the stairs, and members of the family went to the boys' play room. A physician was called and found that the bullet had entered Bertram's left breast, penetrating the lung. He said the wound was fatal.

AUSTIN'S BELIEF.

Thinks He Can Save Durrant From Execution.

San Louis Obispo, Cal., June 9.—A. S. Austin, formerly a prominent attorney of this city, writes to County Clerk Whitcher, from Newport, Ore., that he was in San Francisco the night Blanche Lamont is supposed to have been murdered, and says in his letter:

"I think I know a point that will save Durrant, although if I was to speak out and say so people would say I was crazy, the same as others who have advanced theories. I am morally certain of Durrant's innocence and mathematically as to whom is guilty, from what I saw the night of the murder, when I was in San Francisco. I think that I should quietly tell my story to Durrant's attorney."

Austin was a man of strong intellect when here, and says he was in San Francisco at the time of the murder.

CATTLE

American Ministers Will Try to Remove Discrimination Against Our Cattle.

Ambassadors to Great Britain, France, Germany and Belgium Instructed.

French Expert Declares American Cattle Are Free From All Disease.

Washington, June 9.—The administration has outlined an important policy to end, if possible, the controversies between this government and Great Britain, Germany, France and Belgium regarding the exclusion of American cattle and dressed beef. This policy contemplates the submission of an earnest joint protest by the diplomatic representatives of the United States at London, Berlin, Paris and Brussels, aiming at the revocation of the discriminatory regulations which these nations have imposed upon American cattle and beef.

Before their departure for their respective posts Ambassadors Hay, Porter and White received instructions to confer with each other and with Bellamy Storer, the new minister in Brussels, for the purpose of taking united action in this matter. Mr. Storer was at the state department today receiving his full instructions before he sails on Wednesday next for his post in Belgium. Mr. Storer's instructions contemplate the recommencement of negotiations with the Belgian government with a view to securing a removal of restrictions now imposed upon American cattle and beef. The exclusion of American cattle and beef by the European governments is, they claim, not based on any intention to discriminate against the United States, but is due to the presence of disease in the animals. This claim has been ridiculed again and again by the department of agriculture, and finally, in the case of France, Mr. Cleveland directed retaliation.

The agricultural department has received numerous complaints from cattle exporters in regard to the discrimination exercised against them. Mr. Ewing, at present minister of the United States in Brussels, in a note to the Belgian minister for foreign affairs, stated that "my government is very reluctantly forced to the conclusion that an unfavorable discrimination has been created against American products in contravention of the spirit and letter of the commercial treaty of 1875."

A French expert who examined American cattle shipped into Belgium declared that he never had the slightest doubt of their freedom from diseases of a contagious character. Notwithstanding these representations, Belgium declined to remove the prohibition upon American cattle and beef. Mr. Storer, under his instructions, will endeavor to secure a reconsideration of this decision.

Ambassador Hay's efforts will be exerted in the direction of securing the repeal of the law on the English statute books requiring the slaughter at the port of debarkation of cattle imported from the United States. It will be the duty of the ambassador at Berlin to obtain a revocation of the decree issued by the German government forbidding the importation of live cattle and dressed beef into the German empire. Should the protest made by the four diplomats named is not effective, retaliatory measures may be adopted by the United States in the cases of all governments concerned.

THE HOFFMAN CASE.

San Francisco, June 9.—The attorneys for Hoffman, Rothschild & Co., who assert that Isaac Hoffman was murdered, have engaged among other experts the noted judge of handwriting, Daniel T. Ames, and he has given a written opinion that the signature of Isaac Hoffman on a receipt for $9500, which is an important document in the case, was forged. The receipt, other than the signature, was written by the bookkeeper, Theodore A. Figel, as he himself has admitted. Expert Ames has reported that he found similarities between the character of this sample of Figel's writing and the disputed signature attached to it.

GULF ROAD PROSPEROUS.

Denver, Col., June 9.—The report of the Union Pacific, Denver & Gulf railway, operated under the management of Receiver Trumbull, for the first four months of the present year, shows a net increase in revenue of $144,848 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The total receipts of the Gulf road for January, February, March and April were $1,018,878. The receipts for the corresponding months of last year amounted to $921,455, making a gross increase of $97,422.

There are times when the variation of a pulse beat tells the practiced physician whether the scale will go down and mean death or up and mean life. But suppose the medicine he prescribes is not the medicine which your child is taking, but something the druggist thought would do just as well! Who is going to regulate the balance then? A druggist who will offer you something else when you ask for Scott's Emulsion will do the same thing with his prescriptions. Get what you ask for!

FIBROID TUMOR

Expelled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Interview With Mrs. B. A. Lombard.

I have reason to think that I would not be here now if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cured me of a fibroid tumor in my womb.

Doctors could do nothing for me, and they could not cure me at the hospital. I will tell you about it:

I had been in my usual health, but had worked quite hard. When my monthly period came on, I flowed very badly. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did me no good. He said the flow must be stopped if possible, and he must find the cause of my trouble.

Upon examination, he found there was a Fibroid Tumor in my womb, and gave me treatment without any benefit whatever. About that time a lady called on me, and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, said she owed her life to it. I said I would try it, and did. Soon after the flow became more natural and regular. I still continued taking the Compound for some time. Then the doctor made an examination again, and found everything all right. The tumor had passed away and that dull ache was gone.—Mrs. B. A. Lombard, Box 71, Westdale, Mass.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Lower Court Reversed in the Macy Case.

St. Paul, June 9.—Theodore Macy, expoundmaster at Duluth, will not collect $5 per month rent for the use of the ground on which the city pound up there was located while he was its poundmaster.

The supreme court held yesterday that the section in the Duluth charter that prohibits any employe of the city from holding an interest in any contract or job with the city, means just what it says and that the ex-poundmaster cannot recover from the city on an implied contract for the use and occupation of land furnished by him to the city for use as a public pound.

Macy was poundmaster in Duluth from 1888 to 1896 and received $60 per month salary. When he was elected he had purchased two small tracts of land, and he and some other city employes enclosed them for use as a pound. The city furnished the lumber for sheds, etc.

When Macy lost his job he brought suit to recover for the use of the property.

The district court allowed him $5 per month, but the supreme court reverses this and holds that since a city employe cannot recover on a positive contract he certainly cannot recover on one that is merely implied.

BAILEY IS FOR BRYAN.

The House Leader Now His Earnest Supporter.

Washington special to the Cincinnati Enquirer: Congressman Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, the house leader of the Democracy, has come out flatly for the renomination of William Jennings Bryan for president in 1900. This is an announcement of considerable political importance, coming from the source it does. Mr. Bailey has just returned from a stumping tour through the First congressional district of Missouri, and has felt the pulse of the Democracy of that state, besides having recent close relationship with Democratic leaders from all parts of the country.

"It seems to be the almost unanimous opinion of the Democrats with whom I have been brought in contact, personally and otherwise," said Mr. Bailey, "that the Democratic party should commit itself unreservedly to the re-adoption of the Chicago platform of 1896. The almost universal desire appears to be to add nothing to and subtract nothing from that platform, but to accept it without qualification or reservation as the principles of the Democratic party for 1900. It will be impossible to dissociate Mr. Bryan from that platform. He is a part of the fight of 1896, and to adopt the platform of last year and refuse the nomination to Mr. Bryan would be a serious mistake.

"Mr. Bryan is identified with the Chicago platform and with the issues of 1896 indissolubly. No man can so fully represent that platform in 1900 as the candidate of the Chicago convention of last July. It is my judgment that his renomination is a foregone conclusion. Mr. Bryan is a better Democrat now than when he was nominated, and he appears to be settling down upon a basis that entitles him to the support of all Democrats who stand squarely upon the undying principles of the party that was founded by Jefferson. I differed with Mr. Bryan in many of his earlier opinions and convictions, but since his nomination he has kept himself in everything that he has said and done strictly within the limitations of the Chicago platform, and that platform is good enough for me or any other Democrat to stand on.

"When Mr. Bryan first entered congress, six years ago, he was a tariff specialist, his studies having been confined largely to economic questions. Since then he has broadened out immensely, and I know of no man who more fully represents the popular idea of pure Democracy than he does. He is a true American, a patriot, and a man whom the Democrats of the country feel that they can trust. The Democratic party today is more united than I have ever know it to be. The Populists who left the party because of Cleveland and his policies have returned, and are with us again heart and soul. The middle-of-the-road Populists are still against us, as they always have been, because we have not subscribed to their extreme views, and the gold Democrats are still an uncertain quantity. They will have to come to us, however, or go over to the Republicans. We cannot afford to yield to either extreme, and must stand upon the platform of 1896. Ninety-nine per cent of the Democrats of the United States hold that view."

SHOT BY BURGLARS.

Omaha, Neb., June 9.—While trying to arrest three burglars at 3:30 this morning, Police Officers Tiedmann and Glover were shot, the former perhaps fatally. Glover's wounds are not thought to be serious. The burglars escaped.

BRIDE WORTH MILLIONS.

Miss Perkins, Boston's Greatest Heiress, to Marry.

Boston, June 9.—Boston's greatest heiress will wed on Friday and the event will be celebrated in a manner befitting the wealth involved. The bride will be Miss Isabel Perkins, and the groom Lars Anderson.

Miss Perkins is the granddaughter of the late William F. Weld, from whom she inherits a fortune of $17,000,000. This fortune will come to her next year when she will be of age, and will amount to $20,000,000. Miss Perkins is an only child, and her mother, a daughter of Mr. Weld, inherited a fortune as large as her own. Miss Perkins is, therefore, an heir apparent to something like $40,000,000 or $50,000,000. She is a pretty and charming girl, petite in figure, a brunette, most unassuming and genial in manner, a brilliant conversationalist, and singularly happy in temperament. Her father is Commodore George H. Perkins, U. S. N., retired, whose brother, Hamilton Perkins, of Boston, married the daughter of William Bliss, president of the Boston & Albany railroad.

MISS ISABEL PERKINS.

Mr. Anderson, the groom, whose home is in Washington, D. C., was born in Ohio, and is a son of the late Gen. Nicholas Anderson and a nephew of Gen. Robert Anderson, of Fort Sumpter fame. Mr. Anderson fitted for college at Exeter, N. H., and was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1888. It was during his student days that he first met Miss Perkins, then scarcely more than a child. In the autumn of 1895 Miss Perkins went abroad with Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott as chaperon, intending to make a trip around the world. They stopped at Rome and there the lovemaking that has culminated in a wedding began, Mr. Anderson being secretary of the LARS ANDERSON.

American legation at that time.

The wedding will take place in the Arlington street church. All Boston society will be present, besides many notable people from New York, Newport, Washington and Cleveland, the former home of the Andersons. The bride's gown and her entire trousseau come from Paris, and are said to be magnificent. The wedding gown is the most costly affair worn this season, either in Boston or in New York. Miss Elizabeth Anderson, sister of the groom, will be maid of honor; Charles Francis Adams, second best man. The wedding procession will be notable, comprising four Boston girls of marked beauty—the Misses Eleanor Gray, Susie Dalton, Theodorea Knight and Elizabeth Seabury, debutantes the same year as Miss Perkins—and four well known society men as ushers.

AN ARMOR PLATE PLANT.

San Francisco, June 9.—Should the government accept the proposition of the Union Iron works to provide armor plate for the battleship Wisconsin, now in course of construction, it is thought that an armor plate plant will be established in this city. Abbott Brown, of Edinburgh, Scotland, known all over the world as an expert in such matters, and himself a large manufacturer of armor plate, recently visited and inspected the Union Iron works, and it is asserted that he reported favorably on the project to establish an armor plate factory here. There is cause to believe that he not only made estimates of the cost of such works, but prepared working plans for their construction.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.—

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage which was duly executed and delivered by Thomas Sharp, (a widower), mortgagor, to Alexander Macrae, mortgagee, bearing date June thirteenth (13th), 1895, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on June twenty-first (21st), 1895, at one (1) o'clock p. m., in Book one hundred twenty-seven (127) of mortgages, on page four hundred forty (440); which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said Alexander Macrae to Margaret Meskill, by an instrument of assignment dated June twenty-sixth (26th), 1895, and was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office, on June twenty-seventh (27th), 1895, at 8:40 o'clock a. m., in Book one hundred seven (107) of mortgages, on page two hundred seventy-seven (277) thereof; such default consisting in the non-payment of the semi-annual installments of interest upon said mortgage debt, and of the coupons given for the same, which became due respectively on June 1st, 1896, and December 1st, 1896, amounting to the sum of $40 each, no part of any of which has ever been paid; by reason whereof the assignee of said mortgage has elected to exercise the option to her given by the terms of said mortgage, by declaring, and she does hereby declare, that the whole principal sum secured by said mortgage, with all accrued interest thereon, and exchange, and $15 heretofore paid by said assignee of said mortgage, for insurance premiums upon said mortgaged premises, in accordance with the provisions of said mortgage, is now immediately due and payable.

And whereas there is therefore claimed to be due, and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of one thousand one hundred thirty-six and 5-100 ($1136.05) dollars, principal, interest, exchange and insurance premiums so paid.

And whereas said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis County, Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lots numbered three (3), five (5), seven (7), nine (9) and eleven (11), in block numbered five (5), in Central Division of West Duluth, according to the recorded plat thereof on file of record in the office of the register of deeds for said county; which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-fifth (25th) day of June, A. DECLINED

Wheat Started Out Strong Today and the Price Advanced Sharply.

Then Weakness Set In and the Market Sold Down Steadily.

Talk of Manipulation in July at Chicago Scared the Shorts.

Wheat opened strong and higher today. The general sentiment was decidedly bullish, and the sluggish response of Liverpool to yesterday's advance in American markets was entirely disregarded. At Chicago, the air was full of talk of manipulation in July. A new factor also made its influence felt there, prospects of a new elevator row with no regular houses after July, coupled with the already small Chicago stocks starting shorts on the run. In contrast to the strength of July, in which heavy trading was done, was the weakness of September and December. Northwest receipts small, 212 cars, compared with 263 cars last week and 354 the year before.

As soon as the heavier scalpers at Chicago had recovered from their first surprise at the sudden upward flight of July, which cost many of them dearly, they turned their attention to September and finding it unprotected, fell upon it tooth and nail, and got enough satisfaction in that to partially console them for their miscalculation of the strength of July. Then the whole market turned weak and prices went steadily downward.

July opened ½c higher at 71¾c on the Duluth board and quickly sold up to 62⅝c. This was the high point. The price then declined steadily until July sold at 70½c at 1 o'clock. The close was at that figure, a decline of ¾c for the day. The mills bought 32,000 bus of cash stuff at 1¼c over July, and shippers took 45,000 bus at ¾c over July. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 72c; September, 65¾c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71¾c; July, 70½c; September, 63¾c bid. No. 2 northern, 68¾c. No. 3, 64@65c. Rejected, 47¾@62¾c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 72c; No. 1 northern, 71¾c. Rye, 34½c. No. 2 oats, 21c; No. 3 oats, 20½c. Flax, 76c.

Car inspection—Wheat: 104; corn, 1; oats, 69; rye, 9; barley, 31; flax, 23. Receipts—Wheat, 79,249 bus; corn, 619 bus; oats, 110,224 bus; rye, 13,500 bus; barley, 4042 bus; flax, 10,480 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 170,095 bus; oats, 109,500 bus; rye, 20,067 bus; flax, 50,128 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 9.—The Liverpool advance since Friday hardly equalled ours for the same time and foreigners sold wheat at New York. The continental markets advanced sharply. July shorts were again frightened early and in addition to fears of a squeeze they had a new elevator row to contend with and the possibility of no regular houses after July 1, not stopping to consider that the wheat would not become irregular for six months after in case such action was taken. July wheat jumped to 70¾c very quickly on buying credited to elevator interests, but on the advance the market seemed congested with July longs instead of the expected large short interest. Profits were taken on several large lines and the market declined steadily, closing at the put price. September and December wheat were steadier but were freely sold mainly on orders from the Northwest where rains were general today and the crop outlook improved. The government report due tomorrow is a damper on bull speculation as there is hardly a doubt but that it will be very bearish.

Corn and oats declined only fractionally, the improved weather and weakness in wheat not proving an offset to the alarming reports from Iowa where only about half a crop is now looked for.

Provisions easier on large receipts of hogs and general selling by packers.

Puts, July wheat, 67¼@67¾c.
Calls, July wheat, 69½@69¾c.

TOWNE WILL CHOOSE.

To Select National Silver Republican Committee.

Chicago, June 9.—The executive committee of the National Silver Republican party held a session this afternoon to discuss methods of carrying on the organization. The national committee of the new party did not hold a meeting today as intended, but decided to leave the selection of the executive committee to Chairman Towne. Ex-Senator Fred Dubois of Idaho, will be chairman of this committee. The others will be in charge of ex-Congressman Charles A. Towne of Minnesota, and for the present will be at Duluth.

The committee favored immediate organization for the congressional elections of 1898, and also for the campaign of 1900, and instructed Chairman Towne to push this work as rapidly as possible. Chairman Towne said today that the conference was better attended than he expected, and that he believed it indicate that the Silver Republicans would hold the balance of power in the congressional and presidential elections.

You may never know it happened if you fail to read The Evening Herald.

TO THE GOLD COUNTRY.

Two Toronto Men Arrive Here on Their Way.

W. H. Cawthra and J. H. Chewett, of Toronto, arrived in the city this morning on their way to the Seine river gold country by the Tower route. Mr. Cawthra is a Toronto capitalist, who is treasurer of the Foley company, and Mr. Chewett is a mining engineer, who is well known both in the British Columbia and Rainy Lake districts, with each of which he is familiar. Mr. Cawthra, who is also secretary of the Seine-Manitou Gold Mining company, is on his way to Shoal lake to look over the development of E. 176 and 177, which adjoin the Foley property and the townsite of Foley on the east. These locations were purchased by the company this spring, and a crew has just been put at work on the development. Mr. Chewitt, who is consulting engineer for the company, will also look over the property for the purpose of making a report.

This is Mr. Cawthra's third visit to the Seine river. He professes himself as entirely satisfied with the progress made on the Foley, and he has been induced to make further investments as a result of the Foley's success as a gold producer. "The Foley has proven the existence of the metal in paying quantities," he said today to The Herald, "and I feel very confident as to the future of the country."

Mr. Chewitt was asked for a comparison of his observations of the British Columbia and Ontario gold fields. "Such a comparison would be very difficult to make," he replied, "owing to the wholly dissimilar nature of the deposits. The ores of Rossland district, for instance, are all smelting ores, while most of the Seine River and Lake of the Woods country are free milling. However, in general, I should unhesitatingly pronounce in favor of the Rainy Lake country. The fact that the Rossland ores are smelting necessitates heavy expenses for mining, and higher grade ores are required for profitable investment than in a milling ore. In addition to this transportation is difficult and expensive, and labor is dearer than in the Ontario and Minnesota fields.

"For these reasons it is clear that it will require less capital to develop a Rainy Lake property than elsewhere. In the Ontario country some prospectors have made more of a gamble out of their investments than was necessary. They have located a property and purchased machinery without first inquiring whether they had the ore, or if they had it, whether their machinery was the kind required. Many failures will be due to this.

"I am very favorably impressed with the country so far as I have seen it. The formations are favorable to the existence of gold, and even if they were not, it has been proved to exist in paying quantities, and that knowledge is better than theories about surface appearances. Continuity of quantity has also been proven, and all that remains to be demonstrated is continuity of quality. Several mines in various parts of the district are over 200 feet down, with quality and quantity so far continuous, and this should satisfy most people. The formations are different in the Manitou, Lake of the Woods, Sawbill and Shoal Lake districts, no one being like any other. For my part I prefer the appearance of the granite formations, such as exists in the Shoal Lake district. There the veins are true fissures, clear cut and continuous."

Messrs. Cawthra and Chewett left this afternoon for Tower. Mr. Chewett will return to Toronto by way of Rat Portage, and Mr. Cawthra will return this way in about two weeks.

CALUMET AND HECLA DIVIDEND.

Boston, June 9.—The directors of the Calumet and Hecla Mining company have declared a dividend of $10 per share, payable July 7 to stockholders of record June 11. The last previous dividend was $5 and was paid April 13, and today's announced $10 really amounts to an extra dividend of $5 and brings the payments thus far this calendar year up to $30 per share, as against $25 for the corresponding period last year. The declaration of $10 calls for $1,000,000 and brings the companies aggregate dividend disbursements up to $49,850,000.

TILLMAN SAT DOWN.

There was a lively and characteristic dialogue in the senate one day last week between Senator Chandler and Senator Tillman, the one always entertaining and the other always brusque and picturesque, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Mr. Tillman had a question to ask Mr. Chandler while the debate over the Chapman case was in progress, and stood awaiting a reply.

"If the senator desires to stand while I answer the question," observed Mr. Chandler, smiling, and then he hesitated.

"I will exercise my own discretion about that," said Mr. Tillman, in his off-hand way. "If you are long-winded in answering it I may sit down."

"I will yield to the senator if he remains standing to ask another question," said the senator, still leaning against a desk and observing Mr. Tillman closely.

The South Carolina senator gave himself a hitch and observed, amid laughter, that "when you play ball you stand up, when you do not lie down."

"That is a habit of the senate, and it is a very vicious habit," commented Mr. Chandler, with some sharpness. "It makes debate hard work for an old senator, and it is an absolute deterrent for the senators who sit on the edges of this body." And with a wave of his hand Mr. Chandler indicated the rear seats.

"O, well, then," said Mr. Tillman, with a resigned air, "I reckon I will have to sit down."

So he dropped into his seat and the laughter subsided.

TWO WIVES ALLOWED.

Italy enjoys at the present moment the distinction of being the only civilized country in Europe where it is possible to commit bigamy without exposing one's self to any danger of punishment, says the New York Tribune. Since the constitution of the kingdom in 1870 the authorities have insisted that only a civil marriage is legally binding. On the other hand, the church refuses to recognize this form of matrimonial union as valid, and requires the faithful to go through the religious service, venting its displeasure on those who seek any civil sanction to their alliance. The government has repeatedly tried to secure the enactment of a law providing for the punishment of any priest who should have performed the religious marriage service without the latter having been preceded by a civil ceremony. But the vast body of the people in Italy are Catholic to the core, and would not tolerate any measure which had the appearance of encroaching on the rights of the church. The result is that today large numbers of unscrupulous people take advantage of the condition of affairs to have two wives, one in the eyes of the church and the other in the eyes of the civil authorities. And they can do this without the slightest danger of being called to account or of being punished.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—

Default has been made in the payment of the semi-annual installment of interest amounting to the sum of thirty-six dollars ($36.00), which became due on the first day of May, 1897, which default has continued to the date of this notice, upon a mortgage duly executed and delivered by Charles W. Hoyt and Jennie M. Hoyt, his wife, mortgagors, to The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of November, 1892, and with a power of sale therein contained and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on November 24th, 1892, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. in Book 99 of mortgages, on page 47; and

Whereas, said mortgagors made default in paying taxes against the mortgaged premises for the years 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895, and it was provided in said mortgage that the undersigned mortgagee might pay said taxes upon default of said mortgagors. The undersigned paid said taxes on the mortgaged premises for the above years on June 8th, 1897, amounting to one hundred twenty-five and 19-100 dollars ($125.19). The undersigned claims and has a lien against said mortgaged premises under the terms of said mortgage, for the amount so paid, with interest from day of payment at the rate of six per cent per annum.

More than ten days have elapsed since the default made in the payment of said installment of interest and the said The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole principal sum of said mortgage due and payable, at the date of this notice, under the terms of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained. There is therefore actually due and claimed to be due at the date of this notice, for principal on said mortgage debt and interest and the sum of twelve hundred forty-three and 82-100 dollars ($1243.82); and for taxes as above stated, one hundred twenty-five and 19-100 dollars ($125.19), amounting in all to the sum of thirteen hundred sixty-nine and 01-100 dollars ($1369.01). No action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Therefore notice is given that under the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The westerly thirty (30) feet of the easterly ninety-five (95) feet of lot one hundred and eighty-one (181), in block sixty-seven (67), of Duluth Proper, Second Division, more particularly described as follows: Commencing at a point on the northerly line of First street fifty (50) feet easterly from the westerly line of lot one hundred and eighty-one (181), block sixty-seven (67), Second Division; running thence northerly on a line parallel to the westerly line of said lot one hundred and eighty-one (181) one hundred and twenty feet (120), to a point on Summit avenue; thence along the westerly line of Summit avenue in a southeasterly direction to a point on said line of Summit avenue, eighty (80) feet distant from westerly line of said lot one hundred and eighty-one (181), and in a line drawn at right angles to said westerly line of said lot one hundred and eighty-one (181); thence southerly to a point in the northerly line of First street, eighty (80) feet easterly from the westerly line of lot one hundred and eighty-one (181); thence westerly along the northerly line of First street thirty (30) feet to place of beginning, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, and said lands being in St. Louis county, Minnesota. Said sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state on the 22nd day of July, A. D. 1897, at 10 o'clock a. m. on that day at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of thirteen hundred sixty-nine and 01-100 dollars ($1369.01) and interest thereon, and seventy-five dollars ($75.00) attorneys' fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

THE JURY SYSTEM.

Many of the leading Eastern papers are discussing the strength and weakness of the jury system. The discussion was started by an address delivered by Judge Dean of the supreme court of Philadelphia before the Law academy of Philadelphia, in which he gave a very candid judicial opinion upon the ins and outs of this venerable system. He not only spoke frankly and comprehensively upon the situation, but he suggested the remedy which would cure the existing defects in the system. Speaking as a friend of the system, reviewing it as "the most important pillar of our grand edifice of justice," he first pointed out its weaknesses, which have developed more in recent years than it is pleasant to contemplate. He said: "Given the parties and their financial condition, without regard to the weight or significance of the evidence, in a very large number of cases the verdict can be assumed with approximate certainty. An individual against a corporation, municipal or private; a poor man against a rich one, the undoubted tendency in late years is, on conflicting evidence, to find the disputed fact for plaintiff without giving proper weight to countervailing evidence in favor of the defendant."

What is the cause of this serious defect in the machinery of justice? Judge Dean declares that an increase in socialistic tendencies, which to some extent find their expression, even among the "sober, intelligent and discreet persons" from which juries are supposed to be drawn, has its effect, while the impersonal character of corporations fails to arouse that sympathy which can be excited in behalf of the individual. The successful attempt of those who represent the higher and larger interests of society to evade jury duty reduces the composition of that body below the average of intelligent, sober and discreet citizenship upon which the just operation of the jury system depends. This was the remedy that he proposed:

"I would take the banker from his desk, the editor and professor from their chairs, the preacher from his pulpit, and put them in the jury box, there, under oath, to well and truly try or a true deliverance make, according to the evidence. I would make shirking duty as odious as skulking in time of war; instead of leaving to them the sole part of criticising and denouncing courts and juries, I would inflexibly compel them, as the law intended they should, to perform their part in the administration of justice, wherever they were sober, intelligent and judicious. I would make jury duty as imperative and as certain as payment of taxes on a house and lot. The presence of such men would raise the average of conscience and intelligence as indicated by the verdict, and have it represent the intelligence and conscience of the general public. Instead of wholesale denunciation from the most trivial evidence, and instead of stating the real cause, their own default in duty, I would give them the opportunity to learn for themselves how both courts and juries, with the light they have, strive to arrive at the truth, under the law and the evidence."

The Boston Transcript says that such a remedy would seem rather heroic, but is there any other, provided we are to adhere to the jury idea? Justice is the foremost thing to be striven for in any government, and can any community live up to the spirit and purpose of the fundamental idea if those best fitted to interpret its meaning shirk their responsibilities? If juries are honeycombed with socialism it is because those to whom socialism is most dangerous use every means, legitimate and otherwise, to escape a duty which, cheerfully accepted, would enable them not only to aid in promoting the ends of justice in general, but to act in their own defence as well.

OUR MINING INDUSTRIES.

The Engineering and Mining Journal has presented the statistics of mineral production during the last calendar year, and they certainly make a very good showing for a period of industrial depression. It is shown that our output of gold, silver, copper and pig iron is now greater than that of any other country in the world, and that our coal output is exceeded only by that of Great Britain. The total value of the metal and mineral production is placed at $751,732,782 for the year 1896, which exceeded by $18,791,264 the production for 1895. The production of gold was $58,660,637, which was $11,830,437 more than for 1895, and nearly $28,000,000 more than it was a few years ago. The silver mines produced 56,222,322 fine ounces, or 9,891,087 more than they did the year before. The government did not buy much of it, but the fact that we exported $50,524,759 (coining value) more than we imported shows that there is still a considerable demand for silver in the world for the purposes of coinage.

The production of copper was 467,822,973 pounds, or 81,350,000 pounds more than the year before, and more than in any previous year. We exported 253,223,924 pounds of this metal in 1896, or more than half the total product. The enormous increase in the demand for copper arising out of the introduction of electric lighting and power gives producers good profits, notwithstanding the great increase in output, as is shown by the frequent and large dividends paid by the companies operating the copper mines on the south shore of Lake Superior.

The production of coal last year was 187,373,477 tons, a decrease of 1,922,167 tons as compared with 1895. This decrease of not much more than 1 per cent does not signify a very serious depression of industry. The production of pig iron was 8,623,127 long tons, or 821,861 less than in 1895. This decrease of nearly 10 per cent was more serious than the decrease in the coal output. But it is to be borne in mind that the product was still more than twice as great as it was fifteen years ago.

PRIVILEGED COMMUNICATIONS.

An interesting point came up in the Fair will trial at San Francisco last week, when Dr. Sobey took the stand, apparently to tell about something Mrs. Craven had said to him about the case while she was under his medical care. Mrs. Craven's attorney objected on the ground that statements made by a patient to a doctor were privileged communications. The attorneys on the other side contended that everything said in a sick room was not necessarily a privileged communication. Without doubt patients think it is, and believe accordingly; and, without doubt, the great majority of physicians so consider it and so treat it.

The relations established between a patient and a physician in whom he has confidence are so close that the line at which communications cease to be privileged, if there be such a line, is never thought of; and most people place more confidence in their family physician than in their regular legal adviser. The latter may be trusted with business secrets and may have to be trusted sometimes with personal affairs; but it is the physician who is consulted about the innermost family troubles and from whom it is not considered necessary to hide anything.

The Herald agrees with the contention of the San Francisco Report that it should be so, in the interest both of medical science and of society. It is likely that more family trouble has been happily ended and more disagreements and discords adjusted, and more evil averted in families by the advice of a discreet, clever and experienced physician than by any lawyer, however large his circle of clients. The confidence between attorney and client, that is so sternly guarded, is necessary in most cases only that the client may get the better of another in a law suit or that law and justice may be the more readily defeated. That between doctor and patient is no alliance against anybody or anything and in most instances is directly beneficent in its object and in its result. The confidence between doctor and patient should be as well guarded as that between penitent and confessor, and it is to the interest of society that the law should so hold.

Washington officeholders are amazed over the action of a woman in refusing promotion in the pension department. The facts are worth telling. When informed of her good luck, she went to the commissioner and said: "There is a woman who sits beside me who merits this much more than I do. She is a splendid clerk and supports her sick sister and child. Her necessities are greater than mine. I want to ask a favor of you." The commissioner of pensions stood amazed at these words: "I want to ask you," continued the female clerk, "if you will let this other woman have my promotion and the increased salary until she is in better circumstances. Then we may change again." Of course the request was granted. What if the selfish are amazed? asks the Omaha Bee. The rest of human kind honors her for it.

While Rev. Dr. R. E. MacArthur was talking to the graduating class of the medical department of the New York university recently he said: "The time is coming when we shall cross the ocean in steamships that generate their electric power from the waves as they speed over the seas. I believe that the time is coming when it will be possible to breakfast in New York and dine in London." The professors on the platform could not refrain from laughter, and the doctor turned to them: "I do believe it," he said; "really, I do. If a man were to come to me tomorrow and say that he had a machine that would carry me to the moon I might hesitate to trust myself in it or decline to invest in the stock, but I should not dare to contradict him."

Dr. Lepsius of Berlin, who made a thorough and a special investigation of the Armenian massacres, declares that the Turks destroyed 2500 Armenian towns with their inhabitants, and that the people of 282 towns were only spared on condition of their becoming Mohammedans. Mr. Lecky, the well known historian, declares that the massacres caused the death of 200,000 persons, that they were planned by the sultan and carried out under his orders, and that the sufferings of the Armenians as a people within the past two years exceeded all that they had endured for the previous 800 years. And yet the "Christian" powers of Europe protect the unspeakable Turk at every opportunity!

Mr. Towne has been selected as the permanent chairman of the national committee of the Silver Republican party. Heretofore he has held that office provisionally. No better choice could have been made by those taking part in the organization of the new party, because Mr. Towne is able and energetic and a tireless worker in behalf of any cause which he espouses.

The opposition to the new law requiring marriage license in New Jersey is not confined to Gretna Green ministers. Eligible girls oppose it. It is said that there are nine women to the one man in the state. Consequently, it is argued, that when a girl captures a man, there should be no legal obstacles to an immediate hitch, lest the prize get away.

The Nansens are much in the public eye this year. Norway has its Dr. Nansen who is being feted and dined wherever he goes, and Denmark has a distinguished poet, named Peter Nansen, who has just been banqueted in Berlin, where he has many admirers.

It is positively shocking to find in today's News Tribune so many gross violations of the rule as to the use of "who, which and that," recently promulgated by the editor of that journal for the benefit of the benighted mortals at the head of the lakes.

Senator Hanna has reached Washington from Ohio with changed ideas on the Cuban question, being now in favor of speedy action. He must have accidentally come in contact with public sentiment.

Certainly no one can justly complain that the tariff bill is being delayed in the senate. Rapid progress is being made on the various schedules, no attempt being made to employ any dilatory tactics.

The Kentucky court of appeals has decided that a fatal mosquito bite calls for the payment in full of an accident insurance policy. This will necessitate a new exception being placed in insurance policies.

The governor of Georgia has eighty-six colonels on his staff. He evidently does not intend to let the stock of Southern colonels run short.

"Czar" Reed is not aiding his aspirations of becoming president, if he still entertains any hope of ever reaching that position.

Indiana courts have held that life insurance policies are not taxable in that state, which is a sensible and just decision.

FOUND ONCE IN A WHILE.

The following gem is by a namesake and grandson of the great novelist J. Fenimore Cooper. He is modest, and although his verses have generally the same sweetness and nobleness of tone, he will only publish them anonymously for circulation among his personal friends. This is believed to be the first time one of his poems has found its way into a public print.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life flows by like a song,
But the man worth while is the one who will smile
When everything goes wrong.
For the test of the heart is trouble,
And it always comes with the years,
And the smile that is worth the praises of earth
Is the smile that shines through tears.

It is easy enough to be prudent
When nothing tempts you to stray,
When without or within no voice of sin
Is luring your soul away.
But it's only a negative virtue
Until it is tried by fire,
And the life that is worth the honor of earth
Is the one that resists desire.

By the cynics, the sad, the fallen,
Who had no strength for the strife,
The world's highway is cumbered today—
They make up the item of life.
But the virtue that conquers passion,
And the sorrow that hides in a smile—
It is these that are worth the homage of earth,
For we find them but once in a while.

THE REFERENDUM.

Chicago Journal (Rep.): Political corruption at Springfield resulted from the law of supply and demand. That law can not be repealed, but the circumsthances of its operation can be changed so that it will no longer work corruption.

There was an efficient demand, that is to say, a demand accompanied by the ability to purchase, for corrupt votes. The price was offered and the votes were sold. This demand can be destroyed. Unless it is destroyed it will grow in extent and in efficiency with the growth of great aggregations of capital. It is greater now than it was twenty years ago. It threatens to increase corruption and destroy the liberties of the people. If the people don't destroy it it will destroy them.

The way to destroy this demand for corruption, which creates a supply of corruption as surely as a demand for food creates a supply of wheat, is to deprive the representatives of the people of the power of selling the people's liberties, rights and property without the people's consent. Every such measure as the Allen bill and Crawford gas monopoly bills, every bill which a designated proportion of the people demanded by petition to have referred to popular vote, should be submitted to a vote of the people before becoming law. This is the referendum.

A body of citizens met at Uhlich's hall yesterday and virtually pledged themselves to inaugurate a movement throughout the state for the purpose of getting the referendum into the constitution. Many of them were Swiss, or of Swiss descent, and they knew from experience in Switzerland, or from tradition, that the referendum is a working reality in one country at least, and not the "iridescent dream" of visionary reformers.

By passing the Allen bill and the Crawford gas monopoly bills in the face of the fiercest opposition that the people of Illinois have offered to any legislation for nearly twenty years the legislature of Illinois made a farce of popular sovereignty for the time being and demonstrated that under the present conditions the people have no power over their rights and property after a legislature has once been elected.

What are the people going to do about it? The infamous gas monopoly bills were made law by the signature of Governor Tanner and the people had not a word to say. The people are equally powerless to keep him from signing the Allen bill.

We believe the referendum, at least, if not accompanied by the initiative, should be in the constitution of this state, and that recent occurrences at Springfield should bring the intelligent and progressive part of the community to the same conviction.

THE CHICAGO ELECTION.

Chicago Times-Herald (Ind.—Rep.): The election of the entire non-partisan ticket is the same sort of rebuke to the Democratic machine as the election last April was to the Republican machine. The Democrats carried things with a high hand and alienated the support of the silver men. An analysis of the vote will show that had the silver men all voted the Democratic ticket some of the men on that ticket, like Thornton, would have been elected over the lower candidates on the non-partisan ticket. Had the Democrats been wholly united it is not improbable they might have been able to stir up sufficient enthusiasm to have elected their entire ticket. The Democratic leaders attempt to explain the defeat by saying that it is the result of the slow dispensation of city hall patronage—reaction from expectation of a banquet of spoils. The average citizen, as he studies the figures and remembers what has gone before in the campaign, will be more likely to say it was a revolt against machine dictation. Mayor Harrison himself attempted to push the Democratic ticket to success and failed.

Chicago Chronicle (gold-Dem.): Altogether the result was about what might have been expected. Interest was lacking and, with no particular partisan advantage to be gained, a majority of the voters stayed away from the polls. The result is, therefore, without any significance other than that the average voter is very little concerned with the outcome of a judicial election.

Chicago Record (Ind.): In Chicago the issue had narrowed down to the question whether candidates for judgeships should be selected solely on account of their fitness and integrity, or whether these considerations were to be ignored and partisan politicians were to use the judgeships as part of the spoils system of machine politics. The victory yesterday for non-partisanship in judiciary elections may be taken as meaning that a heavier vote would have resulted in a still larger majority for the non-partisan ticket. It is evident that the enlightened sentiment among voters is against every agency which might tend to make the courts amenable to political influences. This being the case, there remains but one lesson for the voters to grasp. They must arouse to an adequate appreciation of the importance of elections for judges. Necessarily there is less fuss and excitement about a judiciary election than about an election for various executive or legislative officers. Yet for the citizen the judiciary election is fully as important, if not more so.

Chicago Inter-Ocean (Rep.): The vote polled was only about one-half of the actual vote in the city. The Democratic party machine worked indefatigably and got out all the votes which could be mustered in support of the Harrison plan of a "live-wire" Democratic judiciary which no Republican could safely touch without "rubber gloves." The sentiment of Chicago on some propositions may vary greatly from election to election, but on the question of a non-partisan judiciary it is fixed and overwhelming. While the vote of yesterday was not partisan, the effect cannot fail to be most wholesome to the Republican party.

AT HER SERVICE

She gayly tripped into the store;
Three busy clerks were there;
They dropped their labors and rushed forth
To serve the maiden fair.

She fingered in her dainty purse;
They, waiting, stood around;
She bit her ruby lips—her change,
It seemed, could not be found.

At last she fished two pennies out,
And faced the waiting three.
And smiling then upon those men.
"I'd like a stamp," said she.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Winners at the New York Gravesend track yesterday were Sir Play, Agure, Clover, Preakness, Miss Floride and a dead heat on sixth race between Sir Bartholemew and Wolhuest.

At Clarksdale, Miss., G. B. Mosley, a banker of the city, was killed yesterday, by Meagher C. W. Wise, in the street in front of the latter's office. Wise is in custody. A small suit, in which Mosley was interested, was tried before the mayor last week, and the decision of the latter displeased Mosley. The ill-feeling has been growing since, culminating in the shooting. Both men had firearms, and opinion differs as to which made a threatening movement.

Florence Williams killed her lover in McDowell county, W. Va., yesterday afternoon, after a heated quarrel, and escaped. Both are members of prominent families. There is much excitement over the matter. The man was killed in a fit of jealousy.

A man who declares that he is Francis Schlatter, the alleged healer, who was reported to have starved to death in Mexico, arrived in Cleveland yesterday, and is stopping at a boarding house on Huron street. With him is a man named Hollandberger, of New York, who says they intend to open an institute in this city. It is difficult to prove or disprove the claim of the alleged healer.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles, United States army, paid a long visit to the Italian minister of war, Lieut. Gen. Pelloux, at Rome, and while passing through Naples, Gen. Miles visited the Puzzioli artillery arsenal. The general started for London yesterday.

A match dropped by one of the workmen in the fireworks factory of M. Shure, at the corner of West Van Buren and Halstead streets, Chicago, caused a terrific explosion a few minutes after 6 o'clock last night. Several people were injured, and the building damaged.

F. B. Thayer, the fireman of the work train in the collision near Hudson Monday, is dead. His injuries were known to be very serious, and though every attention was given to him after he was brought to the hospital at St. Paul, he expired yesterday.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Investigation has been started on a report that Ole and Frank Franklin had murdered a man about twelve years ago near Larimore. The Franklins lived about twenty miles south of here, and are well known in Nelson county. Frank Franklin died about a year ago, and it is now reported that he made a confession of the murder on his deathbed to his wife. It seems that Frank Franklin feared that his brother Ole would make trouble for his widow, and made the confession to her as a club to hold over him. It now transpires that the widow is having trouble with Ole over a land deal, and so tells of the deathbed confession of her husband for the first time. Ole Franklin has been arrested, and a thorough investigation will be made.

When the trial of the Indian Cadott is concluded, which will be the latter part of this week, the greater part of the population of the county of Emmons will be at Williamsport to learn the verdict of the jury, which they confidently expect will be "guilty." They do not admit that it can be anything else, after the testimony that has been given. If a verdict of acquittal is rendered, Williamsport will probably be the scene of trouble.

Mrs. Schantz, a wealthy Chicago woman, secured a divorce at Fargo on the ground of non-support. While establishing a residence here she was accompanied by a Mr. Mariner, of the same city, and their relations here attracted unusual attention. The latter left Monday for San Francisco.

A special message was received at Grand Forks from a member of the Elk Valley Farming company, of Larimore, stating that Thomas Booth, president of that company, had died very suddenly at St. Louis of heart failure. President Booth was well and favorably known in this city and at Larimore, where he was highly esteemed.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The early whistle of the steam thresher and its curling smoke ascending from different points on the prairie is something novel for the month of June in this state, but we are "getting used to it," says a Madison dispatch. Winter caught our farmers with fully a third of their grain unthreshed, and now that seeding and planting is finished, the farmers begin to finish up their threshing. Only the very best built stacks are yielding a marketable quality of grain, the balance being entirely or partially spoiled.

A BACHELOR'S REFLECTIONS.

New York Press: Every girl has an idea that other girls don't realize how homely they are.

The devil hasn't much opinion of a sin that isn't considered highly respectable.

A girl's hat is called a success when you have to look at it twice to tell it from a lamp shade.

Adam probably didn't mind it so much because he knew Eve could never say it was just because he didn't take her advice.

The average man can be in love and not have enough to eat a good deal easier than he can have enough to eat and not be in love.

When a man is really in love with a woman the worst fear he has is that he may some time meet another he will love as much.

FELL FROM THE CLIFF.

Two Year Old Child Falls Sixty Feet.

The 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Abrahamson, of 1306 West First street, fell from the top of the "point of rocks," near Thirteenth avenue west, sixty feet, to the sidewalk, yesterday afternoon, striking on his head. No bones were broken, and it is thought it will survive. When picked up the child was insensible and was bleeding at the mouth and nostrils. An examination revealed several shallow indentations of the skull and several bad bruises on the body. It was found, however, that the child could move all its limbs, and that there was no loss of sensation anywhere. The most serious injuries seemed to be about the head and face. The child was dressed in thick clothing, and wore a cloak, which protected it from more serious injury. As it fell, the cloak wrapped around its head.

The child had been playing around the doorstep of its house, which is not far from the brow of the cliff, and crept to the brink when the mother's attention was occupied with her household duties.

Secretary Truelsen of the board of fire commissioners has resigned his position as such, not being willing to do the work for the salary of $15 per month, the figure at which the council seems determined to fix it. He will retain the records of the office for April and May, he says, until his salary for those months is allowed at the old figures. In this, he says, he is sustained by the advice of his counsel. He will continue to act as the mayor's secreary.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Prof. Rudolph's Paper on Toadstools and Mushrooms.

The regular monthly meeting of the Historical and Scientific association was held at the High School last night. Secretary Brocklehurst read a report on the models procured for the society by Capt. J. W. Miller. They have not yet been unpacked, but cases are being prepared for them. The following new members were added to the association: W. T. Bailey, Dr. J. E. Bowers, T. Zweifel, J. L. Thwing, M. H. McMahon, Fred Tischer, Robert Eyster, Miss Nellie Prendergast, R. O. Sweeney, Bishop Morrison, G. E. Arbury, Dr. Slaughter, A. Miles, L. Mendenhall, E. J. Duffies and F. H. Russell.

A. T. Rudolph read an instructive and interesting paper on "Edible Toadstools and Poisonous Mushrooms," illustrated by stereopticon slides prepared by A. J. Woodman. Mr. Rudolph, in opening, spoke of his subject as one on which few are well informed, useful as such knowledge might be. Knowledge of the various branches of this family native to this country might be convenient, as frequently campers or explorers might use them for food. With some study, he said, the distinguishing features of the edible varieties could be learned. He then described thirty-seven varieties of the plant that grow in Northern Minnesota, including some of the poisonous varieties. He discussed at length the methods of mushroom culture, as well as some of the methods employed in preparing them for the table. A general discussion followed the paper. There was a large attendance.

Lost His Watch.

Nicholas Miller reported to the police last night that he had been jostled by four men near the Omaha depot, earlier in the evening, and that he thought his silver watch had been jarred into the pocket of some one in the crowd. At any rate, he had not seen it since. The chain was left hanging in his vest.

Fire broke out early this morning at the Gray planing mill, on Rice's Point, starting in the shavings under the planer. The flames were extinguished without loss by the mill hands.

GIGANTIC

John D. Rockefeller Has a Scheme of Great Magnitude Under Way.

Planning For a Railroad Line From the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Chicago Terminal Transfer Railroad Organized as the First Step.

J. D. Rockefeller is fast making good his title to the earth. He has long owned the oil beneath the surface, has acquired possession of the refineries, gathered in the pipe lines and gained control of the railroad lines and gained the oil trade. With this great industry completely in his power, he invaded the iron field, captured some of the best mines on the Wisconsin and Michigan ranges, invaded the iron fields of the South and extended his conquests to Cuba, and is now demanding of congress that the products of his mines in that oppressed isle be admitted to the markets of the United States without tax. He owns the railroad tapping the Mesaba, and has cut down values of ore to so low a point that owners of property on his line have been forced out of business because of their inability to pay freight rates and compete in the open market with him. He has put a line of ships on the lakes that threatens to revolutionize the lake carrying trade and drive boats out of commission that until a year or two ago were considered marvels of the shipbuilder's art.

Now, after having acquired a position in the iron trade that bids fair to be as powerful as that which he has maintained so successfully as the head of the Standard Oil company, he has taken the preliminary steps for advancing himself to the first place in the railroad world.

A few days ago the articles of incorporation of the Chicago Terminal Transfer railroad were filed with the secretary of state at Springfield, Ill. The capital stock was placed at $20,000,000, and the filing fee paid, $30,000, was the largest on record in the corporation history of the country. The object of this corporation was stated to be to build a number of short lines out of Chicago and acquire a number already in existence, but this is but a small part of a gigantic railroad enterprise that will embrace a through line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, consolidating the Baltimore & Ohio, the Wisconsin Central, the Chicago & Northern Pacific and the Northern Pacific railroad systems into one gigantic corporation, of which John D. Rockefeller will be the controlling spirit.

The preliminary work for the carrying out of this, the greatest, perhaps, of Mr. Rockefeller's enterprises, was done by Frederick T. Gates, his personal representative, and William Allen Butler and Edward Adams of the Northern Pacific. The immediate object of the incorporation of this company is to secure the most perfect terminal facilities in Chicago, and it will continue to do the terminal work that has heretofore been performed by the Chicago & Northern Pacific. The reorganization of the Northern Pacific and the Baltimore & Ohio, both now in the hands of receivers, will quickly follow.

It is well known in railroad circles that the cause that led to the failure of these great systems was the lack of adequate traffic arrangements in territory covered by neither. The Northern Pacific endeavored to remedy this by leasing the Wisconsin Central and thus acquiring a Chicago connection from Duluth, but this failed of its purpose. The Baltimore & Ohio has never been able to control sufficient business west of Chicago. Now it is proposed to take these two weak systems and, by combining them with their connecting link, the Wisconsin Central, make them into a united whole that shall be the most extensive as well as the strongest railroad system on the continent.

It is asserted that the interests represented in the new terminal company control the three great roads necessary to the combination. However, the plans for the reorganization of the several properties are not yet made public.

MINISTER TO SPAIN.

Delicate Position Offered to Ex-Governor Cox.

Washington, June 9.—It is learned today that the president has offered the post of minister to Spain to ex-Governor Jacob D. Cox of Ohio. Whether or not he will accept is not known. Gen. Cox is an old personal friend of the president and one in whom Mr. McKinley has a great deal of confidence. Although almost 70 years of age, Gen. Cox is still a man of much vigor and energy. Should he be called to this important post he would bring to it an experience gained in important service and achievements in public and private life. He had a distinguished career as a soldier, rising to the rank of major general.

He was governor of Ohio in 1865 and 1867, and for two years was secretary of the interior in President Grant's cabinet, from which he retired on account of disagreement with certain measures of the administration. Later he served in congress and for a time was president of the Wabash railroad.

WEST-BOUND RATES RESTORED.

New York, June 9.—The traffic managers of the trunk lines have decided to restore west-bound rates and rail and lake freight rates and all-rail rates to the tariff basis that was in effect before the rate-cutting broke out. The Baltimore & Ohio has agreed to maintain rates.

New Telephone Directory.

NO MISTAKE.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa—Nature's Own Great Remedy.

Mrs. Christine Pedersen of Duluth, Minn., is One of the Thousands Who Proclaim its Merits.

It is the Essence of the Indian's Knowledge of the way to Restore Health Which They Unhesitatingly Give to Civilized Man.

Mrs. Christine Pedersen, whose address is Box 729, Duluth, Minn., writes to the Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co. the following letter: "Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co.: Gentlemen—There is no mistake about what Kickapoo Indian Sagwa will accomplish. I want to tell you how quickly it cured me. Had been suffering for over a year with a sour stomach, accompanied by other disagreeable symptoms. Was unable to even take a drink of water without causing me pain. I began to see the good effects of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa after taking three doses. Three bottles cured me entirely. I give you this statement for the benefit of others who are suffering in a similar way. Yours truly, Mrs. Christine Pedersen."

This is simply another case of a disordered stomach, made well by Nature's own remedy, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. Why is it that others will not follow Mrs. Pedersen's example, and have their health restored to them? A deranged stomach causes more sickness, more unhappiness, more pain and leads to more serious complications than any other one form of disease. Make your stomach well, keep your blood pure, see that your kidneys and liver act as they should, and good health will be yours, and all this by the use of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, which can be bought of any druggist for $1 a bottle.

SUMMER SHOPPING.

A Fine Publication Issued By Power & Settle.

A handsome publication of special interest to the ladies, because it contains much information that will prove valuable to them in making their summer purchases, has just been issued by Power & Settle. It is called "Summer Shopping," and is a fine specimen of the printer's and engraver's art. The booklet is in the form of an illustrated catalogue, and shows in a clear, concise manner what can be done in the way of bargains in high class dry goods by a store that does business on a strictly cash system. Power & Settle have been inaugurating some original and striking advertising methods, which have resulted in filling their establishment with customers and giving them a trade that is almost unparalleled for its magnitude in the mercantile history of the city. The advertising of the firm is in charge of Mr. Settle, who has, by careful thought and study, found ways of giving publicity to the attractions of the new store that have not only demonstrated the profitableness of intelligent advertising, but made their announcements eagerly sought for by the public.

THE CYCLE CLUB.

Will Arrange For Bicycle Races on July 5.

The Duluth Cycle club held its regular monthly meeting in the Kalamazoo block last night. A vote of thanks was given the business men and others who helped swell the prize list at the road race. W. G. Wray, of the Union rink, was present and asked the club to help out the six-days' relay race it is proposed to hold between the Duluth and Superior riders. The club referred it to a committee, which will have general charge of all the season's racing. It is proposed that the club combine with Clan Stewart July 5 to hold games at the fair grounds with the bicycle races. The racing committee will meet with representatives of Clan Stewart at W. D. Gordon's store tonight to arrange details.

Friday evening the committee will meet the Superior clubs at the Richelieu hotel to arrange for a series of races between the two clubs to be held during the summer. The committee will also meet soon with W. G. Wray to arrange for the relay races.

REVOLVER WAS DISCHARGED

Small Boy Causes a Great Fright at School.

A revolver in the pocket of Willie Catlin, a scholar in Miss Rasmussen's room at the Emerson school, was discharged yesterday in the school room, the ball grazing young Catlin's hand, passing upward obliquely and burying itself in the wall about two-thirds of the way to the ceiling. Paul Sturm, the pupil occupying the next desk to the right of that occupied by Catlin, probably owes an escape from injury, if not death, to the fact that, at the moment he was stooping to pick up something from the floor. The report created great consternation among the scholars, and young Catlin himself was nearly paralyzed with fright. He says he had not touched the revolver since he put it in his pocket. It is probably the case that he had left the weapon cocked the last time that he handled it. He will not carry firearms to school in future.

MRS. DAY AT SIOUX CITY.

Sioux City, June 9.—Without a doubt the best amateur shoot ever held in the West opened in Sioux City under the auspices of the Soo Gun club yesterday. One hundred crack amateurs from Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota are in attendance. The shoot lasts three days.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning Mayor Jonas M. Clelland pulled a trap at the Soo Gun club grounds and sent a blue rock spinning into the air. Mrs. Dr. Day, of Duluth, was ready and quickly powdered the clay bird and the crowd cheered. These events marked the opening of the Soo Gun club's third annual amateur tournament.

The leading averages for the day out of 120 birds were:

Howard, 107; Leach, 106; Trotter, Gubben and Anderson, each 104; Palmer, 103; Bird and H. Spalle, each 102; Haggerman and Williams, each 101; Peck, White and Gage, each 100; Mrs. Dr. Day got 93.

THE GIBSON PICTURES.

Charming Entertainment at the Lyceum Last Evening.

The production of the Gibson pictures at the Lyceum last evening was a delightful entertainment and far surpassed expectations. The pictures were presented remarkably well and without any dragging or interminable waits. On the contrary, they moved very quickly. The posing was excellent and the drawings were faithfully followed so that those familiar with them could not fail to recognize the pictures. A large audience was present.

"The American Girl" was naturally the first picture and the raising of the curtain was awaited with great interest for the identity of the young lady who was to take the part was unknown to the audience. It proved to be Miss Josephine Brower and the selection was happily made for her pose was excellent. After this the pictures followed each other rapidly and all were received with great applause. It would be impossible to pick out the most popular pictures. "Lenten Confession" made a decided hit. This shows a confessional with two fair maidens presumably confessing their sins while on the inside sits a little cupid with his fingers to his ears and a horrified expression on his face. The maidens were Miss Strayer and Miss Spencer, and "Cupid" was the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Lucas. He made an admirable cupid in every picture in which he appeared. "That Delicious Moment" was another picture that was very taking. It represented a young woman bringing her European catch, an insignificant nobleman, home to her father and mother. The parts were taken by Miss Bradley, Mrs. Hooples, C. E. Bassett and Ralph Davis.

The puzzle pictures were all favorites. These were: "Find the Man Who is Paying for the Dinner," "Find the Girl Who Has Just Been Kissed," "Find the Wife of the Man Who Has Been Telling the Story," "At the Summer Hotel," showing "the prominent citizen who wrote a month ago engaging the best rooms in the house" was a humorous number that took well. "Golf Is Not the Only Game on Earth," presented by Miss Strayer, Mr. Williamson and "Cupid," was one of the daintiest. "The Little Story—by a Sleeve" presented by Miss Lydia Poirier, Mr. Dalrymple and Mr. Peyton, was another very clever picture. There were two of the Dickens' series, "Dick Swiveller and the Marchioness," and "Tom Pinch and His Sister." "The Old Tune" was very pleasing, having a pretty sentiment. It was presented by Miss Bull, Miss Bradley, Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Geggie. The closing picture was "The Last Guest," probably one of the very best of Gibson's drawings. It shows a dinner table where an aged couple have been entertaining. The table is deserted except for the two who remain there in loving position, and a little cupid on the opposite side of the table watching them. Dr. and Mrs. Walker took the characters.

During the intermission Mrs. Homer Collins sang "A Spanish Romance" by Sawyer with orchestral accompaniment and received an encore. Miss McKay and Mrs. Emil Olund sang "Ini Furtone" from "Der Freischutz," a fine number.

After the entertainment Mr. and Mrs. James T. Hale entertained those who took part at their home, 1201 East First street.

DANGER IN SODA.

Serious Results Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended for a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice almost daily, and one which is fraught with danger; moreover the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach trouble gets worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlandson recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20-grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, peptones and digestive elements essential to good digestion and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create a healthy appetite, increase flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic but intended only for stomach diseases and weaknesses and will be found reliable in any stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

A Fine Yacht.

M. B. Mills and his steam yacht Cynthia arrived in Duluth yesterday afternoon. The yacht is said to be one of the handsomest of her class, and she has been much admired by a large number of people who have viewed her as she lies at the slip at Fifth avenue west. She left Detroit June 1, and has travelled 1000 miles by day only since then, averaging fifteen knots an hour. She will stop in Duluth for a few days, and return along the north shore, stopping at promising fishing locations and points of interest. She is in command of Capt. David Sidney, and her owner is entertaining E. E. Sullivan, a newspaper man, and W. E. and E. W. Partridge, son and nephew of the late Edward Partridge, the noted Chicago wheat operator. Mr. Mills has many friends in Duluth, whom he frequently visits.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

THE ONLY PURELY VEGETABLE BLOOD REMEDY

A SYSTEM BUILDER

is needed by every one at this season of the year. The lack of energy and depressed, listless feeling which takes possession of the system every spring and summer is caused by an impure condition of the blood. The accumulated impurities of a year combat nature's effort to throw them off, a struggle to which the system is unequal, unless properly assisted. Boils and pimples and an incessant weariness tell the story. The appetite fails just when a good one is needed, the energies relax, and an unspeakable languor pervades the wornout body. Every one knows the importance of thoroughly cleansing the blood and purifying the system and thus avoiding the deadly typhoid fever and other dangerous diseases which crowd the path of summer. But it is equally important that the right remedy be taken at this critical period—one which will purify and build up the system at the same time. For this purpose nothing can compare with Swift's Specific (S. S. S.). A few bottles just now will thoroughly cleanse the blood and renovate and strengthen the system, improve the appetite, and impart new life and vigor to the entire body. It is the best system-builder because it is the best blood remedy—the only one, in fact, which is purely vegetable, and guaranteed to contain not a particle of arsenic, mercury, potash, or chemical of any kind. S. S. S. is far ahead of other blood remedies, for it does so much more. It promptly reaches and cures deep-seated, obstinate blood diseases, which other remedies have no effect whatever upon. It matters not what other treatment has failed, S. S. S. cures Catarrh, Eczema, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Cancer, and Contagious Blood Poison, even in their worst stages. Insist on S. S. S., and do not be imposed upon by accepting an inferior article without merit or reputation. A larger profit to an unscrupulous dealer will induce him to offer you a substitute composed of harmful drugs and chemicals. S. S. S. is nature's remedy, being made from roots and herbs gathered from nature's store-house. It is not a drug-shop preparation, and no tinkering drug-clerk can imitate it by mixing a few chemicals from his stock. Remember that there is no substitute for S. S. S., the only real blood remedy. It is truly the greatest purifier.

A WOMAN ARRESTED.

Suspected By an Officer of Having Suicidal Intention.

A woman of refined appearance, apparently about 30 years of age, giving her name as Mabel Crosby, was taken in charge near the Union depot by Officer Ziesler this morning on the suspicion that she was meditating suicide. She had arrived from St. Paul and on the St. Paul & Duluth train and, the depot officials say, had a fit soon after getting off the train.

The officer's attention was called to her peculiar actions, and when she started across the tracks toward the Omaha dock, the officer intercepted her.

At the station she said she was an actress, and that she made her living by giving entertainments in small towns. She is married, and lives in Minneapolis, she says, her husband's name being Frank Crosby. She said she had left home because he abused her. She denies that she intended suicide. She said she was dazed from an epileptic fit she had soon after arriving in consequence of having been frightened by a bicycle. She is subject to such fits. When she recovered she was dazed, she says, and started off not knowing where she was going. She said she knew a family named White, at 125 Twenty-first avenue east, and a family named Bartlett at 127 on the same avenue.

It was said by the conductor of the train on which she arrived that the woman was put on board at St. Paul by a policeman, who gave her ticket to the conductor. A search of the directory does not show any persons of the names given by the woman living at the numbers indicated. It was intended by the police to send her back to St. Paul tonight.

The police notified the St. Paul & Duluth people today that the road would have to care for the woman. She is destitute and Chief Hansen says he thinks that the case is within the provisions of an ordinance requiring transportation companies to provide for destitute people they bring into the city.

The Armory Concert.

The concert at the Armory this evening is sure to have a large audience, the sale of seats having been very large. The program is one of exceptional merit and will, without doubt, be very pleasing. Those who will have numbers are: Mrs. James McAuliffe, mezzo-soprano; Miss McKay, soprano; Mrs. C. H. Thornton, soprano; Arthur W. Lahey, basso; A. Hoelscher, flutist; Mrs. A. Hoelscher, pianist; Miss M. Finnegan, elocutionist; the Acolian and Temple Ladies' quartets, and J. H. Flaaten's orchestra.

She's bound to have Pearline, this lady. The grocer has just sent her one of the many substitutes, instead. You can't see the boy, but he's on his way back to exchange it. If all women were only as careful and determined, there would be less grumbling, and Pearline sales would be multiplied.

Probably no woman who uses Pearline would take anything else, knowingly. But since Pearline has become a household word, the ignorant and the careless suffer. The ignorant think that "Pearline" means any washing-powder; the careless fail to notice that they're getting an inferior article, instead of Pearline. 543

PEWABIC

Located Six Miles Southeast of Thunder Bay Island.

Was Sunk With a Valuable Cargo of Copper and Gold.

Alpena, Mich., June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The long lost steamer Pewabic has been located after a search extending over thirty years. The wreck was found by the wrecking expedition from Milwaukee, working on the steamer H. A. Root. It lies six miles south-southeast of Thunder Bay island in 160 feet of water and is in the regular track of steamers. It is headed out and lies on almost an even keel, the sides standing twenty feet above the bottom of the lake. The upper works and upper deck are entirely gone, but the bulwarks are standing and the main deck appears to be intact. The hull seems also to be in good shape. Many times the value of the cargo have been expended in vain efforts to locate the steamer.

Thirty-two years ago the large passenger steamer Pewabic, bound from Lake Superior with about 150 passengers and a valuable cargo of copper and gold, came into collision with her sister steamer Meteor, in trying to exchange mails and sank. 125 passengers being drowned. It is reported that a large amount of money was in the purser's safe, mostly in coin, which can be now recovered, in addition to the valuable cargo.

A VALUABLE CARGO.

Milwaukee, June 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—W. G. Smith, inventor of the diving cylinder operated by the American Wrecking and Salvage company, wires from Alpena that the hull of the steamer Pewabic, which was sunk by the Meteor thirty-two years ago, has been located. The find was made at 5 o'clock last evening off Alpena in water 160 feet deep. The wreckers will now endeavor to recover 267 tons of copper which constituted part of the Pewabic's cargo. Its present value is about $60,000. Arrangements with the Home and Aetna companies, which held the insurance, assure the wreckers 60 per cent of the value of all property recovered.

ANOTHER RECORD BREAKER.

Chicago, June 9.—All cargo records for the great lakes were broken yesterday when the new steel schooner Amazon, of the Corrigan fleet, took on board 217,000 bushels of corn, or 6076 net tons. The draft of the vessel was sixteen and a half feet all around. The Amazon will be towed to Buffalo by the steamer Bulgaria. The cargo surpasses the one held by the steamer Queen City for a year. That boat had 207,000 bushels of corn. In weight it far exceeded all Lake Superior ore and grain cargoes.

PUTTING ERIE BASIN IN SHAPE.

The Buffalo Express states that state divers and dredges are now at work in Erie basin, removing boulders and other obstructions to navigation which have so long been encountered in this strip of water. Included in the stuff that has thus far been taken from the basin are several large and dangerous boulders, several water-soaked logs and much railroad iron. On Friday a railroad track was brought to the surface. It had been bent in such a shape that one end of it stuck up about three feet, just enough to puncture the bottom of a vessel.

FALLS ON LONDON LLOYD'S.

Regular lake underwriters are not at all displeased over the fact that the loss of $15,000, or $20,000 on the Ohio's engines will fall on London Lloyd's. The steamer of this line, like those of the Detroit and Cleveland line, are all insured in the foreign companies through Johnson & Higgins, of New York.

THE CORMORANT RELEASED.

The steamer Cormorant, which was libeled for salvage by the White Line Towing Company and Ed England, captain of the tug Excelsior, has been released, a bond for $5000 being given by the Duluth Trust company. J. L. Crosthwaite, of Buffalo, is the owner of the boat.

MARINE NOTES.

At Buffalo the steamer Kitty M. Forbes and consort McLachlan have been placed in ordinary and their insurance cancelled. On the other hand vessels of the Bradley fleet are being placed in commission.

It was the steamer Kaliyuga instead of the Cadillac that cleared Marquette in tow of the Pontiac on account of a disabled rudder. The Kaliyuga's mishap occurred while trying to bring her consort Fontana along the dock without a tug.

The Canadian gas buoys for the southeast shoal and middle ground in Pelee passage, were set at noon Saturday.

Capt. Van Norman of the steamer E. F. Gould reports having found eight life preservers in two bundles, marked "steamer Charles Hebard," which were floating in Saginaw bay. They had been lost overboard from the Hebard.

George Francombe, who had served as an engineer on the lakes continuously for forty-seven years, was buried at Detroit last week. One son, Charles, is engineer of the steamer Nipigon, and another, Thomas, engineer of the steamer Crescent City.

THE LIE EXCHANGED.

Mayor Truelsen Talks Bluntly to Mr. Stevens.

Mayor Truelsen and Manager Stevens of the Gray mill, had a tilt over the disposal of the slabs unloaded from a Northern Pacific flat car at Arthur avenue yesterday. Mr. Stevens wanted the city to remove the slabs. The mayor said he knew nothing about any slabs.

"You were here yesterday and ordered them unloaded," said Mr. Stevens.

No, I wasn't" answered the mayor.

"I saw you," persisted Mr. Stevens.

"You are a liar," said the mayor.

The mayor was hot on general principles and he looked as if he would as soon have trouble as not. The incident closed, however, without bloodshed.

THE CANOSIA CASE.

It Was Ordered to Be Submitted on Briefs.

In district court this morning the case of Canosia township against Charles E. Fenton, its treasurer, and his bondsmen was heard by Judge Moer and ordered submitted on briefs. The township claims that in March, 1896, it designated the Commercial bank as its depository, and that in January, 1897, it renewed its resolution to that effect and notified Fenton to deposit his funds in that bank. He replied that he was unable to do so, as the funds were lost in the Marine bank in October, 1896. In his answer Fenton made a general denial, and said that the Marine bank was first designated as the depository. F. E. Searle and J. P. Johnson, his sureties on his bond of $5000, in their answers allege that the Marine bank will pay all claims.

The Hibbing Finnish Temperance society case was dismissed yesterday afternoon on motion of the court without prejudice, the plaintiff having failed to show title to the property in litigation. Judge Ensign this morning was still hearing the case of Grochau against Kesmerl.

BROILED LOBSTERS.

Wonderful Recovery of Hon. Wm. D. Park, the Celebrated Originator of "Broiled Live Lobsters."

Boston, Mass., March 24, 1896.

For two years I was afflicted with dyspepsia, rheumatism and general collapse, which was superinduced by an unusually active business life of forty years. I had supposed my health was gone beyond recovery, but being induced to try Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets, to my surprise and gratification the use of the two boxes has resulted in the disappearance of dyspepsia, rheumatism and lassitude. I feel a new man. My friends are surprised and congratulate me on my recovery to health. I am glad to give you these facts and heartily recommend the Tablets as marvelous in their curative properties. Yours truly,

WILLIAM D. PARK,
Late of Park House.

P. S.—My sister, Mrs. Caroline E. Gillihan, late of Washington, D. C., has used the Tablets with excellent results in insomnia.

Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets are vegetable and harmless. Their strength and vigor giving qualities are wonderful. Fifty cents and $1 at druggists, or mailed direct. Eureka Chemical and Manufacturing company, La Crosse, Wis.

HIS BOARD BILL.

H. D. Stanley Gets Into Trouble Through It.

The Minneapolis Journal of yesterday contained some information in reference to H. D. Stanley, formerly of this city, which may be of interest. The Journal says:

"Rescue league and social purity circles of Fairmont have been somewhat torn up recently over the unconventional behavior of one H. D. Stanley, sent out by Charles H. Sweatt, superintendent of the People's mission of this city, in the interests of the Twin City Appeal, a monthly published in the interests of the social purity movement. Stanley's chief offense, according to the Journal's informant, was against the landlord of his hotel through his continued delay in the payment of his board bill. This the landlord finally resented and attempted to collect the bill with the assistance of the town marshal. The task, however, proved to be a difficult one, not only because Stanley apparently had no funds with which to pay his bill, but because he took an opportunity when the backs of the collectors were turned to take French leave, making such good use of the short interval that, when they turned again, their man was out of sight, and was not recaptured until some time later, and at such a distance away that the sheriff deemed it advisable to return by rail.

After being held in custody for several days he was finally released upon the payment of his bill by acquaintances among the clergy, whose sympathy had been enlisted, and he is now said to be at Winnebago City.

The affair created such a stir in Fairmont and vicinity that several preachers in whose churches he had worked telegraphed the managers of the mission at 20 Hennepin avenue for the man's credentials, evidently not having much faith in his personal assertions to the effect that he was the representative of the Twin City Appeal, a member of Hennepin Avenue Methodist church, a local minister of the Methodist faith and a former employe of the Journal. Investigation, however, develops the fact that he was authorized to solicit subscriptions for the Appeal, an authority which has since been withdrawn, but that he is not a member of the Hennepin Avenue church and, so far as its authorities know, has not been licensed as a local minister. That he was never connected with the Journal is a certainty, though it appears that this story varies, and that he says he was at one time connected with the Tribune's advertising department.

"His conflicting stories and his unceremonious leave of his landlord have tended to arouse suspicion and have led to the withdrawal of his authority to solicit subscriptions for the Appeal, to whom he is now indebted to the extent of about $10, which, moreover, he writes he will pay as soon as he can raise the funds."

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Heavy Opening With the Railroads Much Lower.

New York, June 9.—The stock market showed heaviness at the opening, the leading railroad stocks being decidedly lower, the grangers being affected by fears of crop damage. Extensive realization in Sugar depressed that stock a point, but there was a rally quickly following. The industrials generally displayed a fairly firm front with Chicago Gas, Leather and General Electric moving up slightly. Supporting orders soon appeared in various shares, which stemmed the selling movement and led to a higher range of values, which carried some of the specialties up substantially. Sugar was largely dealt in and rallied to 123 3-4. Electric gained a point and the Gould group exhibited considerable firmness. The low-priced shares participated quite extensively in the dealings with Leather and Bay State Gas scoring the extreme gains. The railway list displayed less buoyancy, but values rallied to about yesterday's final close, Burlington rising 1-4c above that.

The bears made a determined attack against the market after the first hour of trading, and were successful in beginning bringing about a general reaction in which the lowest prices were generally recorded. Especial pressure was directed against a few shares, notably C. C. C. & St. L., which sagged 1 7-8c, and New Jersey Central 11 per cent. Those of a large fraction were scored elsewhere, with realizations helping the decline. Tobacco loomed into prominence toward midday and jumped 2 1-8c. The bold market was moderately active and lacked feature, prices, however, being well held. Stock sales up to noon were 130,700 shares.

Fell From the Dock.

James Sullivan, employed on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern ore dock, fell from the dock into the hold of the steamer Phillip Bell this morning. Several ribs were broken and it is thought he may have sustained internal injuries. He was taken to St. Mary's hospital. Stewart's ambulance made the run from the stable to the dock in eleven minutes after the call.

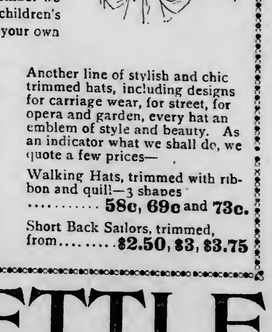
"Saved From the Horrors of Nervous Prostration" by Dr. Miles' Nervine.



A COUGH does not always indicate consumption. Mr. W. H. Palmer, of Waterloo, Iowa, writes: "I was taken with a nervous stricture of the bronchial tubes, which developed into nervous prostration. I was so weak I could not sit up. I got no sleep for days except when under the influence of opiates. For four months I suffered agonies and prayed that I might die and be at rest. One physician said I had consumption, for I had a cough that gave me no rest. But a good old physician whose medicine had failed, advised me to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and I thank God that it has brightened my days, lengthened my life and saved me from the horrors of nervous prostration."

MILLERS

National Association Holding Its Annual Meeting at Chicago--Large Attendance.

President Pillsbury's Address Dwells on the Advantages of Reciprocity.

Secretary Barry's Report Showed a Satisfactory State of Affairs.

Chicago, June 9.—The Millers' National association, which has members in twenty-two states and represents a daily output of 90,000 barrels, held its annual meeting here today, with a fair attendance. The retiring president, C. A. Pillsbury, of Minneapolis, in his opening address, said that through the efforts of the executive committee bolting cloth had been put on the free list of the new tariff bill, and it was hoped to have restored the drawback on burlaps. The chief work, however, he said, was in the direction of having the tariff measure give the principle of reciprocity the recognition that it deserved. He said that through reciprocity the United States could advance its trade with foreign countries and the flouring trade would be greatly benefited.

Secretary Barry's annual report was an exhaustive review of the past year, and considering the financial depression, showed a very satisfactory state of affairs. The secretary reported that the association had allied itself with the National Transportation association and thus been able to accomplish much in the direction of strengthening the force of the interstate commerce law and restraining acts of injustice on the part of transportation companies. The establishment of a crop report bureau was reported to have been attended with satisfactory results.

Resolutions were passed earnestly urging the embracing of a reciprocity section in the pending tariff bill, and protesting against adulteration of flour with corn meal and other inferior grains. Several papers of interest were also read.

W. A. Coombs, of Coldwater, Mich., will probably be elected president in place of Mr. Pillsbury, the later declining to be a candidate for re-election.

The Milwaukee coal dealers have arranged for the entertainment of the party at one of the city parks. The return to Chicago will be made tonight.

PAPER MILLS SHUT DOWN.

Milwaukee, June 9.—A special to the Wisconsin from Kaukauna, Wis., says: Beginning this week the print paper mills of the Fox River valley will shut down two days each week—Friday and Saturday—in order to curtail the output and better the market for their product if possible. This movement, it is reported, will be general throughout the country.

INHALING INSECTS.

Not a Careless But a Needless Thing to Do—How to Avoid It.

Hundreds of poisonous insects called "germs" are being drawn into the body with every breath. These small creatures at once begin to live upon the body and cause what is known as disease. They must be driven out. How much better it is though to kill these poisonous germs as soon as they come. And yet there is only one thing will do this, and that is a pure stimulant, preferably whisky.

Professor Austin Flint of Bellevue college, says: "The judicious use of alcoholic stimulants is one of the striking characteristics of progress in the practice of medicine during the last half century."

Professor Henry Mott, Ph. D., F.C.S., says: "By a most careful analysis I have found Duffy's pure malt whisky free from adulterations or foreign substances, and it deserves to meet with great success."

The well-known Dr. R. W. Hutchinson, of New York, says: "I highly recommend Duffy's pure malt whisky and prescribe it extensively in my practice."

Rev. B. Mills, of Princeton, Iowa, says: "I have used Duffy's pure malt whisky with great benefit to my wife, who is a confirmed invalid. I know from experience it is a pure and most valuable medicine. I am also using it in the case of my son, who is threatened with consumption. I am a Presbyterian clergyman and a doctor of divinity, but I am not afraid to recommend Duffy's malt whisky as the purest and most efficient tonic that I know of, and my experience is a large one."

WASHINGTON TRAGEDY.

Italian Lover Kills Himself and Wounds a Woman.

Washington, June 9.—A tragedy in which the details were almost similar to those of the Barber suicide and attempted murder, occurred this morning at S 20 on Fourteenth street, at the home of Cherubino Giuliani, an Italian fruit vender. About 8 o'clock Tacopo Ferrari, after shooting and stabbing in the neck Mrs. Giuliani, shot himself through the head and died almost instantly. The woman was taken to the Emergency hospital, where it is thought she may recover, though her first action upon arriving there was to call for a priest, from whom she received the last sacrament.

Tacopo Ferrari was about 28 years old and had been paying so much attention to Mrs. Giuliani, who is 32, that he made himself offensive to both herself and her husband, and had been frequently warned not to visit the home. This morning her husband having gone to market, Ferrari walked through Giuliani's fruit store to the backyard, where Mrs. Guiliani was hanging clothes on the line and made a furious assault upon her, stabbing her in the neck with a poinard and then shooting her. Then he turned the revolver upon himself, and the bullet lodged in the brain, causing almost instant death.

NATIONAL CREDIT MEN.

Second Annual Convention Meets at Kansas City.

Kansas City, Mo., June 9.—President W. H. Preston, of Sioux City, Iowa, called the second annual convention of the National Credit association to order promptly at 10 o'clock this morning, facing over 200 delegates from all parts of the country. The sessions are being held in the Coates opera house, which is decorated for the occasion. Several large delegations arrived from different sections this morning and more came in during the day. Many of the commercial publications of the country are represented and men whose labor is in lines near that of the credit men are here as interested observers. Numerous questions of importance will be called up.

After President Preston had formally opened the convention, welcoming addresses were made by Maj. J. M. Jones for the city; Maj. William Warner on behalf of the state; Hon. J. Rathbone, of Kansas, and A. B. Colton for the local association. Reponses made in behalf of the different sections of the country were delivered respectively by E. P. Bannin, New York; J. F. Jordan, Minneapolis; F. W. Standart, Denver; W. C. Sprague, Detroit, and George G. Brown, Louisville.

President Bannin then took the chair and began the active work of the convention by appointing the usual committees.

CARPET MILLS ACTIVITY.

Philadelphia, June 9.—At a meeting of the Ingrain Carpet Weavers' Protective association last night reports were received from delegates representing the sixty-two mills in that industry in Kensington, Philadelphia. They were to the effect that the feeling among the manufacturers was becoming decidedly cheerful. Nearly all the mills, it was reported, are gradually resuming full time, one of the most prominent being John Gay's Sons, which started on full time this week, giving employment to about 500 persons. Doran Brothers' large plant and that of Thomas Cave & Sons were also stated to be on full time and full handed and a number of smaller firms are rapidly following his example.

WORKING

Duluth Boat Club's Oarsmen in Active Training For the Season.

A Dozen Will Take Quarters at the Club House Today.

Eight-Oared Race With Wisconsin University May Be Arranged.

The weather of the past few weeks has not been very well adapted to work in the shells, but nevertheless the Duluth Boat club's season's work is now well under way, and those who are candidates for positions in this year's crews are working steadily and assiduously to bring their physical beings up to the pitch required for a "winning." As usual, the work is being done under the leadership of Ed Mahoney, who has trained Duluth's crews for several years, always with the best results.

Every morning, at an hour when most people are getting their best and most appreciated stretch of sleep, these vigorous young men are up and out, after a breakfast carefully designed to help out the effects of the training. The shells and working boats are kept pretty busy, and in a day or two the eight will be out. From that time on work in the eight will be active, for Duluth this year will pay especial attention to the eight-oared races.

Fifteen men were working this morning, among them the pick of the oarsmen of the city, and all of them start in the season in excellent shape and with good prospects. It is less than two months now to the Minnetonka regatta probably, and just as much of that time as practicable will be used to develop the Duluth crews, especial attention being paid to the eight-oared crew. Tonight about a dozen of the young men will begin sleeping at the boat house. This means, theoretically at least, that early hours will be observed, that the oarsmen must direct their diet not so much to please their tastes as to build up their muscular systems, and that an early hour each morning must find them at work on the bay.

There is a prospect that there will be a lively eight-oared race here this summer. The Duluth eight is talking of arranging a race with the eight from the university of Wisconsin, in which the Minnesota Boat club may take part. The race may be at Minnetonka, Madison or Duluth, but the Duluth men will spare no efforts to bring it off at Duluth. Trainer Mahoney was at St. Paul a few days ago, and he saw some of the members of the Minnesota club. They are working hard and expect to bring out some winning crews.

The annual regatta will be held at Lake Minnetonka on a date not yet fixed, but which will probably be about July 25. It may be decided to wait until the Winnipeg crew returns from England, to see what it can do.

THEIR ORDERS CONFLICT.

Mr. Reed and Mr. Patton Again Fail to Agree.

W. B. Patton, city engineer No. 1, has notified the contractors that the work of tamping clay in the force main trench as a bed for the "rider," must stop or the pipe laying will be stopped.

D. A. Reed, city engineer No. 2, and the board of public works originally ordered the bed for the rider to be prepared in the way indicated. Yesterday Mr. Patton ordered the clay taken out and the pipe blocked up. Later the latter order was countermanded by the other side and the work of tamping begun again.

This morning Mr. Patton served the notice referred to Mr. Patton says that the clay will not harden so as to form a solid bed, owing to the accumulation of water in the trench and that the result will be that the pipe will buckle and break.

BOARD OF REVIEW.

It Will Meet to Correct Assessments on June 28.

The valuation of the improvements on realty show a net increase of $128,000 over 1896, according to City Assessor Hawkes. The total increase is $158,000, from which is deducted $30,000 on account of losses by fire.

The board of review for the rectification of errors in the assessment of personal property will meet June 28. Parties with complaints on the score of over-assessment are supposed to register their kick then. This, however, many of them fail to do. "They wait until the sheriff gets after them the following year," said Mr. Hawkes, "and then they howl."

A Fine Counterfeit.

An excellent counterfeit half dollar was passed on a Superior street car conductor by a well known East End business man this morning. The piece is so well executed as to stand pretty close scrutiny. The police are now investigating with the view of finding out who "shoved" it on the business man, in the hope that a clue may be obtained to the gang that, it is suspected, is engaged in dealing in the "queer" in this city and Superior.

BURNED

Brush Fire Caused the Death of Little Catherine Holten Last Evening.

Terrible Accident Occurred Near Her Home in West Park Addition.

Clothes Caught Fire in the Flames --Was Rescued Too Late.

Catherine Holten, the 3-year-old daughter of Bartholomew Holten, a laborer on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway ore docks, was fatally burned at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, her clothes catching fire from a burning brush pile. She expired last night at 9 o'clock. The affair occurred near the home of the Holten's, at Sixth street west and Wellington avenue, West Park division.

The little one ventured too near the blazing brush heap in playing about. As the flames from her clothing leaped up about her, she started on a run for the house, thus fanning the blaze which quickly enveloped her. Her screams attracted the attention of people in the neighboring houses, who ran to her assistance. After much effort, the flames were smothered and the girl was carried to the house and medical aid summoned. Besides being badly burned about the face and arms, it was found that she had inhaled the flames into her lungs. Every effort was made to alleviate her sufferings, but they were only partially successful and the unfortunate girl died in great agony. The funeral was to be held today.

WOULD HASTEN IT.

City Attorney Wants a Hearing Next Saturday.

City Attorney Richards was busy this morning preparing an application for the dissolution of the temporary injunction restraining the city from interfering with the Northern Pacific track and cars at the disputed crossing on Arthur avenue. He thought he would be ready to make the application this afternoon. On the ground of public necessity Mr. Richards will endeavor to have the hearing set for the coming Saturday, instead of the Saturday following, the time when it would come on in the regular course.

The mayor is not inclined to accept with very good grace the turn affairs took yesterday, and he intimated that if he had been on the ground the shoe would now be on the other foot. In speaking of the action of the roads, he remarked that the Northern Pacific and St. Paul & Duluth now have the earth so far as Duluth is concerned, and now they want a fence around it.

MR. PATTON DENIES IT.

He Says the Pumphouse Foundation is All Right.

W. B. Patton, city engineer No. 1, says there is no truth in the report that the foundation walls of the pump house will have to be rebuilt. The stones are being taken out at several points to make a footing for the columns that will support the traveling crane and a change is being made in the location of a window, which, it was found, would be behind one of the columns. There will also be a small section of the east wall of the boiler that will have to be rebuilt, the frost having affected the mortar. The after work will be done by the contractors at their own expense.

Feast of music, Armory tonight.

Issues More Orders.

D. A. Reed, city engineer No. 2, has ordered down the arch over the intake well at the pumphouse, and also the larger part of the east wall of the boiler room, he says that the wall has settled. He does not think the money retained on the contract, 5 per cent, will pay for repairs made necessary.

CALHOUN AGAIN.

Has Another Conference With the State Department.

Washington, June 10.—Mr. Calhoun was at the state department again today and had another long conference with Assistant Secretary Day. This being diplomatic day the Spanish minister, Senor Dupuy De Lome was among the callers and had an opportunity to exchange views with the special counsel in the presence of Judge Day. Mr. Calhoun intends to go home to Danville, Ill., tonight, having delayed so long only for the purpose of a further conference with Assistant Secretary Day. He made it clear to the assistant secretary that he had not been guilty of the indiscreet utterances attributed to him in some newspapers upon his arrival at New York recently.

Dr. Condesto, the Spanish consul at Philadelphia, who with Consul General Lee, formed the commission to inquire into the facts connected with the death of Dr. Ruiz, is expected in Washington tomorrow. He will probably bring with him two representations, one a joint representation by himself and Gen. Lee, and the other an individual representation such as Gen. Lee submitted to the state department through Mr. Fishback, though not by any means reaching the same conclusions.

It is expected Dr. Condesto's individual representation will go to show that Dr. Ruiz died in jail from self-inflicted injuries while suffering from temporary aberration of the mind, and that he was well cared for during his confinement. It is also probable that Dr. Condesto has given some attention to the subject of naturalization of Ruiz, and has endeavored to show that there was at least a reasonable doubt upon that point which justified the treatment of the case in a fashion different from that usually adopted.

The representations of the commission are illustrated with excellent photographs showing the interior of the jail at Guanabacoa and all of the features of Dr. Ruiz's confinement that will admit of illustration. It is not the intention of either side to make these public. Probably Senor Dupuy De Lome will furnish the state department a copy of Dr. Condesto's report and will in turn be furnished a copy of Gen. Lee's report, but that is as far toward publication as they are likely to go, at least, so say the officials having the matter in charge until the senate shall call for the correspondence. The copies of all these documents must be sent to Madrid from which capital the inquiry was originally ordered and the Spanish officials can properly claim due opportunity to consider them so that the conclusion of the Ruiz incident cannot be expected to be attained, if the usual methods and courtesies of diplomacy are followed, for some time to come.

NASHVILLE EXPOSITION.

Crowds Coming to Attend on Ohio Day.

Nashville, Tenn., June 10.—One hundred and forty members of the Alabama Press association, who arrived in the city last night, were the guests of the management of the exposition today. The visitors will spend three days in the city. Special exercises were held in the children's building during the afternoon by the pupils of several schools of this city. The attendance during the presentation of the program was large. A dress parade was given by the Second battalion of the Sixth infantry, United States army, the music being furnished by the Sixth regiment band.

Governor Bushnell of Ohio, Mayor Caldwell of Cincinnati, members of the Cincinnati chamber of commerce and police force and many others will arrive this evening to take part in the celebration of Cincinnati or Ohio day. Great interest is shown in the visit of President McKinley and party, who will arrive tomorrow morning and remain until Saturday evening. Thousands of visitors from all over the state and adjoining states are expected. The work of decorating business houses, public buildings and private residences is going on in every portion of the city.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

Manchester, Eng., June 10.—The cricket match between the visiting Philadelphia eleven and an eleven of Lancashire began here today. The Americans won the toss and went to bat. At lunch time their score stood 92 for five wickets down. The Philadelphia players were all out for 123 runs, and at the close of play today Lancashire had scored 120 runs for 8 wickets.

WOULD ADMIT WOMEN.

Atlanta, Ga., June 10.—Chancellor W. E. Boggs of the university of Georgia, in a report made to the board of trustees at Athens this afternoon, recommends the admission of women to the university on an equality with the men. It is not known what action the trustees will take.

REVOLT

A Strong Feeling Among the House Republicans Against Czar Reed.

Only a Leader Lacking to Induce Them to Openly Revolt.

Snubbed Loren Fletcher Today When He Represented the Situation.

Washington, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Speaker Reed again today showed his thorough indifference to the public needs and wishes of the members of the house who placed him in his present position. Representative Fletcher had a lengthy interview with the "czar" today, and felt like a little school boy when he came away. Mr. Fletcher presented the situation in the West to the speaker, explaining the urgent needs of a bankruptcy bill, provision for a monetary commission to draft a measure for the revision of the currency system during the recess, and the desire upon the part of many to pass the Cuban resolutions before adjournment.

No legislation of this kind can be considered without the appointment of the committees, and Mr. Fletcher expressed the opinion that, in view of the fact that the sugar schedule would be out of the way today, and the tariff bill would then be practically completed, so far as the senate is concerned, no legislation of the house could now interfere with its passage in the upper branch. There was, therefore, no reason whatever for delaying the appointment of the committees. There was a strong demand throughout the country that these important measures be given a hearing in the house whether they were defeated or not. In many parts of the country he said, the house is being held responsible for the failure to pass a bankruptcy bill or to adopt the Cuban resolutions. For this reason he would like the house put in a position where it could discharge that responsibility.

The speaker listened in his usual stolid manner, and when the Minneapolis congressman had finished, began to ask questions upon some other subjects. When Mr. Fletcher attempted to pin him down to a direct answer, he simply remarked that these were very grave questions and deserve careful consideration. He would give no satisfaction whatever.

There is doubt that there is a strong feeling in the house against Reed among the Republicans, and it only lacks a leader to induce them to break into open revolt.

CHRISTIANS KILLED.

Chinese Fanatics Murder Some Roman Catholics.

Vancouver, B. C., June 10.—Anti-Christian riots have taken place in Lieu Ching, China. A mob of fanatics, loudly proclaiming that Roman Catholics had kidnapped their children, rushed simultaneously on the mission buildings. In the fierce fight that ensued three Christians were killed outright, eight wounded and four captured. The Rev. Father Mauzellis is among the Roman Catholics killed.

They attacked the rear and front of the priest's residence. With the help of friendly natives they barricaded the back and faced the mob with a rifle, but the barricades were broken down. The priest was shot and his body hacked to pieces.

PHOTOGRAPHS SOUND.

Process Successfully Carried Out By a Minister.

New York, June 10.—The process of photographing sound waves and from the plates producing the original sound has been, it is announced, successfully carried out by the Rev. A. C. Ferguson, a Baptist minister, now living in Brooklyn. The astonishing part of his discovery, he says, is the simplicity of the process by which this result has been achieved. There is no ponderous or complicated machinery. Only two discs, each about seven inches in diameter, revolved by ordinary cranks. One of these, the recorder, is horizontal, the second, the reproducer, is revolved perpendicularly. Mr. Ferguson has christened his invention the lightophone.

WHY QUICK SUICIDED.

Cincinnati, Ohio, June 10.—It was developed in testimony at the inquest today on the death of Alfred Quick, who committed suicide, that the motive was to escape mob vengeance. Quick had been discovered in the act of an attempted criminal assault upon a 10-year-old girl, and with the Urbana incident fresh in his mind, took his own life rather than risk death at the hands of a mob.

REQUISITION WAS DEFECTIVE.

Milwaukee, June 10.—Richard L. Knox, the noted forger, who on his discharge from the house of correction yesterday was arrested on a requisition from Iowa, to be turned over to Sheriff Davenport of Sioux City, Iowa, was discharged today on habeas corpus proceedings. The ground for dismissa was a technical defect in the requisition papers.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, June 10.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balances, $231,277,865; gold reserve, $144,156,837.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

What the Lutheran Synod Has Been Doing.

Mansfield, Ohio, June 10.—At the meeting of the national Lutheran synod today the principal business was the report of the board of foreign missions. It was as follows:

The receipts for the two years and one month closing April 30, last, were $85,121, of which $55,195 came from the synods, $20,436 from the Women's Missionary society, $2687 from legacies, and $3215 from the sale of African coffee. These receipts with a balance of $11,555 made a total of $96,677 for the general and special work of the board during the last two years. The expenditures for all purposes were $96,220. The balance in the hands of the treasurer is $456. The board, however, owed $7633. The special offerings of the Sunday shools in 1896 amounted to $8376, an increase of $1585 over those of the preceding year. The amount reported thus far during the present year was $9444.

During the biennium five missionaries had been sent to the foreign field—three to India and two to Africa. Engaged in the Indian work are seven ordained missionaries, one native pastor, six subpastors, seventeen catechists and 114 sub-catechists. There are 384 organized congregations, 169 prayer houses and eleven mission bungalows and stations. The baptized members at the close of 1896 numbered 15,699. There are 148 Sunday schools with 264 teachers and 6588 scholars, 177 elementary schools with 165 teachers and 3656 pupils, and one boarding school with 118 pupils. In the India college and branches there are forty-nine teachers and 880 pupils, an increase in two years of thirteen teachers and 218 students.

Engaged in the African work are five missionaries and four prayer meeting leaders, the communicants at the close of 1896 numbering 223. There are three day schools with 192 pupils. The value of the industries established is $89,450. The board asked for an appropriation of $70,000 for the prosecution of its work during the next two years.

INTO A WASHOUT.

Bad Railroad Wreck---Three Lives Are Lost.

Exeter, N. H., June 10.—The most serious freight wreck on the Boston & Maine railroad in many months occurred on the western division about a quarter of a mile east of this station about 10:15 o'clock this morning. The Portland and Boston through night freight ran into a washout at Fernald's culvert. The locomotive and seven cars were demolished and three men were killed. The dead are:

Charles Rankin, engineer, of Portland.

A. C. Young, brakeman, of Portland.

Albert Chandler, brakeman, of Portland.

Daniel King, the fireman, was badly burned and was otherwise injured in the wreck. The chances are good for his recovery. The train consisted of twenty cars and was about half an hour behind time. While running at a good rate of speed the locomotive left the track, which for a distance of twenty feet had been undermined by the swollen stream beneath the culvert, and the locomotive and seven heavily laden freight cars went over a 40-foot embankment. The engine and cars and the contents of the latter were practically ruined. The engineer and two brakemen, who were on the front of the train, had no chance to jump and were caught in the wreckage. Fireman King went down nearly the entire distance with the engine and was badly burned and scalded.

MORE INDICTMENTS.

Well Known People in Trouble in Minneapolis.

Minneapolis, June 10.—The grand jury has indicted four officials of the failed Washington State bank, A. C. Haugen, the president, who at the time of the failure was also city treasurer and is now under indictment for his conduct of that office; J. H. Field, the cashier of the bank; A. E. Johnson, the well-known steamship agent, and Olaf Zarle, of St. Paul, who were directors.

The indictments have been reported to the court, but as no arraignments have been made their contents are not yet known. The charge in each case is supposed to be, however, borrowing money from the bank in violation of the state law which prohibits bank officials from so doing.

DEMENTED TRAIN DISPATCHER.

Chicago, June 10.—A man, supposed to be C. C. Walmsley, chief train dispatcher of the Texas & New Orleans railway, is in charge of the police, who found him at Fifty-seventh street and Lake avenue, helpless and apparently demented. At the station papers were found in his pockets indicating that he is C. C. Walmsley, of New Orleans, on his way to visit his brother of the firm of Hayden & Walmsley, attorneys of Eau Claire, Wis. Among the papers was a document granting C. C. Walmsley, train dispatcher of the Texas & New Orleans railway, an indefinite leave of absence from May 6, on account of his health, and signed by W. B. Mulvey, general superintendent.

OHIO'S GOVERNORSHIP.

Canton, Ohio, June 10.—Mayor James A. Rice has withdrawn as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor. In an interview he assigns as his reason that he is unable to secure the solid delegation from this county, and without that he does not care to go into the convention. Hon. John C. Welty, the other Stark county candidate, went to Columbus last night, presumably for a conference with Dan McConville. An agreement between his friends and those of Mayor Rice is probable.

VICTIM OF APOPLEXY.

Yosemite, Cal., June 10.—A. B. Glasscock, proprietor of the Sentinel hotel, who was stricken with apoplexy Sunday, died last night.

INCREASED COTTON ACREAGE.

Washington, June 10.—Cotton crop report: Condition, 83.5, against 92.7 last year. General acreage average, 103.5 making a total acreage of 24,091,394 this year as compared with 23,271,704 last year.

WEDDED

Greatest Social Function In Matrimonial Lines Boston Has Ever Seen.

Beautiful Floral Decorations and Stunning Dress of the Young Bride.

Boston, June 10.—A wedding ceremony, the character of which placed it in rank as the grandest this city has ever seen, and which, in point of the wealth represented, also was first among the great weddings of the country, was that whereby Lars Anderson, until very recently a member of the United States diplomatic corps at Rome, Italy, and Miss Isabelle Perkins, of this city, heiress to $17,000,000, today became husband and wife.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. George Hamilton Perkins, United States navy (retired), and a granddaughter of the late William F. Weld, of this city, whose millions she inherits together with her cousin, Mrs. Charles F. Sprague, the wife of Congressman Sprague, of Massachusetts. The groom is the son of a well-known Washington family, the head of which, Gen. Nicholas Anderson, died abroad a few years ago. He is a Harvard graduate and was associated with Robert T. Lincoln in the United States embassy at London and later was first secretary of legation in Italy under Wayne McVeagh.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Cuckson in the Arlington street church at noon, and among those who were present as guests were some of the most wealthy and prominent members of society in nearly every large city of the United States. The historic auditorium with its ancient pillars and box pews under the skilled hands of florists and designers, presented a most beautiful appearance. Potted plants, majestic ferns and massive banks of cut flowers of every description, were used in profusion. The bridal bell was one of the largest ever constructed in Boston. It was composed of bridal roses, fringed with lilies of the valley and small white buds. It was suspended from the ceiling by strands of broad, white satin ribbon. Each column of the church was wound with asparagus and domousa vine and great ropes of long stemmed roses trained on asparagus vines were suspended between the pillars and across the altar, and, with grfeat heaps of roses, made the front of the church resemble a dense garden. The reserved pews, comprising over two-thirds of the church, were marked off by wide white satin ribbons, which at each pew were knotted to hold a cluster of white roses.

When the hour for the performance of the ceremony arrived the organ broke into the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march and the bridal party entered. Preceded by ushers and bridesmaids and the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Anderson, sister of the groom, Miss Perkins proceeded to the altar leaning upon the arm of her father. Two ladies dressed as sixteenth century pages followed the bride as train-bearers. As the bride neared the head of the broad aisle, Mr. Anderson, who was accompanied by Charles Francis Adams, best man, advanced and meeting Miss Perkins they stood together before the clergyman.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom proceeded to the Perkins' home on Commonwealth avenue, where the wedding breakfast was served upon a temporary balcony, which had been built in the rear of the mansion. If the decorations in the church were beautiful, those at the house were surpassingly so. All that could be accomplished with flowers, arranged in the most artistic taste, was done. The bay windows were filled with growing plants and festoons of pink and white roses. Around the rooms were draped beautiful tapestries from corner to corner, and their folds were filled with roses. From the center of the walls of the main rooms, ropes of long-stemmed roses attached to asparagus vines radiated to the ceilings. The candelebra supported pouches of white silk filled with bridal roses till the effect of bursting was produced. The banister and balusters were intertwined with white ribbons and strings of roses and lilies of the valley, and the reception rooms upstairs were equally embowered.

In the great drawing room were the tables holding the great number of presents. The breakfast tables, in point of floral decorations, were simple. Tall, slender vases held long-stemmed roses, and lilies of the valley were heaped in shallow vessels. After the breakfast, following which a reception was held and later the couple departed for New York, en route for Europe and the far East.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Eleanor Gray, Miss Susan Dallon, Miss Theodore Knight and Miss Bessie Seabury.

The gowns of the bride and the bridesmaids were the creations of Worth, Doucet and Faxon. The bride's gown was of heavy cream satin, lined throughout with taffeta silk. The seams are outlined from waist to hem with orange blossoms and the corsage with a surplus effect with fluffy trimmings of tulle.

THE WOMAN IS DEAD.

Washington, June 10.—Mrs. Chiara Giuliani, the Italian woman who was shot by Jacope Ferrari yesterday, died at an early hour today, thus making the deed one of murder as well as suicide. Ferrari wooed the woman in Italy, but was rejected and came to this country, making his home in Detroit. Learning that she had come to this country and was in Washington, he came here to win her from her husband, and failing, shot and killed her and himself.

WILLCUTS TO BE COLLECTOR.

Endorsed By Morris, Eddy, Tawney, Fletcher and Others.

Washington, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Levi M. Willcuts, chairman of the Republican Sixth district congressional committee, will be the next collector of customs at Duluth. His application was filed at the treasury department by Representative Morris today and bore the endorsements of every member of the delegation interested in the appointment. These were Senators Davis and Nelson and Representatives Morris, Eddy, Tawney and Fletcher. In addition Judge Morris filed a big batch of endorsements from prominent politicians and business men of the Sixth district. With such a backing Willcuts cannot fail to secure the place. The term of the present collector, Emil Olund, does not expire for about nine months. It is not known that any charges have been filed against him, so that he is not likely to be removed. The office pays $4500 per year and fees. Willcuts is the only candidate for a federal office the members of the Minnesota delegation have so far been able unanimously to agree upon.

PRESIDENT'S TRIP.

Party Enjoying the Stop at Hot Springs.

Hot Springs, Va., June 10.—Before any of the rest of the presidential party awoke this morning President McKinley was enjoying a view of the encircling mountains from an upper veranda and he and Mrs. McKinley had breakfast alone at 9 o'clock. It becomes more and more evident that the trip as far as Nashville is to be purely recreative, and affairs of state, if not laid aside entirely, are certainly not under discussion. Everyone, the president as much as any, is delighted with the thoughtful preparations made by the railway officials and the careful provision which anticipates and satisfies every reasonable want.

Carriages were awaiting those who wished to drive around the beautiful grounds after breakfast and many did so. Mr. McKinley declined a drive, preferring to stroll quietly about the spacious galleries of the hotel, and to the building set apart for the party to take a plunge in a pool. At 10 o'clock Mr. McKinley was accorded the freedom of the pool and came from his bath the picture of placid health and all pervading content.

Among the guests at the homestead is ex-Secretary Herbert, who was warmly greeted on all sides. The presidential train, newly swept and brightened with fresh flowers, the mountain laurel being in notable profusion, resumed its westward way at 12 o'clock, Washington time.

POOLING BILL.

Senate Interstate Commerce Committee Discussed It.

Washington, June 10.—The senate committee on interstate commerce held a brief meeting and adjourned for a week without transacting any business beyond a discussion of the advisability of reporting the pooling bill. To this proposition objection was made and it was not pressed. A senator, who is opposed to any action on the bill, remarked that so long as the house committees were not appointed it was useless for the senate to work itself to death. The indications now are that if authority is not given at the next meeting to report the bill action will be postponed until the beginning of the regular session or at least until the tariff bill is disposed of.

BIG DISTILLERY TRANSFERS.

Owensboro, Ky., June 10.—H. C. Wathen and Julian Wilkins agents of a syndicate, are here to take an inventory of distillery property on which the owners have fixed a price. The deal embraces Sour Mash, Eagle, Glenmore, Fields, Daviess county, John Hanning and M. P. Mattingly distilleries. Whisky men say the deal is sure to be carried out and that in sixty days the syndicate will own seven-tenths of the distillery property in Kentucky and 50,000,000 gallons of whisky in bond.

A TIN PLATE POOL.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 10.—A meeting of jobbers and a committee of the Tin Plate Manufacturers' association will be held in New York within the next few days to form a pool. Previous to the formation of the new association of tin plate manufacturers, the jobbers stocked up heavily at the low prices, and when the association advanced prices, the jobbers refused to be governed by the association rates. It is now proposed to combine and fix a rate satisfactory to both parties.

CHARGED WITH LIBEL.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 10.—The American Book company today began suit in federal court against G. A. Gates, president of Iowa college at Grinnell, for $100,000 for malicious libel. Gates published some time ago a pamphlet charging the book company with bribery and corrupt methods in getting books adopted by school boards over the country.

WILL PURIFY PROFESSORSHIPS.

Austin, Tex., June 10.—After a wrangle lasting over three hours the house of the legislature today adopted a resolution to have a committee appointed to investigate the charge that there were Northern professors occupying chairs in the Texas state university who were teaching Republican politics and ridiculing the history of the lost cause.

STRIKE FAILED ALTOGETHER.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 10.—The strike at Jones & Laughlin's American works was declared off by the strikers' committee today and all the old men who can get work will go back at once at the reduction. About 500 men have been taken on, and probably that many of the old employed will be compelled to seek work elsewhere. The mill was run in every department today.

NEARING THE END.

Bloomsburg, Pa., June 10.—The taking of testimony in the Wintersteen-Knorr dynamite conspiracy case was closed today. James Scarlet opened for the prosecution. Judge Ermentrout will deliver his charge tomorrow and the case will then go to the jury.

GENERAL MISSIONARY MEET.

Clifton Springs, N. Y., June 10.—International Missionary union has begun a week's convention here, the Rev. T. J. Grace, of Rochester, N. Y., presiding. There are more than 1000 missionaries, representing all denominations, in attendance.

UPHELD

Governor in Discharge of His Duties Amenable to Legislature Alone.

New Democratic Organization and Its Unique Certificates of Membership.

Minneapolis, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—Judge Simpson of the district bench this afternoon handed down an opinion that while it was the duty of the governor to respond to the grand jury's subpoena and to produce such papers as it required, he could not be compelled to do so by the judiciary branch of the state government, which is only co-ordinate in authority with the executive.

The governor is exempt from judicial process while in discharge of his duties, and he alone is judge of when such process would interfere with such duties. He is amenable to the legislature alone, which may impeach him for violation of duty.

Judge Simpson points out that the power to summon witnesses is at the root of the judicial function and that the governor is not justified in declining to respond, but he also concludes that for the judiciary branch to compel him to do so would bring the two branches of the government into conflict and would be against public policy.

NOVEL ORGANIZATION.

National Volunteers of Democracy and Its Certificates.

Minneapolis, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—The "National Volunteers of Democracy," is the name of a new organization whose plan is exceedingly novel. The headquarters is St. Louis, but local politicians are receiving circulars from Secretary Hoffman, who explains that certificates of honor are to be granted to all loyal workers.

The prerequisite for obtaining a certificate is six months' earnest service in the party ranks, and for each additional six months' service until 1901 "when Bryan is inaugurated as president," a coupon is to be issued and pasted onto the original certificate. Upon this latter is a picture of Mr. Bryan presenting to a headless body a certificate of honor. The recipient is supposed to have his own photograph pasted on where the head should be.

Mr. Hoffman declares that in 1901 one of these certificates will be of more value in securing an office than the endorsement of ten senators and a hundred representatives. He quotes a letter from Mr. Bryan giving a quasi endorsement to the idea.

FREIGHTS COLLIDE.

Several People Crushed in the Burning Debris.

Nashville, Tenn., June 10.—A special to the Banner from Bradford, Tenn., says: A serious railroad wreck occurred at this place at 5:15 a. m. today. Two Illinois Central freight trains going in opposite directions crashed into each other at a slight curve just at the end of town and about 400 yards from the depot. It is impossible, at present, to learn the full extent of the damage done.

All of the injured were taken to the hotels and a special train arrived from Jackson at 8:45 o'clock with medical aid. It is said that at least three and, perhaps more, are under the now burning ruins of the arms. All of the trainmen have been accounted for. The injured are: Ed Benz, engineer, collar bone and shoulder broken; G. H. Bobley, fireman, ankle bruised; Ed Powers, slightly bruised; Bob Burk, back and leg hurt; Jim Northcut, both legs broken and arm broken. Benz and Northcut are fatally hurt.

BREWERS' MEETING.

Vigilance Committee Reports on Prohibition's Decline.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 10.—The convention of brewers of the United States concluded its work this afternoon with the election of the following: President, W. C. Bergner, Philadelphia; Isaac Danenburk, New York, treasurer; W. Ringler, New York, secretary; trustees, Richard Katzenmeyer, New York; Joseph Theurer, Chicago; Henry Nicolaus, St. Louis; Charles Class, Philadelphia; J.W. Brown, Brooklyn.

The report of the vigilance committee, which was presented, referred to the "steadily progressing decline of what in certain states might at the time have been styled the popularity of prohibition." The defeat of prohibition at the polls in thirteen states was reported.

TRANSFER

Control of Northern Pacific to Pass Into Hill's Hands.

J. P. Morgan's Interest to Be Switched About in That Manner.

Europeans Now Investing In the American Coal Carrying Lines.

New York, June 10.—J. Pierpont Morgan has returned from Europe on the White Star steamer Teutonic. He has been arranging while abroad for important changes and reorganizations in several large railroad properties, and is believed to have had entire success in his plans, though he refuses to confirm this report, further than by saying that the financial situation abroad seems much improved.

The deal in the Northern Pacific contemplated by the Morgan interests is said to involve the transfer of the controlling interest in the road to the Great Northern clique which upholds James J. Hill in the management of the latter property. The clique consists of the largest banking houses in Amsterdam, Berlin, Hamburg and London. The Deutsch bank of Berlin is the chief factor in the control of this property.

Anthracite coal matters are also said to have received the attention of Mr. Morgan while abroad. Foreigners have her before had little interest in the coal-carrying roads. It is stated now, however, that through Mr. Morgan's foreign connections several blocks of Philadelphia & Reading and Lehigh Valley securities will be placed in Europe. The former road was reorganized by J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Morgan personally owns a large amount of its securities and, as the head of the reorganization syndicate, his firm will also receive large blocks.

STATE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Collins Swells the Volume of Decisions.

St. Paul, June 10.—The supreme court, in a decision handed down yesterday by Justice Collins, holds that:

"Where the property of a bank is in the hands of an assignee or receiver, in insolvency proceedings, it is not necessary that a time certificate of deposit payable on return thereof, properly endorsed, should be presented for payment to the bank or to its assignee or receiver in order to mature a right of action on a bond given to the payee named in the certificate, conditioned that the bank shall safely keep and account for all moneys deposited by said payee, and on demand pay over upon a proper warrant, check or other paper direction, all moneys so deposited.

"The recitals and conditions contained in the bond construed, held to include and cover a deposit of public funds made by a board of commissioners, whose authority for so doing, if existing at all, was in law 1895, chapter 243, section 5, and for which the bank, incorporated under the state laws, issued and the commissioners accepted a time certificate of deposit."

The decision affirms the order of the lower court. It was in the case of the city hall and court house commissioners of Hennepin county, respondents, against the Irish-American bank, and its bondsmen, appellants.

Another of the cases, involving the assets of the Merchants bank of Lake City, was also decided yesterday. The district court had ordered Receiver R. H. Moore to sell the assets of the insolvent bank at public auction. Moore did so, but the court refused to confirm the sale on the ground that the prices received were inadequate. The purchasers appealed to the supreme court from that decision, and Justice Collins holds that the court did not abuse its direction in making this order, so it is affirmed.

Justice Collins also made a ruling on what constitutes a homestead under chapter 68, section 1, general laws of 1878, which will interest a good many people just now while the matter is in dispute in a good many cases. The case is that of Thomas O. Ford, respondent, vs. Charles F. Clement, appellant, and the order of the lower court is reversed. In the syllabus, Justice Collins says after reciting the various laws:

"Held, applying the rules above stated to the facts in this case that the court below did not err when it determined that the tract of land in controversy, 50 feet in width from front to rear, the same being part of a "lot" over 111 feet wide by more than 147 feet in depth, as platted, was not exempt as a homestead under the general statutes of 1878, chapter 68, section 1.

Other decisions:

Stephen C. Cook, respondent, vs. C. Dec. Kittson, appellant. Order affirmed. Collins, J.

Philip C. Justus, respondent, vs. Walter F. Meyers et al, appellants. Order reversed. Collins, J.

C. W. Abrahamson, respondent, vs. L. Lamberson and George C. Winchester, appellants. Dispute over the value of improvements on land sold. Judgment reversed and new trial ordered.

Luger Furniture company, plaintiff, respondent, vs. Warren Gilbert, defendant, respondent, Warren Manufacturing company, garnishee, respondent, Sawyer Grain company, claimant, appellant. Held the decision is supported by the evidence. Order affirmed.

FOSTER WELL RECEIVED.

St. Petersburg, June 10.—At the banquet last evening at the United States legation in honor of John W. Foster, the United States seal commissioner, the minister for foreign affairs, Count Muravieff, and the minister of imperial domains, M. Yermoloff, were present. It is reported here that Mr. Foster's mission is meeting with great sympathy and support in official circles.

Putting the baby to bed is the good-night joy of a happy day to a healthy mother. Many mothers delegate this motherly duty to a nurse. Some mothers hardly see their baby the live-long day. This is not because they are without mother-love or the natural impulses of a womanly woman. It is because of their own ill-health and broken nerves, and because baby is also sickly and peevish.

This unfortunate state of affairs might have been avoided had the mother, during the period of expectant motherhood, taken the right care of the delicate organs that make maternity possible. A woman should always keep these important organs well and strong. Her own health and that of her child depend upon it.

The best medicine for prospective mothers is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes healthy and strong the organs that bear the burdens of maternity. It cures all disease and weakness. It makes comfortable the period preceding motherhood and renders the advent of baby easy and nearly painless. It insures a healthy child. The pains and suffering that women endure, as a result of weakness of the distinctly womanly organism, vanish under its use. All good druggists sell it. There is nothing else "just as good."

"I want to tell you," writes Mrs. N. A. Thomas, of 109 Pulaski Street, Little Rock, Ark., "that my daughter, Mrs. Lawrence, who lives in Texarkana, Ark., had been under the doctor's care for four years. I lately sent her word to try the medicine which cured me, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I have just heard that it has done her more good than all the doctors."

"The People's Common Sense Adviser" explains symptoms of ailments common to every family, and suggests remedies. It has several chapters on woman's diseases and weaknesses. An edition in heavy paper covers will be distributed absolutely free. Send the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only. Cloth binding may be had for 10 cents extra—31 cents in all.

BYNUM MOVES.

National Democratic Chairman Locates in New York.

New York, June 10.—William D. Bynum, chairman of the national committee of the national Democratic party, has become a New Yorker. Mr. Bynum with his family has moved from Indianapolis to Brooklyn, where he will make his home.

The decision of Chairman Bynum to locate permanently in the East is regarded by politicians as being of considerable significance. Mr. Bynum has been a leading spirit in the sound money Democratic movement since its inception, and the other gold leaders are depending largely upon him to carry on the work to success in 1900. Mr. Bynum found that he could not manage the campaign work to his entire satisfaction in Indianapolis, hence this change of residence.

Mr. Bynum said that permanent headquarters would be established by the national Democratic party in this city within a few days.

WEYLER'S SUCCESSOR.

A Resigning Aide Names Two Probabilities.

New York, June 10.—A dispatch to the Journal from Havana says: Another of Weyler's generals, Lono, inspector general of the civil guard forces in Cuba and military governor of Havana, has resigned and is to leave the island by the trans-Atlantic liner, sailing on June 20 for Spain direct. Lono regards Weyler's early recall as quite assured, and thinks Blanco or Lopez Dominguez will come out as his successor.

Weyler is reported to have called Canovas insisting that Minister Dupuy De Lome demand from the Washington government the extradition of Nunez, Cartaya and Arteaga, alleged filibusters recently captured by the United States authorities on the Florida coast, alleging old criminal indictments against the three of them, said to be still pending in the courts here.

SMUGGLED FURS.

Seized at Denver---An Unintentional Misdemeanor.

Denver, Col., June 10.—The Denver customs officers acting on information received from the inspector at Sault Ste. Marie, on the Canadian border, seized a valuable package of furs, containing six Canadian mink skins and three beaver skins, which had been consigned by express to "Miss E. Hart, care of the Deanery, Denver," and on which no duty had been paid. Miss Hart is the daughter of Rev. H. Martyn Hart, canon of the Episcopal cathedral, which is one of the wealthiest congregations west of Chicago.

Dean Hart explains that the furs were sent by a friend in Canada without his knowledge. He says he does not think the sender realized that he was violating the law.

DYNAMITED BY INSURGENTS.

Havana, June 10, via Key West.—The passenger train which leaves Havana for Matanzas daily at 6 a. m. was dynamited yesterday about twelve miles from the city by a party of insurgents. According to the official account the object was plunder, as about $6000 was in the express car. The officials had ordered the passenger train to go ahead and the pilot engine to follow. At a bend in the line a terrible explosion completely wrecked the passenger engine, which fell into a pit twenty-nine feet below, dragging three third-class cars after it. Another explosion wrecked the pilot engine, which came to the rescue, and it fell into the pit also. Both engineers, one fireman, one conductor and seven soldiers were killed and three passengers were severely injured, while thirty-two suffered more or less serious bruises.

A KENTUCKY WEDDING.

Lexington, Ky., June 10.—Edward J. Nally, assistant general superintendent of the Postal Telegraph company, with headquarters at Chicago, was united in marriage to Miss Lee Warren Redd, daughter of Capt. Olevest Redd of this city. The ceremony took place at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Miss Redd, on the Georgetown road. Chancellor Muldoon of Chicago, a warm personal friend of Mr. Nally, solemnized the nuptials.

Representative of Dominion Lumbermen Discuss Dingley Lumber Schedules.

Retaliatory Measure Proposed in the Shape of an Export Duty.

Canadian Government Will Be Asked to Impose Such a Duty.

Ottowa, Ont., June 10.—A large and representative meeting of lumbermen, bank presidents and directors, and representatives of railway and transportation companies, was held here last night to discuss the action to be taken in consequence of the rejection by the United States senate of motions to strike out the duties on lumber and pulp imposed by the Dingley bill.

The great injustice of allowing Canadian logs and pulp wood to be exported to the United States free of duty, to be there manufactured into lumber and pulp, which would then compete with the products upon which an import duty must be paid, was pointed out, and it was unanimously resolved that the government be asked to make provision for an export duty on logs and pulp wood equal at least to the United States import duty, should that be ultimately imposed.

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

Ten thousand people saw the Maher-Sharkey contest in New York last evening. It was declared a draw at the end of the seventh round on account of interference by the police. Sharkey had a shade the best of it for the first six rounds, but Maher made him very tired in the last and would probably have won if allowed to continue.

The great mill and elevator of the St. Louis Milling company at Carlinville, Ill., together with the large cooper shop, and John Schaper's hardware store and several residences near Carlinville, were destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Total loss about $200,000, with $68,000 insurance.

The Tariff Commission league has opened headquarters in Washington. Samuel B. Archer will be in charge. A DISABLED STEAMER.

Tacoma, Wash., June 10.—The Northern Pacific steamer Python arrived last night, twenty-one days from Yokohama after an eventful voyage. In mid-ocean a serious break-down occurred to her pumping machinery, necessitating sixty-five hours work without stopping on the part of the engines. During this time she rolled in the trough of the sea. Repairs being completed she proceeded at ten knots an hour until within thirty miles of Vancouver island, where a second break-down occurred, but she was able to proceed slowly into Victoria and thence to Tacoma. The break-down delayed her five days. The Python brings 4400 tons of cargo.

FLOODS IN RUSSIA.

Sebastopol, June 10.—Advices from Simferopol, capital of the province of Taurida, say that torrential rains have fallen in that district inundating a portion of the province. Many persons have been drowned, the rivers are overflowing and ruining the crops, and the damage to the wheat crop is enormous. Drought prevails in Northern Taurida.

A GLOBE SHAKE UP.

Hill Said to Have Acquired a Firmer Hold.

St. Paul, June 10.—It is declared that the ownership of the Globe by J. J. Hill will soon be shown in the shuffling off of J. G. Pyle, the present editor. The nominal owners of the Globe are Pyle, Crawford Livingstone, Hill's warm friend, and J. L. Jones, a New York broker, but Mr. Hill is the power behind the throne. The Globe will be in line on the tariff, will be for the gold standard, and in corporation matters it will be for the Great Northern.

The report is that Mr. Pyle's successor will be A. W. Lyman, an old correspondent of the New York Sun, who ran the Helena Independent for a while, and came out from New York in the first place to accept an appointment from President Cleveland as collector of internal revenue for Montana.

DURRANT REPRIEVED.

Governor Budd Postpones the Execution Date.

San Francisco, June 10.—Theodore Durrant, the murderer of Blanche Lamont, will be reprieved today. Governor Budd has decided upon this course in order to settle the question of the rights of the federal courts to interfere in the execution of a sentence imposed by the state court. He has named July 9 as the day upon which the sentence shall be carried out.

FAMINE AND PLAGUES.

Chinese Are Dying Off Like a Lot of Sheep.

Vancouver, B. C., June 10.—Advices by the steamer Empress of Japan say: The fatality from famine and plague in China is appalling. The famine north and east of Szechuan is causing many deaths. A traveler who has just returned from there reports having seen numbers of dead bodies lying about unattended to. In one large town half the population had perished from starvation, and the fever that follows in its wake.

The government has sent 120,000 picules of rice by way of relief, but grain cannot be got to the sufferers beyond certain parts, owing to sections made impassable by swollen rivers. Along the route to smaller towns numbers of bodies lay decomposing, while the sky was black with vultures.

Smallpox is prevalent in Tocghe, ten or twelve new cases being reported daily. Smallpox and other epidemics are very prevalent in Tokio, while 200 more cases of black plague are reported from Taiholu and Tai Wan, Formosa. There are some 850 cases altogether.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The damage suit commenced by the widow of Conductor Cameron against the Great Northern Railway company will not be tried at the present term of the district court at Grand Forks. The suit was tried at last summer's term, resulting a verdict of $14,000 in favor of John Cameron. This was only about half the amount claimed. The railway company asked for and was granted a new trial by Judge Templeton, and the case set for this term. Judge Fisk, however, having been interested in the case as consulting attorney, cannot try it. All the other judges of the state are holding terms of court at the present time, hence are unable to come here and preside in place of Judge Fisk. As another jury term will be held in July the case will be continued until then. Considerable business was transacted in the district court which went through with somewhat of a rush yesterday while quite a number of attorneys and witnesses were absent attending the circus. Judge Fisk made quite a record by disposing of four cases by wiping them from the calendar in just ten minutes. The grand jury has kept very close to business, and as a result very much to the gratification of a large number of taxpayers of this county, has nearly completed its work. The grand jury came into court this morning and presented five indictments, none of which are yet made public. Six prisoners were brought before the bar of the court for arraignment.

While ingling Bros.' circus outfit was being unloaded in the Great Northern yards at Fargo, one teamster was crushed to death by a falling truck.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

H. G. Giesen, treasurer of Rondell school district, near Aberdeen, is short $2967 in his accounts. He claims that the money was stolen from his residence on Sunday last and that the thieves set his house on fire to hide the first crime. A hole was burned in the floor before the flames were extinguished.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans is in session at Redfield, about 300 being present, the largest attendance of old soldiers for years. Reports of officers indicate that there are now ninety-five posts in the state with a total membership of 2200. There have been thirty-eight deaths during the past year. The offices of assistant adjutant general and quartermaster general were consolidated and the salary fixed at $200 yearly. Canton was named for the place of next year's encampment.

Ranchers have taken a lesson from their experience of last winter and are making extensive additions in barns and sheds for housing cattle near Pierre. The people who live in that section generally began to raise cattle four or five years ago, and made farming a side issue, and every one of them has prospered.

Since the statement was made that Land Commissioner Lockhart was attempting to dispose of the Taylor lands, he is receiving numerous inquiries at Pierre asking not only as to these lands, but as to the probability of securing other lands.

A SCIENTIST SUICIDES.

OBSERVED THE LAW.

Sharkey and Maher Discharged From Their Arrest.

New York, June 10.—Peter Maher and Thomas Sharkey, the heavy-weight pugilists who were arrested last night during their fight at the Palace Athletic club, were discharged by Magistrate Cornell in the Harlem police court today. The magistrate admitted that the conduct of the men in the seventh round might have been disorderly and said he was glad they had been locked up, but that nevertheless as far as he could see there had been no violation of the Horton law.

The first to arrive in court was the Maher party. The crowd on the street greeted Maher with a cheer. Soon after Sharkey and his friends made their appearance. They received a reception similar to that of Maher. The two pugilists did not seem to pay much attention to one another. There was not, however, the slightest evidence of ill-feeling.

The case being called, Magistrate Cornell invited Inspector McLaughlin to tell him all about the case. The inspector said he believed the law was violated by the men last night. There was slugging and knocking down, and he believed it was his duty to stop them. Magistrate Cornell interjected that a good many things happened at a performance of that kind that would not look well at a 5 o'clock tea. The inspector insisted that there was a slugging, brutal pounding and knocking down. If that did not constitute a prize fight he did not know what did.

Magistrate Cornell stated that he had read the account of the fight and while he believed the inspector was perfectly right in separating and arresting the men, he did not think they could strictly be held for taking part in a prize fight. Counsel for Sharkey claimed that there was no violation so far as the sparring contest went, and there would have been none to the end. Counsel for Maher remarked that Assemblyman Horton was at the contest himself last night and he said the performance was perfectly legal up to the seventh round. The inspector stated that he went to the dressing room of the men before they entered the ring and read the law to them and told them that there must be no slugging.

Here Magistrate Cornell interposed: "I think you did right, inasmuch as the men were disorderly. But you must understand that they received much encouragement. The public had apparently expressed great interest in what they were about to do. They were very much interested themselves. They are big, powerful men and presumably high-tempered. It is not to be wondered at if they lost their heads. On that ground an arrest was warranted, if they acted disorderly. I am glad they were locked up, and would have been glad had they been forced to stay all night in the jail. But I will not entertain a complaint of prize fighting against them. I think they are within the law."

Turning to Maher and Sharkey, who stood side by side before him, Magistrate Cornell said: "Maher and Sharkey, you are discharged." Then there was a quick clearing out of the court room and a crowd of admirers escorted the pugilists to the Third avenue cable cars. It was noticed that as far as the appearance of the men went, there had been no slugging. Maher's eyes were somewhat bloodshot, but his friends say that is a constitutional affection. There was a little scratch behind Sharkey's left ear, but that his seconds said, was there a week ago.

SAID OF STEEL PENS.

That the first metal pen known to history is, without doubt, the one in a Dutch patent book of 1717.

That a Mr. Stanner, of Sheffield, England, was the first manufacturer to cheapen steel pens, but this was long before the screw press was introduced.

That the use of the screw press belongs to the period of John Mitchell. Joe Gillott and Josiah Nason, but the facts seem to point to John Mitchell as the original introducer of press-made pens.

That at about this period a polite ode of Pope refers to "A steel pen and gold pen;" but these were evidently great luxuries, and it was not until about sixty years ago that metallic pens came into general use.

That a Roman pen made of steel is said to have been found some years ago at Aosta. It was no a mere stylus, but a bronze pen. This and there is some evidence of a pen or reed of bronze nearly as early as the invention of printing in the fifteenth century.

That in 1823 or 1824 a great revolution came by which steel pens were manufactured by a cheaper and quicker process—the hand screw press which pierced or cut out the pen from sheets of steel. Before this time pens had been made from steel rolled into tubes.

That something like 100 years ago some steel pens were manufactured in the city of Birmingham, England, by a Mr. Harrison, who made them to order for Dr. Priestly. Some of these pens also passed into the hands of Sir Joseph Nason, but all seem to be lost.

ADVANCED

Trade Small Owing to Uncertainty Over the Government Report.

Rains In the Northwest Expected to Improve the Crops' Condition.

The opening in wheat today was at slightly higher prices. Liverpool came about 1c lower, following yesterday's decline in American markets, but Northwest receipts, always more or less a factor, were very light, 221 cars being reported, against 358 last week and 449 a year ago. Opinion was divided in regard to the tone of the government crop report, which will be issued today, and trade was small in consequence of this uncertainty. A disposition to cover was soon shown by shorts and under their bidding an advance took place shortly after the opening. Crop reports were improved from the Northwest last night's rains being expected to improve the condition. A reaction took place after noon, but the market again became stronger and prices rose once more to the high point.

Trading was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened 1c higher at 70¾c and advanced steadily to 71¼c. Then it fell on 1c to 70¾c, but rallied again and sold up to 71¾c. The close was firm with buyers at 71¾, an advance of ¾c for the day. The mills bought 85,000 bus of cash stuff at 1¼c over July, and shippers took 11,000 bus at ¾c over July. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 73¾c; September, 69⅝c; No. 1 northern, cash, 72c; July, 71¾c bid; September, 69¾c; No. 2 northern, cash, 70c; No. 3, 68¾@68¾c. Received, 181,462 bu. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 72¾c; No. 1 northern, 72c; Rye, 31½c; No. 2 oats, 21c; No. 3 oats, 20c. Flax, 76c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 69; oats, 55; rye, 6; barley, 40; flax, 12. Receipts—Wheat, 114,099 bus; oats, 118,287 bus; rye, 6076 bus; barley, 56,063 bus; flax, 14,094 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 118,000 bus.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 26 Board of Trade, Chicago, June 10.—July wheat regained a cent of yesterday decline, closing just where it did Tuesday. The reaction was due and considering the news of the day it is a wonder that it did not go over 70c. The bear tips on the government report were overshadowed today by bull tips and the prospective yield was cut down by the guessers about 20,000,000 bus. Continental and English cables all weak and lower and Liverpool sold wheat here today. Business here and at the seaboard was small, but clearances fairly good. The local crowd tried to hammer down July wheat but there was good buying orders and of September for long account which held the market steady. A report that the European stocks decreased 3,000,000 last week instead of 300,000 was not credited. If anyone wants a reason for the slow decrease in European reserves of wheat he will find it in the fact that the official report of imports into Great Britain shows that in the last eight months 80,000,000 bus of corn were imported against 56,000,000 for the same season last year and 32,000,000 in 1895, while the total imports of wheat have hardly changed in three years.

Corn strong and higher on the Price Current's bullish summary and renewal of cold weather and damage reports from the West. Much of the buying today was for long account and the advance was well held. Oats rallied in sympathy.

Puts, July wheat, 68¾@68c.
Calls, July wheat, 70¾@70⅝c.
Curb, July wheat, 69c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Great Activity Marked the Early Market Hours.

New York, June 10.—The response of the London market for Americans to the strength displayed here yesterday encouraged further buying at the opening today. Great activity marked the initial dealings, large blocks changing hands and prices trending strongly upwards. Internationals showed the greatest strength, Norfolk & Western, preferred, leading with a rise of 1¾c. In the specialties Western Union and Tennessee Coal jumped 1¾c each. The grangers lagged in the advance, but the market was very strong throughout except for Sugar, which displayed some heaviness after a higher opening and fell off ⅝c.

The bulls continued in control of the market up to 11 o'clock and encountered little difficulty in marking up values sharply. The shorts covered heavily in the specialties and marked D. & H. and D. & L. up 1 and New Jersey Central 1 1-4 per cent. Gains of a similar extent were scored in other less accounts here. The announcement of a further advance in refined sugar checked the selling of the stock, and a rally ensued to 124 3-8. The grangers and other leading railroad properties were in brisk demand at higher prices, and considerable confidence was expressed by the traders on the situation.

The demand for the inactive specialties became quite keen after the first hour, and the coal and iron shares had favorable reports on the trade outlook. Illinois Steel gained 2 1-2 per cent on large sales. The anthracite coal stocks were in especial request, and on good buying for both accounts New Jersey Central touched 80 1-2 and D. & H. 107 7-8. The dealings were very animated and excellently distributed. The railway stocks displayed less marked strength than the general list, but moved in sympathy with the market to the extent of a sharp fraction. There was some buying for foreign account and by commission houses. The bond market displayed pronounced strength, with the more notable gains in the inactive issues. The middle grade lines were quite extensively traded in and registered the extreme gains. Sales of stocks up to noon, 183,200 shares.

WEST END

Two Weddings of Well Known Young People Solemnized Last Evening.

P. Nicholson Assumes His Duties as Commissioner Succeeding G. Stevens.

Annual Meeting of Plymouth Congregational Church Held Last Evening.

Amid the pleasant fragrance of mignonette and the gentle odor of the pentecostal lily of the valley a pretty wedding was solemnized last evening at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Anderson, 613 Fifty-seventh avenue west, the contracting parties being Miss Anna S. Anderson and August Lofgren, both well known West Duluth people. The wedding decorations were in pink and white, which fact the flowers and colors gave evidence of. The bride was dressed in heavy cream silk, with a long train. As the wedding march was played by Miss Olson, the bridesmaids entered the rooms, and then the bridal couple. The best man was I. F. Ellsvig and the maid of honor was the bride's sister, Miss Clara Anderson. Rev. A. F. Elmquist performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lofgren left on the 11:30 St. Paul & Duluth train for the South and West. In the fall or June they will be back and receive their friends at their home on Fifty-seventh avenue west and Cody street.

In the presence of about 100 of their friends and relatives, Miss Emma Kretschmer and W. E. Lawrence were married at 8:30 o'clock last night at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Julia Kretschmer, 707 Fifty-fifth avenue west. Rev. Robert Forbes officiated. At the conclusion of the ceremony, and after Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence had been offered congratulations, refreshments were served, and the evening was passed in pleasant social intercourse. The parlor, where the ceremony took place was handsomely decorated with flowers, many of them the offerings of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence will make their home with Mrs. Kretschmer.

NICHOLSON TAKES HOLD.

Patrick Nicholson, who was appointed street commissioner Tuesday by the board of public works for the West Duluth district, to succeed George Stevens, has assumed his new duties. Mr. Nicholson is a practical man, and will undoubtedly prove a worthy successor of Mr. Stevens, who has been one of the most satisfactory street commissioners the West End has ever had.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH MEETING.

At the annual business meeting of Plymouth Congregational church last night, C. S. Weaver was elected trustee, C. C. Weaver clerk and J. R. Brearley treasurer. Officers of the Sunday school were elected as follows: Superintendent, R. K. Brearley; assistant superintendent, J. R. Brearley; E. W. Kelly, secretary and treasurer, and Carl C. Weaver, librarian. The reports submitted by the officers were very satisfactory, showing the church, Sunday school, Y. P. S. C. E. to be in excellent condition.

HER MOUTH.

It is said that a certain English portrait painter has almost as great a reputation for joking as for taking excellent likenesses, says Tit-Bits. One evening he was speaking of a beautiful young girl whose portrait he had just finished.

"Her features are exquisitely moulded, I have heard," said a friend, who had seen neither the portrait nor the original.

"Mouth like an elephant's?" echoed his friend, in dismay. "What a terrible misfortune! Do you mean that it is so enormous and—what do you mean?"

"Only that it is lined with superb ivory, madam," returned the artist, with his usual gravity.

FOUND HIS SPECIALTY.

One of the speakers at a banquet given here recently, says the Washington Post, dwelt at some length upon a man's natural aptitude to the vocation in life he pursued, and attributed as a result of so many failures the fact that a majority of mankind were following vocations not in beat with their natural inclinations. He told an interesting story illustrating his meaning from one of his school-boy recollections, as follows:

"At my first school there was a boy to whom the teacher could not succeed in imparting the simplest rules of elementary knowledge. Try as she might, her efforts were failures. Her patience, after exhaustless trials, turned to despair. One day, when he seemed duller than usual, she sent him from the recitation bench to his seat with a severe reprimand, promising to recommend his dismissal to the trustees.

"Shortly afterward she observed him bending over some pursuit at his desk. His eyes were lighted with an expression that seemed inspiration. Anxious to know the cause of this almost miraculous transformation from sloth that was sluggish to activity that was life, she passed down the aisle by his desk on some pretext that would not disturb him, and found the cause of his glowing study to be the examination of a fly, which he had caught and was examining, having dissected it into parts. The truth dawned upon the teacher. The boy's mind ran to entomology. He was a born naturalist.

"The teacher said nothing, but that afternoon called up the ntire class for general recitation. The boy's appearance was as dull as ever. 'Boys,' said the teacher, addressing the entire school. 'I want to see how far your general powers of observation on trivial subjects go. For instance, you have all seen thousands of flies. Now, I want each one of you to tell me his impressions of a fly.' Beyond the fact that the fly was a fly and had two wings, not one of the school could say anything further. At the first mention of the subject the dull boy was all aglow. He held up his hand and snapped his fingers. He realized his superiority. It was his day. He told of a fly from a general and analytical standpoint, its interior and exterior construction, its habits, its food, its generation and its propensities. The rest of the school sat astonished. The boy went on and launched into a general description of bugs and insects he had caught in the woods.

"From that day the teacher encouraged his peculiar aptitude, and troubled him no more with the rules of grammar and arithmetic. She went into the woods with him and helped in his studies of nature. She brought the attention of the school trustees to his case, and, to make a long story short, he was sent to Europe to study. In Leipsic he was made moderator of the natural conservatory of science. He held for a time an important position in the Smithsonian at Washington, D. C., and he is now in Paris, one of the leading entomologists of the world.

JUSTICE WAS TEMPERED.

A number of years ago Judge Reuther, an old German, was elected police justice of South Omaha. Now this same judge had a saloon also, and being of a thrifty turn of mind he did not wish to give up so good a paying business as a saloon in a booming town, so he decided to wear the white apron and the judicial ermine at the same time, says the Nebraska State Journal. It is needless to say that many amusing complications arose in his court, and it afforded no end of fun for the inhabitants of the thriving burg, if not for the rest of the state. For instance, some morning the judge would be confronted with a motley of drunks. The judge, fresh from the bar, would call up one and say:

"Well, vere did you git dot beer vat you trink?"

If the prisoner would say at the "Bodega" or some other well-known saloon the judge would say in stentorian tones:

"Ten tollars und costs—next."

So it would go down the line until one would say that he got his beer at the judge's saloon, and then the judge's hard look would melt to one of the sweetest smiles and he would say: "Let dis man go; he is discharged."

The culprits soon found out that it was a good idea to get their beer at the Reuther saloon, and it became hard to find a drunk who did not tell the judge that he got his beer at the court's saloon, but the judge thought that his trade did not correspond with the tale told by the numerous drunks he had to deal with. At last, after much joshing, the judge disposed of his saloon and went into a more dignified business.

A LOST OPPORTUNITY.

It was evident he was sinking fast and the physician told his sorrowing relatives to prepare for the worst, says the Chicago Post.

Then suddenly he seemed to rouse himself.

"Doctor," he said, "I am going, am I not?"

The physician inclined his head.

"Well," continued the patient resignedly, "we all must go some time, and I suppose it's all right. But I can't help thinking of my wasted opportunities."

"There are few of us who could not improve on our lives if we had them to live over again," said the doctor.

"Of course, of course," returned the patient irritably, "I can recall dozens of things that I would do differently if I had them to do again, but they do not worry me particularly. I merely charge them up as mistakes that everyone is liable to make. However, it's different with an absolutely wasted opportunity—an opportunity that never would or could come again. One never can forget that. It must remain a source of regret as long as life lasts. In my case it is with me on my deathbed—the one great mistake of my life."

The physician sought to soothe him by saying that it probably was not a serious matter and that his imagination doubtless exaggerated it to a considerable extent, but h eshook his head.

"It isn't a matter that has just occurred to me," he said. "It is not the result of fever or delirium; it is something that I have known for years. The opportunity came to me more than twenty years ago and in not more than ten minutes after it was too late I realized I had wasted it. Since then my life has been one long regret and nothing but regret."

"What was the opportunity?" asked the physician at last, realizing that he could not turn the patient's attention from it.

"Why, on one business trip that I took I had a chance to charge up a suit of clothes to the house and didn't do it."

And so saying the traveling man turned his face sadly to the wall and shortly thereafter the end came.

You may never know it happened if you fail to read The Evening Herald.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

Shortly after President McKinley's inauguration it was semi-officially announced that it would be the policy of the administration to put the consular service on a thorough business basis. The president of the National Association of Manufacturers wrote a letter to President McKinley on behalf of the association, urging the importance of a better consular service and condemning the practice of dealing out the principal consulships as rewards for political service. This practice, it was declared, has been immeasurably detrimental to American commercial interests in foreign countries, and there can be no doubt that such is the case. It was suggested in this letter that the changes in the consular service shall be as few as possible; that removals shall be made only because of demonstrated incapacity; that vacancies shall be filled as far as possible by promotions or transfers; that appointments shall be made solely upon the basis of proper qualification for the position and without regard to political service, and that only American citizens shall be appointed to any consular office.

Commenting on this letter, the Omaha Bee said at the time: "All these are good suggestions. They have been long urged by those who appreciate the importance of giving the consular service a thoroughly business character, of filling it with men having a knowledge of practical affairs and of divorcing it altogether from politics. There is reason to believe that the administration is in full sympathy with this view, and that whatever changes shall be made in the service will have reference to its improvement from a business standpoint—to increasing its efficiency as a means of promoting the foreign commerce of the country. It will be found necessary, undoubtedly, to make removals. There are incompetent men in the service who ought to be replaced, and there are others who are disqualified by reason of their views in regard to the economic policy of the country. A Republican administration can not be expected to retain in consular positions men who are unfriendly to the principle of protection. But such consular officials will be replaced, it is safe to say, by men who can show a better claim to appointment than political services. There is practically unlimited opportunity for selection, and there can be no excuse for not appointing to the consulships to be filled men of the best qualifications for this service."

It was hoped, if not actually believed, that the administration would follow the policy indicated above, but the appointments so far made have not justified the hope. For the 329 consulships at the disposal of the administration there have been more than 3000 applicants, and if President McKinley at any time was disposed to select men for the consulates because of their peculiar fitness for the positions, he must have abandoned that idea, as those whose names are sent to the senate have been successful solely because of their political influence. So plain is this becoming that the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record, which is not unfriendly to the administration, declares that if the president has any policy in reference to consular appointments, nobody has been able to perceive it. The appointments he has made thus far have been without method, and most of them have been personal. There are at least a dozen places that have been positively promised. Some of the promises were made two months ago, but he does not seem disposed to send the nominations to the senate, and the reasons for withholding them nobody can understand. A senator remarked that the delay was "because the president hates to let go of anything."

The consulates at Rome, Marseilles, Berlin, Hamburg, Nuremberg, Dresden, Belfast, Birmingham and several other important places have been offered and accepted. The same is true of the missions to Peru, Chili, Venezuela, Greece, Guatemala, Switzerland, Netherlands, Sweden and other countries, and there is no apparent reason for delaying the appointments. It was suggested, however, by a close friend of the president that he was going to hold up nominations as long as possible for the sake of thrashing out applicants.

"If he should send the full list in at once," said this informant, "he would have the whole army down on him. There will be from twelve to twenty disappointed candidates for every one who is successful, and if they all broke out at once they would make a big demonstration. Therefore he thinks it is better to take a few at a time. He will send in three or four nominations this week, and those who expect to be nominated next week will assist in soothing the dissatisfied. Next week he will send in a few more, and those who are still hopeful will help him quiet the grumblers. An office-seeker always clings to the last straw."

But the idea of giving the consular service a thoroughly business character and divorcing it altogether from politics has been evidently lost sight of in the effort to appease the hungry horde of politicians.

WILL PROMOTE UNITY.

The permanent organization of the Silver Republican party at Chicago, with Mr. Towne as national chairman, appears to have disturbed some of the dyed-in-the-wool partisan organs, like the St. Paul Dispatch and the Duluth News Tribune, and they are trying to create the impression that this organization has been perfected with the idea of creating a schism in the ranks of the silver advocates.

The opening address of the chairman gave the lie to this presumption. The new party has been founded to provide a home for those Republicans who believe in true bimetallism as they view it, but who are not disposed to join the Democratic or Populist parties because they differ with them on other questions. Upon the money question they will act in unison with any party that declares itself in favor of national bimetallism. Consequently the new organization will be instrumental in promoting harmony instead of creating dissension among the silver men.

The Umbrella Insurance company of London was formed last month with a capital of $100,000, in shares of $100 each. The company will insure the owners of canes as well as of umbrellas, and various other articles that are easily mislaid or lost. It will no doubt take quite a load off the conscience of the umbrella stealer to know that his victim will be fully requited by this company; for, of course, no right-feeling thief will hereafter steal an umbrella which is not fully insured.

The Springfield Republican says: "Mr. Reed may well envy the emperor of Austria his power to dissolve the session of the lower house of the Austrian diet. The diet wouldn't behave, so the emperor sent the deputies home, and that is what Mr. Red would probably do with the house of representatives had he the power and consulted his own wishes. Can't the rules be fixed so that Mr. Reed can do this in future?"

The relations between Hawaii and Japan over the immigration question seem to be rapidly nearing the breaking point. Hawaii regards the Japanese immigrants as the advanced guard of a movement that threatens its sovereignty. Japan stands on what it deems its treaty rights, and will not admit that the Hawaiian government is permitted to read between the lines in interpreting them.

Prof. Lucy Salmon, Vassar college, is strongly in favor of the abolition the college commencement, which she characterizes as "a relic of mediaevalism." She claims that much harm is done by the overshadowing of the purposes of education by the love of public show created by college and and school commencements as commonly observed.

A married couple in San Diego, Cal., who found it impossible to live together as man and wife, are now very comfortably divorced, and the woman acts as the man's housekeeper at a salary of $20 a month and board. For thirty years they had quarreled in the matrimonial state, but now they would never think of such a thing.

Katsuo Hatoyama, a graduate of Yale, in the class of '78, has been elected speaker of the Japanese parliament, but he will not attempt to imitate Czar Reed. It might prove a fatal experiment in Japan.

Charles A. Pillsbury has declined a re-election to the presidency of the National Millers' association. It is generally understood that Mr. Pillsbury has an eye on the seat in the United States senate now held by Senator Davis, and he is naturally desirous of avoiding positions that would operate against him politically.

According to the New York city directory, the Smiths are still in the lead to the number of 3183. The Browns come next, scoring 1562. There are 1495 Millers, 1210 Murphys, 1103 Meyers, 1086 Johnsons, 1074 Kelleys and 1006 Cohens. There are no other names which reach the thousand point.

The senate finance committee has decided to drop the proposed tax on tea. Such a tax could not be defended by the Republicans as protection, because there is no tea industry in this country to protect, and as a revenue tariff it is indefensible. If more revenue is needed, raise it in some other way.

The German parliament has already begun the policy of retaliation against the United States, and on Saturday passed a bill which practically shuts out American oleomargarine from the German market. This is the result of raising the tariff on German products.

Charley Foster, of Ohio, thinks the people are unreasonable. They expected miracles, he says, as a result of Republican success last fall. But who is to blame because the people expected miracles? Did not the Republican leaders promise miracles?

It is said that ex-Governor Jacob D. Cox of Ohio will be appointed minister to Madrid. He is without diplomatic experience, but is a conservative, forceful man, and it is claimed that he would ably discharge the responsible duties of the Spanish mission.

The new sugar schedule is in the interest of the sugar trust. Why does not the senate prepare one in the interest of the people?

Thomas B. Reed must have been in a sarcastic mood when he wrote the magazine article entitled "How the House Does Business."

BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT.

Kansas City Star: The Pennsylvania Railroad company has begun the construction of a large number of new locomotives and the full force of men in the shops of the company at Altoona has been put on increased time. Thus the signs of returning prosperity and restored business activity are made manifest in an unmistakable way. The company is one splendidly managed a corporation as that proceeds cautiously, but acts wisely, and the building of a number of new locomotives for its use may be regarded as a sure sign that they will be needed before long.

Springfield Republican: There has been great improvement in sentiment the past week, if not in actual business conditions. Not since the week after the November election has it been possible to say as much with more emphasis. First among the factors inspiring trade with hopefulness is the beginning of the tariff discussion in the senate and the unexpectedly rapid progress made. Next were the test votes in the senate which led to the early passage of a bill in some form or other; for while the wisdom of any tariff changes may greatly to be doubted, the failure of legislation now in the face of the excessive import and other preparations for higher duties would almost cause a panic.

Chicago Post: The abnormal abundance of idle money in every financial center is beginning to have its effect. Manufacturers who met their first refusal from the banks in the trying days of 1893 and who in consequence have declined to risk a second refusal since, now perceive that the boot is on the other leg. Where it was hardly possible to obtain funds for love or money some time ago they are now able to obtain all the accommodation they want and practically on their own terms. The result has been to stimulate activity in manufacturing industries to an extent not seen for many months. Reports from traveling salesmen give such good assurances of a brisk fall and winter trade that manufacturers feel confident in taking a little risk, which of itself is a remarkable advance from the state of lethargy which has prevailed for so long.

New York Tribune: It is not only true, as Mr. Gage states, that the "revival of industry is near," but there is ample evidence that it has already begun. While prices are remarkably low, it should be remembered that this is the natural and inevitable consequence of an expansion in production anticipating and for the time exceeding the enlargement of consuming demand. On no other terms is recovery possible. There must first be larger employment, before the millions can purchase and consume more freely, and the temporary excess of production, storing up products for future needs, involves a temporary depression in prices and narrower profits. But the larger employment has come in great measure and not far behind will come the expansion of consuming demand, of which the increase of retail trade in most cities throughout the country already gives evidence.

A BACHELOR'S REFLECTIONS.

New York Press: After a woman gets to be 30 she always claims she had such pretty hair when she was married.

You can always tell how old a woman is by seeing how much of what her husband says she believes.

Just because a man knows too much to laugh at his own joke is no sign that he doesn't think he is funny.

Every girl has an idea that she looks a good deal like some picture of Cleopatra's charming Antony that she has once seen.

If a man happens to twist up his mustache, she always looks kind of queer and interested.

The average woman will forget her own name before she forgets the exact height the petunias had got at the same time last spring.

ONE ON PAGE.

Washington Post: A page with a note entered the document room of the house. He had an order signed by Page Morris for a book. The clerk looked at it with disgust.

"Page Morris," he exclaimed. "What business has a page sending a note for a book? Tell him to stop his impudence and ask a member to get the book for him."

The messenger took aghast. "He is a congressman," he exclaimed. "He isn't a page at all. His name is Page Morris, and he is the member from Duluth."

NELSON'S FABLE.

Washington Post: Senator Nelson does not think that sufficient progress is being made on the tariff bill. To him it is going very slow. He says it reminds him of an old Norwegian fable, which his mother told him.

A snail was sent to get some water to christen a baby. When he was returning with the water, he saw a number of people going into the church, among them a young lady in bridal array.

"What is going on there?" he asked.

"The child for whom you were sent to bring water to christen has grown to be a young lady and she is going to be married," was the reply.

"Then I must hurry," said the snail, and in attempting to hurry he spilled the water.

Query: Is the prosperity water to be spilled?

THE CONVICT'S OBJECT.

State Prison Mirror: We sincerely hope that no banker or alderman will be sent to the institution. Plain, unadorned thieves are welcome to the hospitality of our social circle, but we must draw the line somewhere, and have decided that the expurgative ban shall be placed on post-graduates in loose financiering and beer-hall politics.

JUST FOR FUN.

Indianapolis Journal: "I never met such a man for praising his neighbors as Irving is."

"He wants to sell his house and lot and move into town."

Boston Transcript: She—It's funny, but all the time I have known Mr. Tigg he never has paid me a compliment.

He—Tigg never pays anybody anything.

Chicago Tribune: "Back up your judgment. If you think that's the horse that will win out," jeeringly remarked the dirty, greasy spectator at the races, "Money talks, and I'm mighty nigh made of money today."

"You seem to be rather a filthy looker," assented the other man, looking him over.

Washington Star: "I'm beginning," said Senator Sorghum, indignantly, "to think that there's no such thing as senatorial courtesy."

"What has happened?"

"A colleague knew exactly how sugar was going and refused to tell me anything about it!"

Cleveland Leader: Mrs. Durham—Why do you shun Horsley? I've noticed several times now that you've gone out of your way to avoid meeting him.

Mr. Durham—I'm suspicious of him. He's been so polite and friendly of late that I suspect he's getting ready to borrow some money from me.

Detroit Free Press: "Do you employ the old school doctors, Miss Elderly?"

"I should say not. I'm too progressive for that. I always call in one of the most recent graduates."

Detroit Journal: "Your doom is sealed," they sighed. "What shall we do?"

The beautiful culprit smiled bravely.

"Never mind," she answered. "I fancy it can be steamed open."

Somerville Journal: "Ow," said the cockney. "You don't really like 'ugging, then?"

"Well," she confessed, "I cawn't really say that I dislike it, don't you know, but I 'ave halways hunderstood that it was a 'armful practice."

Yonkers Statesman: Yeast—I see that soldiers in the Greek army are allowed to smoke cigars as part of their daily rations.

Crimsonbeak—Yes; but they did not prove effective, as the Greeks never go near enough to give them to the enemy.

New York Journal: Judge (to witness)—You say you have known the witness all your life?

Witness—Yes, your honor.

Judge—Now, in your opinion, do you think he could be guilty of stealing this money?

Witness—How much was it?

DIPLOMACY.

It isn't always well to look
A bulldog in the eyes,
If there is any way in which
One can do otherwise
Nor is it always best to tell
A liar that he lies.
Unless you're big and strong and he's
Not more than half your size.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

AS VIEWED BY PEASE.

Anoka Union (Ind.): If the gold standard does not bring relief, silver will be jingling a merry tune in 1900.

Perhaps the next election will tell whether or not some loud claimants contributed largely to Republican success in Minnesota.

An expression heard everywhere and often: "I voted the Republican ticket in 1896, and I'm sorry I did it." How encouraging for the Republican party.

Senator Nelson's big backbone is showing itself in Washington, and it liable to prove disastrous to the Republican party, if he follows out his mind. But will he?

The Republican party promised prosperity. If it fails to keep faith with the people, the people will bury it so deep that its resurrection ever again will be a miracle. The present congress had better get a move on itself, right quick.

Take the blue manual and read of those who have been elected and appointed to official positions by the Republican party for the last ten years and you will not wonder why the people are uneasy and are hankering for a change.

AN OLD TIME HANDKERCHIEF.

Yellow, for the passing years
Have with sere touch dimmed it,
And hands are vanished long
That in the old times trimmed it.
While a sweet herb's fragrance faint
Each filmy fold discloses—
The muslin kerchief, broidered white
With roses.

Peggy, she my great, great aunt,
On gala days to don it,
With her skillful fingers fleet
Put broideries upon it.
And, as other maids, I wis,
Oft sat with dreamy glances,
The while she weaved, 'tween silken stitch
Romances.

When so fine and daintily,
Flower-broidered, Peggy made it,
With splendid sprigs of lavender
Away with care she laid it;
Yet, as springs to summer turned,
And falls to winter speeded,
Soft, fold on fold, the kerchief lay
Unheeded.

But, as a springtime blossom dies,
So Peggy, ere she wore it;
And with the scent of lavender
That subtly hovers o'er it,
Breathing of the years ago,
And undisturbed reposes
The muslin kerchief, broidered white
With roses.

A BOY'S FISH STORY.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: "I believe," said the major, "that piscatorial instinct is always linked with considerable talent as a falsifier. To put it plain, fishermen are born from the cradle to the grave. Honest men lie about fishing. It's nature. Now, I have a little son who is an ardent fisherman. The other day he went out and caught some fish so little that I had to put on my spectacles to see them. That night he put the fish in the box and gave directions that they be cooked for breakfast. Then he went around telling everybody of his prowess, and before he had finished the fish had attained enormous proportions. Next morning he seated himself at the breakfast table, and the fish were put before him. There was a general smile around the table. The boy looked at the fish and then at his mother. Then he said: "Mamma, these were big fish when I caught 'em, but the cook has broiled 'em down to minnows!"

CHIPPEWA TRIBE.

Will Have a Big Pow Wow With the Sioux.

That the Indian is rapidly passing away grows more and more apparent every year to the handful of surviving Chippewa warriors of the Lake Superior region, says the New York World. These veterans of the pioneer conflicts between the whites and the Indian nations realize that the Chippewa race will be entirely extinct within the course of ten of fifteen years. They propose, therefore, to have next June a last reunion and peace dance before it is too late for the old bucks of the tribe to participate in such an event.

The program will include a formal meeting between the Chippewa warriors and representatives of the Sioux tribe of North Dakota. Manitou Falls, on the St. Croix river, not many miles from Superior, Wis., has been selected for the great pow-wow, and the men and women of the Chippewa and Sioux nations will meet for the first time in friendship, their tomahawks buried deep in the soil of civilization and the traditional pipe glowing with the fire of peace.

One of the veteran Indians is Wabe-na-sha-way, the great Chippewa medicine man, whom the Indians believe to be possessed of the evil spirit. He is 88 years old and claims the power to cure the sick by burning wood soaked in oil. He also claims to have killed by will power more than one hundred people that failed to repose confidence in him and to have cured thousands of people that employed him in times of sickness.

Another famous old warrior is Wabas-a-mon, hero of many hard-fought battles between the Sioux and Chippewas. He is 107 years old, according to the Indian system of computing age, and is the man who the Indians believe discovered the abode of the Great Spirit on Spirit island.

Black Diamond, 100 years of age, who has lived near the Brule as a hermit for twenty years; Nemadji (left hand), who lost an arm in the last battle fought between the Sioux and Chippewas at St. Paul over thirty years ago, and several other Chippewas, all noted for bravery, will take part in the great meeting.

The Sioux notables will probably include Princess, daughter of Sitting Bull; Big Tooth, son of One Eye, the famous warrior of the Custer campaign; Jumping Moose, who claims to be the oldest man in the world—118 years—now cared for by the government at Bismarck; Devil's Eye, who has a record of killing 100 hundred white men, and Rainbow, the great weather prophet, whose predictions almost invariably prove more reliable than those of the weather bureau.

One of the greatest features of the camp-fire will be the wedding of a Sioux buck and a Chippewa maiden. Big Nose, of Bismarck, N. D., is to be the groom, and the bride will be Charlotte Dupeniere, of Muskeg, Wis., daughter of Cut Ear, a Chippewa brave. This marriage, it is expected, will have the effect of bringing the two tribes into closer relationship and removing all enmity.

DUELS IN GERMANY.

More duels are fought in Germany than in any other country. Most of them, however, are student duels, which culminate in nothing more serious than slashed cheeks or torn scalps. Of all German university towns little Jena and Goettingen are most devoted to the code, says the New York Sun. In Goettingen the number of duels averages one a day, year in and year out. On one day several years ago twelve duels were fought in Goettingen in twenty-four hours. In Jena the record for one day in recent times is twenty-one. Fully 4000 student duels are fought every year in the German empire. In addition to these there are the more serious duels between officers and civilians. Among Germans of mature years the annual number of duels is about 100.

Next to Germany, France is most given to the duelling habit. She has every year uncounted meetings, "merely to satisfy honor;" that is, merely to give two men the opportunity to wipe out insults by crossing swords or firing pistols in such a way as to preclude the slightest chance of injury. In the duel statistics these meetings are not reckoned, as they are far less perilous than even the German student duels. Of the serious duels France can boast fully 1000 from New Year's to New Year's. The majority of these are among army officers. More than half of these result in wounds; nearly 20 per cent in serious wounds.

Italy has had 2759 duels in the last ten years, and has lost fifty citizens by death on the field of honor. Some 2400 of these meetings were consummated with sabres, 179 with pistols, 90 with rapiers and 1 with revolvers. In 974 cases the insult was given in newspaper articles or in public letters regarding literary quarrels. More than 700 principals were insulted by word of mouth. Political discussions led to 559; religious discussions to 29. Women were the cause of 189. Quarrels at the gambling table were responsible for 189.

A summary shows that, as regards numbers, the sequence of duelling countries is: Germany, France, Italy, Austria, Russia. A sregards deadliness of duels Italy comes first. Then come Germany, France, Russia and Austria in the order named. For the most serious duels the pistol is the favorite weapon in all five countries.

TOM DIED DECENTLY.

For weeks and weeks Tom Sheppard had been a sick man at our mining camp at Black Bear valley, says a writer in the Courier-Journal. Everybody felt sorry for him, and yet a sick man in a mining camp was a great inconvenience and a burden. One day Judge Watkins went up to see him, and after finding him no better and no worse than he had been for many weeks he said:

"Tom, I don't want to seem cold-hearted about this thing, but the boys are beginning to wonder why you don't die or get well."

"Yes, reckon they are," replied Tom, "and you can tell 'em I'm goin' to die."

"Do you feel it's for the best, Tom?"

"I do. I ain't got much to live fur, and might as well peg out now as any other time. I've been waitin' fur a week or two."

"Waitin'? Fur what?"

"Fur to die decently. I'm no duke or lord, but I want things fixed up in good shape. I want to be washed up, shaved, hev my hair cut and git into some decent duds, and I won't die till I do."

The judge told the boys what was required, and that afternoon two or three of 'em knocked off work and fixed Tom up. A shirt was borrowed of one, a coat of another, a vest of another, and by and by the sick man was rigged out in the best the camp afforded. When all this had been done he said:

"Now, then, I feel more like dyin', but there's one thing more I want. I want Joe Billings to come up with his fiddle and play me a few tunes."

Joe was sent for, and after considerable kicking he got his fiddle and went up to Tom's shanty. Tom was propped up in bed and waiting, and Joe sat down and gave him "The Old Oaken Bucket," "Old Folks at Home," "Nellie Gray," and half a dozen other well-known airs. He had been playing for an hour, his eyes on the hills opposite, when Judge Watkins looked in and said:

"Cut it off, Joe; Tom's dead."

And so he was, and when the boys came to observe the pleased and contented look on his face they were agreed that he had died decently and been given a fair start on his way.

THEIR SIGNIFICANCE LOST.

The superstitions which have clustered about the closing scene of human life are almost innumerable; some, perhaps the greater portion, now seem to be meaningless, but a few had in early days a significance which they have since lost, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat. The stopping of the clock at the moment a death occurs in the house is still practiced in many families in this country and Europe, and originated in the fact that according to the laws of several European states it was necessary to have evidence of the exact moment of births and deaths occurring in the royal family. When a king died an attendant was always present whose duty it was to stop the clock in the royal apartment at the moment when death occurred, and the timepiece was thus a mute record of the event. From royal families the descent of this practice to aristocratic and finally, to families of low degree was easy, and many persons adopted it as a mere superstition without knowing anything of its former significance.

Turning the looking-glass to the wall is a superstition which is said to have originated in the country districts of Germany during the days when mirrors were novelties. Mirrors of glass with quicksilver backs are said to have been made in Venice in 1300 A. D., and were first made in England in 1673, but did not come into common use among the middle classes until the beginning of the last century. At first they were regarded with superstitious awe, the idea being that the reflection of the face in the mirror was a sort of specter or second soul of the individual. When a death occurred the looking-glass which the person was accustomed to use was turned to the wall, lest his ghost should be disturbed by others using the mirror before his spirit had finally departed from the neighborhood, there being an idea that the spirit of the departed lingered about the vicinity for several hours, or, perhaps days, after it had separated from the body.

SUCCESS

F. W. Hossfield, a Clermont, Ia, Manufacturer, Experiments With Duluth Clay.

Tests Were So Successful That He Purchased a Quarter Section.

Will Locate a Brick and Tile Manufactory---May Come This Summer.

Nearly a year ago George H. Crosby interested F. W. Hossfield, of Clermont, Iowa, a manufacturer of building and paving brick, tile and similar matrials in the advantageous location of Duluth for such an industry and offered him a piece of land which Mr. Crosby thought contained the right kind of clay for manufacturing such materials. Mr. Hossfield took the matter up and Mr. Crosby made a deal with him by which he was to purchase the southwest quarter of section 29-50-13 if the clay proved to be satisfactory. Mr. Hossfield then began a series of experiments. From time to time he sent to Mr. Crosby for barrels of clay from the land and there were sent him about fifty in all. The experiments undoubtedly have cost Mr. Hossfield several hundreds of dollars. They have been very successful and have finally resulted in the closing of the deal for the purchase of the land. The property is now in Mr. Hossfield's name.

A short time ago Mr. Hossfield wrote Mr. Crosby asking what the chances are for getting a road to the property. A few days ago the following letter was received by Mr. Crosby:

"Has anything been done as to the road?" Our clay proves to be a complete success and we might put in a plant yet this summer if we had a good and convenient road. The road should follow the shortest line to the nearest railroad station that permits a uniform 'all down hill grade.'"

The experiments which Mr. Hossfield conducted with the clay tested its adaptability for the manufacture of building brick, tile and paving brick. He found that it is excellent for all these and especially for paving brick. Mr. Hossfield does not ask for any bonus or inducement to come here. He operates a successful manufactory at Clermont, Iowa, and has ample means to locate one here. The piece of road which he wants built would be about three-quarters of a mile long. The property is situated a short distance above Lester Park and a road already extends within that distance of it. If the road were built the cost could undoubtedly be assessed against the property and in that event a share of it would fall upon Mr. Hossfield's land. It is understood that he is willing to stand his share of it.

Mr. Crosby will take the matter up and see if he can secure the building of the road. He believes that Mr. Hossfield will establish an industry here that will give employment to quite a number of men.

A DELEGATE ELECTED.

The Christian Endeavor Union Selects Rev. W. W. Newell.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of Duluth last evening elected Rev. W. W. Newell of Morley Congregational church delegate to the Christian Endeavor convention, to be held in San Francisco. Miss Grace Maxwell was elected alternate. Aside from the appointed representative, the Duluth Endeavorers will be represented by nearly a score at least of unofficial delegates.

The meeting was presided over by W. J. McCabe. An address of welcome was delivered by A. C. Bonsfield, to which the chairman responded.

Judge Edson presented a paper on "Christian Citizenship." Christian citizenship, it was stated, is the relation one bears toward the state, intensified and colored by the fact that the citizen is a follower of Christ. Christ taught obedience to civil law and the fulfillment of duty to the earthly government, while being true to the higher government, expressing His precept in the words, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." The Christian citzen shall remember that in a conscientious performance of civic duty he is serving Christ. They should stand for honest government. They should be practical; not mere theorists. We shall have better laws and better administration when attendance at the primary shall be considered as much of a duty as attendance at the prayer meeting.

Rev. W. W Newell and C. E. Holt took part in the discussion of the paper.

F. Cleland delivered an able address on "What He Would Have Me Do." The program was interspersed with charming musical selections. A cornet solo by H. D. Pearson, accompanied by Mrs. Pearson, was a feature of the music and was enthusiastically encored.

WHAT IS YOUR TRADE?

Each Trade or Occupation Has Its Special Disease.

It is well known among medical men that certain diseases are more readily developed in certain occupations than in others. That each occupation has its attendant physical weakness. Engineers, railroad men and similar occupations suffer mostly from kidney troubles and men who are often exposed to the weather suffer from rheumatism, while clerks and professional men, in fact the army of people whose business keeps them indoors, are oftentimes great sufferers from piles and constipation. In this connection the following letter is of interest to people whose occupation will not allow sufficient outdoor exercise.

A. E. Calhoun notary public and jeweler and watchmaker of Circleville, W. Va., writes as follows:

I had been a severe sufferer from piles for years and had tried many remedies with but little benefit, when about three years ago I saw the Pyramid Pile Cure advertised and sent for it.

I was badly afflicted when I got them, but after only two applications the piles disappeared and from that day to this I have never felt a symptom of the disease.

I feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to sufferers from piles.

The Pyramid Pile Cure is free from cocaine, opium or any mineral poison, absolutely safe, pleasant and painless; sold by druggists at 50 cents per package. If there is any constipation the Pyramid Pills should be used with the pile cure. The pills are 25 cents per package.

Any druggist will tell you that the Pyramid is the best known and most successful and popular pile cure ever placed on the market and its reputation as a safe and radical cure has only resulted from the personal recommendation of people who have been cured of this distressing ailment.

Send to Pyramid company, Albion, Mich., for valuable little book on cause and cure of piles.

GUN CLUB MEETING.

Tournament and Excursion to Two Harbors Discussed.

The Central Gun club held a business meeting last night at J. W. Nelson's store and plans for the summer were partially outlined. The club will hold its regular annual tournament some time about the last of July, and it is expected that it will be the best yet given, as the club is much stronger than it has ever been before. The tournament will last two days, and it will follow the general plan of those given in past years. Many outside marksmen are expected.

The club will also give an excursion to Two Harbors in about two weeks, and Paul Sharvy and E. C. Maxfield were selected to have charge of the arrangements. The Nautilus will probably be chartered and there will be a shoot with the Two Harbors club. A committee was appointed to classify the members for the medal shoot. The medal shoots will be held on Thursday afternoons and the weekly club shoots on Saturday afternoons. A shoot was to be held this afternoon.

THE ARMORY CONCERT.

A Delightful Program Rendered Last Evening.

The concert given at the Armory last night under the auspices of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoelscher was one of the most pleasing musical events of the season. The program was artistically rendered from beginning to end, and previous to the rendition it had been arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Hoelscher in a manner calculated to bring out the most pleasing effects. A pleasant feature was the variety of the means by which the delightful music was produced. This was more extensive than is commonly found within the limits of an ordinary evening's concert program.

Flaaten's orchestra opened the program with its accustomed dash and brilliancy in a selection by Tobani, "Echoes of the Metropolitan Opera House." The Aeolian quartet gave "Kerry Dance" with creditable finish, after which Miss M. Finnegan read a scene from "Dombey and Son," introducing Edith Dombey. Miss Finnegan's reading was excellent. Her voice is clear and effective, her manner dramatic, sympathetic and flexible, and she gave full effect to the emotional portions of her numbers. She also gave J. Whitcomb Rilye's "Old Man and Jim." As an encore she gave Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "Butterfly Fad."

Among the most effective numbers on the program were those by A. Hoelscher and his marvelous flute. His first number was a spirited concerta, "Garibaldi," and his second was a pathetic selection by Ernst. Mr. Hoelscher has a complete mastery of the peculiar properties of the flute. His expression is pleasing and facile, and all the requirements of the variety of themes produced were artistically developed. The Temple Ladies' quartet sang a charming number in their usual effective manner, and Mrs. James McAuliffe and Mrs. C. H. Thornton sang a pleasing duet. Miss Susan McKay sang Gounod's "Heaven Hath Shed a Tear" with effect, responding to an encore with "For All Eternity." The number included a flute obligato by A. Hoelscher.

Arthur Lahey sang a selection from the opera "Enchantress," "Let All Obey," which gave play to the resonant qualities of his voice and which was admirably rendered. He responded to an encore. Not a little of the success of the entertainment may be ascribed to Mrs. A. Hoelscher's accompaniments, which were rendered with grace and sympathy. There was a good attendance and the audience was not backward in its testimony of appreciation.

AFFIRMED

Order of Trial Court Stands In the Blood Will Case.

The Supreme Court Holds the Conditions Are Against Public Policy.

Are In Restraint of Alienation and Therefore Are Declared Void.

There are limitations to the power of a testator to name conditions in the final settlement of his temporal affairs. In the case of Margaret E. Morse, respondent, vs. T. L. Blood, appellant, the supreme court has rendered a decision declaring against the conditions imposed by the testator in his will, on the grounds that it is against public policy and void since it is in restraint of alienation, thus affirming the order of the trial court.

In this case the testator, the late Henry Blood, Jr., devised and bequeathed his personal property to his wife on condition that in no case should she give or bequeath one cent of the estate to any member of his family or any relation of her own. The widow, now Mrs. Margaret E. Morse, brought suit against T. L. Blood et al. to determine the adverse claims of the heirs. Commenting on the case in the opinion the court says:

"It is evident that the title devised to plaintiff is one in fee simple. There is a conflict of authority as to when a condition against alienation to particular persons or classes of persons, attached to such a title, is void. Some of the cases hold that the condition is good if it merely prohibits alienation to certain persons or classes of persons, and bad if it allows alienation only to certain persons or classes of persons. Other cases hold that the condition is good unless it takes away substantially the whole power of the alienation. We doubt the correctness of the latter rule.

"Conceding that as a general proposition a condition against alienation to particular classes of persons is good, still such a condition may be so vexatious as practically to prohibit all alienation for at least a limited time. Thus in the present case there are many parcels of land. If the condition is good, any purchaser from plaintiff of any parcel takes it at the peril of subsequent forfeiture by any act done by plaintiff, after the purchase, amounting to a breach of the condition.

"Thus plaintiff might give one of her relatives or one of the testator's family a meal of victuals out of the property left her by her deceased husband, and it would forfeit the whole estate so devised to her, as well that part of it which she had conveyed away to strangers as that part which she still held. If this condition is good, it is a most effectual method for restraining all alienation of the property during the life of the plaintiff and until such time after her death as it can be definitely ascertained that she committed no breach of the conditions in her lifetime. No one would during this period of time pay a fair price for the property and take the risk of such a forfeiture of his title.

"There is much authority for holding that a condition wholly restraining the alienation of a fee simple title for a length of time is void. The experience of ages has shown that to permit fee simple titles to be tied up by conditions which subject them to forfeiture, has a strong tendency to prevent the improvement of the property, or any proper use being made of it, and to prevent the development of the country. Conditions restraining alienation are for this and other reasons odious to the law and against public policy. The same public policy which discountenances such conditions gave us the rule against perpetuities."

REPLY BY A CAMPER.

The Pleasure of Camping on Park Point.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In reply to an article in last Saturday night's Herald, I wish to say that some of those "enthuslastic campers" are sighing for that writer's scalp, but after agitating ourselves two days and sleepless nights over the matter, we have about come to the conclusion that he "isn't so many after all." However, being of a philanthropic nature, and willing at all times to alleviate the sufferings of poor humanity, both physically and mentally, the writer of the following article deems it a duty he owes to his friends who are so unfortunate as to be obliged to travel the windy streets of the bleak hillside of Upper Duluth, to believe in some measure the mental strain, which they seem to be under, in regard to a few of us, who are so very fortunate as to be located at our summer quarters on Park Point, where, securely sheltered by towering pines and rustling birches, we know nothing of the severe storms that sweep the wayfaring man off his feet, as he trudges too and fro, through the clay-trodden streets of that "city set upon the hill," either hunting a job, or dodging his creditors. Unless perchance we wander down to the lake front and there view with alarm, the gathering storm, as it battles its forces against the rocks and homes of our friends in the city. The allusion the aforesaid writer makes to hailing the water out of our beds before retiring is simply atrocious, when we have had so little rain out here during the past four weeks, that we need to water our flower beds daily—to keep the plants from withering. It is a common occurrence for our ladies to go up-town dressed in summer attire, only to come back frollen stiff—to thaw out around a good old-fashioned camp-fire.

Then there seems to be a little incongruity about that loaf of bread which the writer avers he camper hung upon a nail outside. I rather thought that camper was a logger in some shack, because campers' tents don't hold nails. And then that little line in regard to there being no mosquitoes. Whey every camper on be Point knows the mosquitoes are here, but we've got 'em trained. Just send down the writer of that article and we'll let 'em loose. One can hardly realize the joy that comes to the camper's heart, as he leaves the noise and worry and storms of the rock-bound city, and steps into the ever-waiting ferry, which rocks so delightfully in harmony with the incoming waves, that one could almost imagine they were once more being rocked to sleep, so soothing is the sensation. But his reverie is soon disturbed by the hurrying passengers, as they leave the boat, anxiously hastening to catch the limited car (as to capacity), where once seated, he proceeds to enjoy the invigorating air, devoid of malaria or bacteria, with which an all-wise Providence has so liberally provided us.

And now we start on our homeward journey. After making the turn at the car barn, we no longer heed the wind or splashing waves, but under cover of spreading pines, we speed onward. Come with me, as we will enter a typical camp. Of course we will be invited into the living tent, where we find a warm, cozy fire, the Miss of the family at the organ, enjoying herself in true camp style, and the little sister, with cat and dog, playing upon the brightly carpeted floor. We are scarcely seated, ere the lady of the camp appears, and literally taking possession of us ushers us into the dining tent, where she reigns supreme, and we are served to as royal a dinner as it has ever been our lot to enjoy. After the inner man had been so bountifully supplied we were invited by the young people of several adjoining camps, who had by some mysterious understanding gathered from near and far, to go over with them to a neighbor's tent, and join a dance. Well, of course you go, wondering all the way, where the music is coming from, but those enthusiastic campers, who never do things by halves, have not forgotten this important feature. Upon arriving at our destination, we find a large tent, vacated for the purpose, illuminated by Japanese lanterns, and a violinist who proceeds without delay to draw forth such strains, that we quite forget that outside the storm rages, and the rain is coming down in torrents, so filled are we with the all-pervading spirit of fun and frolic. Well, the evening ended, as all evenings do, and upon being urged by the hostess to accept her hospitality for the night, you accept, a little doubtful as to the kind of lodging place you may find. But upon entering a smaller tent you find it brightly lighted, heated by a small oil stove, and last, but not least, as comfortable a bed as your very own.

The morning dawns bright and clear and you are awakened from your peaceful slumber by the singing of countless summer birds, which is far sweeter music than that which wakens our anxious friends in the city. After the morning repast has been devoured, for that was no joke about the coming appetite, we spend a few moments with the morning paper, which the "newsie" has left at our door, and then we go forth to enjoy the sweets of a morning walk. Then ensues a scene which beggars description. Out of every camp rush the inhabitants thereof, with bags and baskets, headed for the lake front, where they proceed without delay, to confiscate what desirable fuel the storm has cast upon the shore, for you don't catch the wary camper sawing wood in the rain. And as they gather both wood and coal, for the recent storm not only provided wood, but a large quantity of coal, each one shouts in glee, "No more money out of me for coal." And now we bid you a tender farewell, as we put you aboard the car for the city, meanwhile hoping you have seen enough of camp life in one very disagreeable night, so that you may truthfully say to our up-town friends: They're all right down on the Point. Don't worry yourselves, I pray. For if you do, they'll surely appoint A relief committee, some day To hunt you up, and see if you Are half as happy as they.

The pupils feel that they are doing a highly commendable work by endeavoring to aid in furthering such a noble and charitable undertaking as that of helping to provide a more commodious and a more centrally located home for the sick. The good people of Duluth have done much and will do more in the interest of such a cause. Past generosity and goodwill can never be forgotten by the sisters, but the pupils of the institute of the Sacred Heart wish to be counted on as willing allies in the charitable work. Hence this entertainment.

The program which has been prepared is an excellent one. It will consist of a variety of numbers. There will be instrumental and vocal numbers, pantomimes, tableaux, recitations, etc. Miss Jennie Pember will read an essay on "Zenith City; Past, Present and Future," and Miss Mary C. Miller will read one on "Education of Woman." The diplomas and graduating medals will be presented at the close, and Rt. Rev. James McGolrick will speak.

Those who will receive diplomas and certificates are as follows: Graduates in the academic department: Miss Mary Colette Miller; Miss Jeane Sophia Pember. Certificates of promotion will be awarded as follows: From first to second academic year, Misses Catherine Pierce, Catherine Fiebiger and Marie Sullivan; from eighth grade to first academic year, Misses Mary Lyons, Mary Gowan, Genevieve Burke and Teresa Fogarty; from seventh to eighth grade, Miss Susan Pfau; from sixth to seventh grade, Misses Catherine Smyth, Marie Munko, Katchen Geist, Mary Brown, Leona Munroe, Maud McGuan, Jennie Gallager, Edna McGarry, Margaret Kalkman, Bertha Grube, Maud Tremblay; from fifth to sixth grade, Misses Brunhilde Oswald, Lucy Bradley and Pelagia Beyenka; from fourth to fifth grade, Misses Kathleen Meagher, Rose Fiebiger and Clara Maguire; from third to fourth grade, Misses Gertrude Brown, Ellen Barnard, Lena Fischer, Stella Maher and Mary Gelley; from second to third grade, Miss Laura Nelson; from first to second grade, Miss Marie Williams. Testimonials for deportment, politeness and amiability will be awarded to Miss Minnie Rhodes of the academic department; Misses Mary Sweeney and Elsa Hartman of the senior department; Misses Jennie Belleperch and Bessie Kenealy of the junior department. Gold medals for progress in penmanship will be awarded to Miss Katchen Geist in the seventh grade, and Miss Susan Pfau in the eighth grade.

The case against William Baker and James Fitzgerald, the Northern Pacific switchmen who were arrested for blocking Arthur avenue during the progress of the dispute over the crossing Monday night, was today continued to Monday morning, June 21, by Judge Boyle by consent. The bail deposited by the men was refunded, and they were released on their own recognizance, Attorney Washburn, for the Northern Pacific, assuring the court that they would be present.

Known to Many Duluthians.

Eugene C. Sullivan, business manager of the "Four Hundred," a Chicago paper devoted to society and travel, is a member of Commodore M. B. Mills' yachting party now in Duluth. Mr. Sullivan has many friends in Duluth among the Bay City colony who remember him as the advertising man on the Bay City Morning News, where he began his newspaper career about twenty years ago. Until two years ago he conducted a successful advertising business in Detroit, and although he is not a millionaire himself he associates with that much envied class of men and has a heap more fun. Mr. Sullivan has been one of Commodore Mills' party on its annual excursion to Lake Superior for several years.

STANDS AT THE HEAD.

Aug. J. Bogel, the leading druggist of Shreveport, La., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the only thing that cures my cough, and it is the best seller I have." J. F. Campbell, merchant of Safford, Ariz., writes: "Dr. King's New Discovery is all that is claimed for it; it never fails, and is a sure cure for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I cannot say enough for its merits." Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is not an experiment. It has been tried for a quarter of a century, and today stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

HIS ANNUAL VISIT.

Ex-Gov. Ramsey Has Confidence in the Future.

Ex-Governor Alexander Ramsey arrived in Duluth yesterday from St. Paul on his regular annual June pilgrimage to the head of the lakes, a journey he has been accustomed to make ever since the organization of the Mesaba Iron company, whose existence antedates the era of railroads and steam shovels on that range. The veteran war governor of Minnesota was busy yesterday afternoon and evening visiting old friends and relating and listening to reminiscences of territorial and early statehood days of the North Star state. Governor Ramsey is now 82 years old, but is still strong and vigorous and in the full enjoyment of his mental faculties. As he was war governor of Minnesota, he has a special invitation to go to Gettysburg with the survivors of the Old First Minnesota regiment this month, but for prudential reasons he will not accept it. So long a journey in the South during the heated term he fears would prove too trying.

Governor Ramsey has always been a firm believer in the future greatness of Duluth, and he notes with much satisfaction the many changes being made yearly in the process of development. He is optimistic in his prophecy of the business outlook for the coming year, and anticipates a marked revival in trade during the next few months, especially in the iron industries.

Governor Ramsey returned to St. Paul today.

THE LIGHTS WENT OUT.

Caused the Cake Walk to End in Darkness.

Whether or not it was pique at finding its rays rivalled by the scintillations of glittering "Alaskas" that caused the electric light to go out at the cakewalk at the Pavilion last night is not known. Out it went, however, and, despite frantic messages to the works, "it never came back." Hence, there was too much darkness even for a cakewalk, and the affair was adjourned. According to the announcement of a voice that resounded through the gloom, as the audience fell over chairs and ran against posts, as it literally "felt its way" to the door, the contest will be "finished in West Superior in one week."

The voice was that of Hon. William Nichols, master of ceremonies. Whether he meant that it would take a week to go through a cakewalk in West Superior or that, within that time, would be the date fixed for the occasion, is not perfectly plain. He invited all those present last evening to attend the conclusion in Superior, assuring them that it would not cost them a cent.

It was 10 o'clock before the contestants went onto the floor, and at that time there were but about 100 people in the audience. There were five couples in the match. They went through one heat, at the end of which the judges announced that they were unable to make a selection. The walkers were just preparing for the second go when the light blinked, sizzed up for a moment and then winked the other eye and was gone.

While waiting for the contest to begin there were songs and dancing by the West Superior trio. The selections were good, and the audience probably got the worth of its money as it was.

A Taxpayer's Protest.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In your issue of June 4 Mr. Smith, of the board of public works hastens to make the statement that in the interests of economy the salary of the inspector of the Sixth district has been fixed at $40 instead of $65. Can either you or the board of public works tell me what interest they consulted when they divided this district and appointed two new inspectors at an expense of at least $80 per month, while the same territory has been attended to heretofore by one inspector at a salary of $40 per month, and no complaint has ever been made of his inefficiency? As a member of the board of public works very pertinently remarks, almost the whole of the Sixth district consists of rabbit trails. There is not over two miles of streets in the whole district which require attention at all, and they were put in first-class condition for the summer and men and teams laid off last month. The canal has received all the attention that it will need for this season. Yet this morning (the first clear day since the new inspector took hold) we see a gang of men with their respective inspectors busily engaged in drawing their daily stipends from the depleted treasury of our almost bankrupt city.

To the mind of the average person it looks as if our worthy board of public works were trying to pay political debts at the expense of the taxpayers, and as one of them I would most respectively protest and ask that the worthy aldermen of this ward do their duty and refuse to sanction this extravagance when the matter comes before them.

Yours in the interest of true economy.

DEAL GENTLY WITH THE STOMACH.

If it proves refractory, mild discipline is the thing to set it right. Not all the nauseous draughts and boluses ever invented can do half as much to remedy its disorders as a few wineglassfuls—say, three a day—of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which will afford it speedy relief and eventually banish every dyspeptic and bilious symptom. Sick headache, nervousness, sallowness of the complexion, fur upon the tongue, vertigo and those many indescribable and disagreeable sensations caused by indigestion, are too often perpetuated by injudicious dosing. An immediate abandonment of such random and ill advised experiments should be the first step in the direction of cure; the next step the us of this standard tonic alterative, which has received the highest medical sanction and won unprecedented popularity.

ASTHMA AGONY.

Munyon Has Mastered This Living Death.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

No one who has not experienced or witnessed the agonies of asthma can realize the horrors of that disease. It is little exaggeration to say that sufferers from asthma die many times. Acute paroxysms frequently result in unconsciousness and sometimes in death. Like many other diseases which have baffled medical skill for centuries, however, asthma has met its master. Munyon's Asthma Herbs will stop the most violent paroxysm of asthma in three minutes. They are compressed into triangular pastilles, the most convenient form for burning ever discovered. Used with the Asthma-Cure, they will positively and permanently cure the worse forms of asthma. Professor Munyon guarantees it. A box of Munyon's Asthma Herbs with Munyon's Asthma-Cure may be obtained from any druggist for one dollar.

Mr. Daniel W. Fink, 129 Church Street, McSherrystown, Pa., says: "A member of my family suffered from asthma for a long time. Her distress during the paroxysms of short breathing was very great. She tried a great many kinds of treatment without obtaining more than temporary relief. Finally, I placed her under treatment with the Munyon Remedies, using the Asthma Cure and Asthma Herbs, and I am pleased to testify that this treatment has completely cured her."

Munyon has a separate specific for each disease. For sale by druggists. Mostly 25 cents. If in doubt, write to Professor Munyon, at Philadelphia, and get medical advice free.

GARDEN STUFF RUINED.

Frost Has Caused Much Damage to Farmers.

The spell of cold, wet weather Duluth has been experiencing during the past few weeks has been disagreeable enough to residents of the city, and it has been responsible for a good deal of profanity of various degrees of blueness. But the farmers who come in from the agricultural settlements back of the city bring a tale of woe that discounts those of people who object merely on the ground of discomfort. The farmers say that they have had several heavy frosts, on one occasion enough to freeze nearly an inch of ice. In consequence much of the tender garden stuff just pushing its sprouts above the earth has been ruined. The young potato sprouts, especially, have been nearly all frozen, and their only hope is that warm weather may cause them to sprout again. Strawberry plants are said to have been pretty generally killed.

City Attorney Richards Gives Another Opinion in City Engineer Matter.

Approval of the Engineer's Bond By the Council Is Necessary.

This Means That D. A. Reed Has No Right to the Office.

All acts performed by D. A. Reed as city engineer are illegal and void. So says City Attorney Richards in an opinion rendered by him at the request of City Engineer Patton.

The ground on which the city attorney so holds is that Mr. Reed's bond has not been approved by the common council, and that hence Mr. Reed cannot be considered to have qualified. The holding of the city attorney will, undoubtedly, at once put an end to the present situation in the engineering department, with the delay and expense it entails.

W. B. Patton, Esq.

Dear Sir: You have requested my written opinion upon the following question:

"Can a person claiming election to the position of city engineer enter upon the duties of that office before he has executed to the city of Duluth bonds with sufficient sureties, in such an amount and upon such conditions as the common council may prescribe and be by them approved?"

This question is based upon the fact of D. A. Reed claiming to enter upon the duties of that office, and that his bond presented to the common council has not been approved. Upon the consideration of section 20, chapter 2, of the compiled charter of 1895, and in view of the action of the common council taken June 20, 1887, requiring the city engineer to give bonds in the sum of $10,000, and the subsequent practice of the common council in requiring bonds of the city engineer, especially as evidenced in the resolution of the council of April 27, 1891, and that said resolution, in my opinion, would have the effect of a standing rule of the common council, having effect until rescinded, and that the same has not yet been rescinded, I must answer your question in the negative and say that a person claiming election to the office of city engineer cannot enter upon the duties of that office before he has executed to the city of Duluth a bond approved by the common council. Respectfully submitted.

City Attorney.

CONNECTICUT RIVER.

On the Rampage and Doing Very Much Damage.

Springfield, Mass., June 10.—Special dispatches to the Union from the towns along the Connecticut river indicate that much damage is being done by flood. The boom at Turner's Falls, Mass., broke at 4:30 o'clock this morning. There was about 50,000,000 feet of logs. There is no way of stopping this boom or the one that broke at Bellows' Falls until they reach Mount Tom, near Northampton.

The dam of the Warner Manufacturing compahy at Greefield broke this morning. It was built of solid rock and was fifty feet long and twelve feet high. A portion of the dam of Eddy & Son also gave way.

DUE TO HEAVY RAINS.

Bellows' Falls Vt., June 10.—For the past thirty-six hours the rainfall in this section has been continuous. The Connecticut river has risen several feet and all its small tributaries are badly swollen. Highways are washed out and a boom just north of here holding 12,000,000 feet of logs belonging to the Van Dyke river, burst this morning and unless the boom at Turner's Falls, Mass., holds, a large part of the drive will go on toward the sea.

DAMAGE AT VARIOUS PLACES.

Boston, June 10.—New England was visited by a storm last night which in the amount of damage done, has become one of the worst in many years, according to official records the actual amount of rain was not unusual but it came down with great violence.

The railroads suffered most severely, particularly the Boston & Maine and its branches in New Hampshire. Wrecks occurred at Exeter and Seabrook, while trains were stalled in many other places by serious washouts. On this account traffic between Boston and the north and east was greatly impeded. From Vermont and New Hampshire comes news of swollen rivers, the height of which approaches that reached in the famous freshets of the spring of 1896.

At Dover, N. H., where, in 1896, four bridges and a business block were carried away by the floods, the Cocheco mills were compelled to suspend operations, and at Amesbury, Mass., work in the carriage factories was impeded by flooded cellars.

In the western part of Massachusetts the Connecticut river swept away the dam of the Warner Manufacturing company at Greenfield and caused other damage. Considerable damage to crops is also reported from some sections.

OFFER MAY BE MADE.

E. H. Gay & Co. May Renew Their Offer to the City.

It was reported today that an offer is to be submitted to the council Monday evening by E. H. Gay & Co., for the bondholders, for the sale of the gas and water plants. The figure, it is reported, will be placed at $1,695,000. This is the price named in the offer of Gay & Co. last fall. The terms will be the same also, it is said, viz: Payment in 5 per cent 30-year gold bonds, the bondholders to take care of the outstanding obligations.

Several of the aldermen said they had heard the rumor and seemed to think the offer would be made.

At the office of the gas and water company and Hartman & Patterson, all knowledge of a contemplated offer was disclaimed.

G. A. Elder said that no offer would be made Monday. He did say, however, that Mr. Gay would be here early next week and that he might have something to say. Mr. Gay will be here Monday, Mr. Elder thought.

Trying to Get the Coal Statistics Straight.

Andrew Jackson, clerk at the Sault canal, is here looking into some discrepancies between the coal receipts reported by the companies here and the amount reported as going through the Sault canal. Mr. Jackson was much surprised today at the article in the morning paper in reference to his visit. It gives the impression that he is here to investigate what may be a fraud. He has not supposed for a moment that there is any fraud in the matter and was not able to figure out this morning where it could lie. As he explains the matter, the amount of anthracite coal that is reported as passing through the Sault canal is considerably less than the actual receipts of anthracite coal at the head of the lakes alone. His investigations have convinced him that the trouble lies with some of the captains who report anthracite coal as bituminous, either through carelessness or ignorance. Taking coal as a whole, he finds that the amount passing through the canal and the amount received here average up about right.

Mr. Jackson's chief concern in the matter has been a fear that, if coal statistics were wrongly reported, other statistics might be wrong, and it is his aim to get them as nearly correct as possible. He says he will take steps to insure securing a correct classification of coal hereafter.

OPPOSED TO BOUNTY.

Senate Votes Down Bounty on Agricultural Products.

Washington, June 10.—The senate began work at 11 a. m. today and the tariff bill was taken up as soon as the routine business was out of the way.

Mr. Tillman took the floor on the pending amendment of Mr. Cannon, Utah, providing for an export bounty on agricultural products. He said he desired the attention of his associates, and as the attendance was meager noted the absence of a quorum. The call disclosed fifty-four senators present, nine more than a quorum, and Mr. Tillman proceeded. He said the tariff debate had disclosed a nebulous condition in the minds of senators. The Republican senators sat quiet, apparently controlled by the caucus, refusing to discuss the iniquities of the bill and unanimously voting for the exactions in behalf of trusts and monopolies.

"On the other hand," proceeded Mr. Tillman, "the Democrats are in a period of transition. They don't know where they're at. The older and more experienced proclaim their allegiance to the old time honored doctrines. We had an impassioned speech yesterday by Mr. Mills on behalf of the Walker tariff principles, brought forward at this late day as Democratic doctrine. Secession, nullification and other issues which have passed out of the minds of men might as well be brought here. The tariff is merely a question of policy as to how the government will claim its revenue. I say without hesitation it is to the best interest of the American people that the articles consumed by our people should be produced by our people. If that is Republican doctrine, well and good. If that is not Democratic doctrine it ought to be."

Mr. Tillman went on to show that diversified industries gave diversified means of labor. As to the farmers, the need was not for more farmers, but for a tariff which no longer would rob the farmers we have. The farmer stood, his skinny, brawny hand outstretched, asking the export bounty to overcome the robbery of the present system, and yet senators sat in stony silence expecting the farmer with the mortgage gnawing on his home, not to know that they refuse to give him relief. Mr. Tillman vehemently pledged his word to his colleagues that they would not deceive the farmers, and that the 9,000,000 followers of the plow "will settle with you at the ballot box."

Mr. Tillman's speech was in his usual vein, though not quite so sensational or exclamatory, and more argumentative. He declared that the South had been treated as an Ishmaelite since the war, and the farmers generally had been bled to benefit New England.

After some running debate, a vote was taken on the Cannon amendment, providing an export bounty for agricultural products, and it was defeated—yeas, 10; nays, 59. The affirmative vote was given: Messrs. Allen, Butler, Stewart, Harris (Kansas), Heitfield, Populists; Cannon, Mantie, Pettigrew, Silver Republicans; Roach and Tillman, Democrats.

This closed the consideration of the cereal paragraphs of the agricultural schedule and further consideration of the agricultural schedule was postponed, and the sugar schedule taken up.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, June 10.—The house today passed two comparatively unimportant resolutions and then adjourned until Monday.

THREE FISH AT ONE BITE.

James Barnes, a well known sportsman of Binghamton, recently made a catch of three fish on one hook at one bite, says the New York Press. He was fishing through the ice when he pulled out a 3-pound black bass. On cutting open the fish a small perch was found inside alive. This was placed in the water and lived for some time. When it was finally killed and dressed it was found to contain a minnow. This is said to be a record breaker for any one haul.

TOWNE

Is Now Engaged In Establishing the Party Headquarters Here.

Object Is to Get Together Republicans Who Oppose Gold Standard.

Chairman Charles A. Towne of the national committee of the Silver Republican party, arrived this morning from Chicago and will remain in the city for a few days. He was seen this afternoon by The Herald and asked about the work and plans of the new party.

"I am here," he said, "to establish headquarters in this city and I shall remain here permanently, except when I am called away by business engagements or the necessities of the cause. We had a very interesting and unexpectedly successful meeting of the national committee at Chicago. When I was appointed chairman in March, and this meeting was called, I was confronted with very great difficulties.

"There had been no previous organization of the party, and the mixture of political matters in the various states made it necessary for me to find out where the Silver Republicans were and who they were, and then make arrangements for representation at the national committee meeting. Thirty-two states were represented, and we had an attendance of about 200. There was only one representative from each state, but from two to four from each state voluntarily came out of mere enthusiasm for the cause and a desire to meet its representatives from the various states.

"I was unamously elected chairman, with power to appoint an executive committee of seven, of whom I have as yet only named the chairman, ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho. The others I will announce in a few weeks. While for organization Washington was better, from now on the work may be prosecuted almost as easily from Duluth, and it accords with my wish to be at home and among my friends.

"As to the work, that will consist in the organization of states and territories in which the political situation is such as to call for it. This comprises all of the Central states, those of the West and Northwest, nearly all of the East and some of the Southern states. Our object, of course, is to get together men of former Republican affiliations who are out of sympathy with the present drift of the party toward the gold standard and the serfdom of trusts, and who believe that monetary reform is first and most necessary of all reforms. We expect to act in absolute harmony and co-operation with the Populists and silver Democrats for the success of the cause we believe to be paramount to all others at present."

Mr. Towne is in constant receipt of invitations to deliver addresses on different aspects of the question of bimetallism, and he deems it his duty to accept some of them. He will speak June 15 at Chester, Pa., before a large gathering of silver clubs composed of Republicans, Democrats and Populists. June 22 he will speak at Cincinnati before a gathering of the silver clubs of Kentucky, Ohio and Indiana. On June 23 he will speak at Des Moines, Iowa, and from there he will go to Washington and remain until he leaves for Los Angeles, where he will speak in conjunction with Mr. Bryan July 5. The meeting is to be a gigantic one, under the auspices of the Silver club of that city, which has a membership of 6000.

Some time during the summer he will speak at Charleston, S. C., in reply to Chairman Bynum of the gold Democratic party.

TEACUP TIMES.

Women, of course, were excluded from the coffee houses, but they organized "tea-drinkings," as they were called, to which both men and women flocked, says Frances M. Butler in Jun. Lippincott's. Fancy such a company assembled in a fine lady's boudoir, sipping fragrant Hyson from handleless cups of egg-shell china, while Pope and Lady Mary sparred at each other, or Pepys retailed the latest news; what marriages were in prospective, or who at the last drawing room had been adjudged the reigning beauty. At such a time, when Swift lived at St. James' and lay in bed to compose, because the nights were cold and coals dear, he may have discussed Gay's death with Pope over a cup of tea. It was from such "tea-drinkings" that the witty and erratic Dean gathered much of the materials for his "Journal to Stella."

With the fashion of tea parties was developed the taste for china. The more grotesque and unusual the pattern and design, the more valuable the teacup.

Notwithstanding this low rate, the ore market is getting strong daily, but coal for shipment continues very scarce.

VESSEL MOVEMENTS.

Buffalo—Cleared: Elphicke, Sitka, Duluth.

Toledo—Cleared: Philip Minch, Duluth.

Two Harbors—Cleared: Zenith City, Vulcan, Cleveland.

Erie—Cleared: Lansing, Duluth.

Ashland—Arrived: Marshall, Tilden, Kingfisher. Cleared: Victory, Constitution, Sheriffs.

BUOY NOT PROPERLY PLACED.

"Unless the spar buoy at the head of Russell's island, St. Clair river, has been changed very recently," says Capt. M. Folan of the steamer Milwaukee, "I am quite sure that it is too far to the westward. I have seen vessels aground with the buoy at the west of them. I should think that it is 200 feet or so out of place, and this is along distance when boats are passing each other. On May 14 one of the whalebacks was aground at this point and on the 25th the Samoa and consort were on the same spot. Its the worst place in the St. Clair river and a dangerous hole to make on a dark night. A light at this point is not less than seventeen feet of water would be a good thing. The range lights for this passage are red and very low, and on a night when the smoke of passing boats hangs on the water they are hard to be seen, as every captain on the lakes will testify."

FUNDS ARE SHORT.

Some people are wondering why the revenue steamer Fessenden, which has been in commission only a few days, was so late in coming out. It was because no funds were at hand to warrant running her more than six months in the year; otherwise she would have been out several weeks earlier.

SUGGESTION CONCERNING LIGHTS.

Capt. James Gibson suggests that a red and white light should be put on the lower cluster of piles at Grosse Pointe, to distinguish it, so that if it were carried away again vesselmen would know it at once. It was the loss of these piles that caused so many vessels to ground there recently.

VESSELS SHOULD BE WARNED.

Capt. Clint Ennis of the Bessemer line steamer Fairbairn says: "Some method must be provided to warn upbound vessels at Sailors' Encampment of anything that may be coming down. The first time two boats meet in the new cut at this point both will be sunk. When there is any wind at all on the river, signals cannot be heard. I had a narrow escape from accident at this point on a recent trip, and I think that all vesselmasters will agree with me in what I say about this matter."

SPLIT GLASS.

New York Press: Britishers usually call for a "split glass" when they buy a drink, and I find that the article is almost unknown in this city. Of course we can have it at Del's, or at the Waldorf, or at Stewart's but there are many swell places where it is a stranger. Why? Because brandy and soda are not our national tipple. "Split glass" is English. Two Johnnie Bulls advance to the bar, order two carafes of brandy, two "split glasses" and a bottle of club soda. When the brandy is emptied into the glasses the bottle of soda is "split," each half being sufficient to make a full glass of B. & S. A "split glass," therefore, is merely a matter of size.

SEALED ORDERS.

Hurried Putting to Sea of Cruiser New York.

Boston, June 10.—The navy yard officials at 2 o'clock this afternoon announced that the United States cruiser New York will sail from this harbor between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon under sealed orders.

It is reported that a cipher dispatch from Washington was received on board the New York this morning, the nature of which is not disclosed. This fact and the announcement of the sudden departure of the vessel caused a sensation in naval circles this afternoon.

NOT GOING TO CUBA.

Washington, June 10.—It was said at the navy department this afternoon that the New York was bound for Hampton Roads and was not going to Cuba.

A ST. PAUL SUICIDE.

President Reilly of the John Martin Lumber Company.

St. Paul, June 10.—(Special to The Herald.)—President Reilly, of the John Martin Lumber company, and vice president of the St. Paul National bank, a prominent and well known business man of this city, committed suicide today by shooting. No reason is known except continued ill-health, as his business and home affairs were remarkably pleasant. A. R. Reilly was 53 years of age and came here many years ago from West Virginia. His wife and five children survive him.

SEIZED A TRAIN.

Desperate Measures of Southern Lynching Party.

Louisville, Ky., June 10.—A special to the Times from Montgomery, Ala., says: Governor Johnston received a telegram this morning from Sheriff Fulghum of Huntsville, Ala., stating that a mob of 200 men had captured a freight train at Decatur last night and started to Huntsville to lynch the two Decatur negroes, Lewis Moore and Claude Neville, who are charged with criminally assaulting Nellie Lawton, white, aged 13, and sent to Huntsville for safe keeping. The train was side-tracked at Greenbrier.

Governor Johnston ordered the Huntsville company to report to the sheriff under arms to protect the jail from any mob. Two thousands rounds of ammunition were ordered sent from Birmingham on the noon train, and the governor has telegraphed the colonel of of the Second regiment to hold one of the Birmingham troops in readiness to go to Huntsville at a moment's notice.

DESERVED HIS PUNISHMENT.

Detroit Free Press: "Yesterday," said Jabson, "I refused a poor woman a request for a small sum of money, and in consequence of my act I passed a sleepless night. The tones of her voice were ringing in my ears the whole time."

"Your softness of heart does you credit," said Mabson; "who was the woman?"

"My wife."

M'KINLEY

President and Mrs. McKinley Are at the Nashville Centennial Today.

Nothing Can Permanently Impede the Nation's Progress Says the Mayor.

Graceful Tribute Paid to Tennessee's Patriotism In the Past.

Nashville, Tenn., June 11.—President McKinley and party arrived at the Union station, this city, at 7:30 o'clock this morning, and were met by Maj. J. W. Thomas and taken in carriages to the Maxwell house. Leaving the hotel at 11 o'clock the party arrived at the exposition grounds three-quarters of an hour later. A variation upon "Our Old Kentucky Home" was a fitting prelude to the speeches, which were opened by Hon. John W. Thomas, president of the exposition, who was master of ceremonies on the auditorium stage, who introduced the president.

The president said: "Officers of the Tennessee Centennial exposition, ladies and gentlemen: American nationality compared with that of Europe and the East, is still very young, and yet already we are beginning to have age enough for centennial anniversaries in states other than the original thirteen. Such occasions are always interesting and when celebrated in a practical way are useful and instructive. Combining retrospect and review, they recall what has been by state and nation, and point out what yet remains for both to accomplish in order to fulfill their highest destiny.

"This celebration is of general interest to the whole country and of special significance to the people of the South and West. It marks the end of the first century of the state of Tennessee and the close of the first year of its second century. One hundred and one years ago this state was admitted into the Union as the sixteenth member in the great family of American commonwealths. It was a welcome addition to the national household—a community young, strong and sturdy, with an honored and heroic ancestry, with fond anticipations, not only of its founders but faith in its success on the part of far-seeing and sagacious statesmen in all parts of the country. I am justified in saying that these anticipations have been grandly realized, that the present of this community of sterling worth is even brighter than prophets of the past had dared to forecast it.

"The builders of the state who had forced their way through the trackless forests of this splendid domain, brought with them the same high ideals and fearless devotion to home and country, founded on resistance to oppression which have made illustrious the Anglo-American name. Whether it was the territory of Virginia or that of North Carolina, mattered little to them. They came, willing and eager, to fight for independence and liberty, and in the war of the revolution were ever loyal to the standard of Washington. When their representatives served in the colonial assembly of North Carolina, they chose—for the first time in our country, so far as I know—the great name of Washington for the district in which they lived and at the close of the revolution sought to organize their territory into a state, to be known as the state of Franklin, in grateful homage of the name of another of its most distinguished patriot commissioners.

"Spain had sought to possess their territory by right of discovery as a part of Florida. France claimed it by right of secession as a part of Louisiana, and England as her's by conquest. But neither contention could for an instant be recognized. Moved by the highest instincts of self-government and the loftiest motives of patriotism, under gallant old John Sevier, at Kings Mountain, your forefathers bravely vindicated their honor and gloriously won their independence. Thus came the new state, second only then of the new mighty West and Southwest. And it has made a wonderful history for itself.

"Tennessee has sometimes been called 'The Father of Southwestern Statesmen.' It furnished us the immortal Jackson, whose record in war and whose administration in peace as the head of the great republic, shines on with the advancing years. The century has only added to the luster of his name, increased the obligations of his countrymen, and exalted him in their affection. Polk and Johnson also were products of this great state and many more heroes of distinguished deeds whose names will come unbidden to your memories.

"Tennesseeans have ever been volunteer, not drafted, patriots. In 1846 when 2400 soldiers were called for, 30,000 loyal Tennesseeans offered their services; amid the trials and terrors of the great civil war, under conditions of peculiar distress and embarrassment, her people divided on contending sides. But upon whichever side found, they fought fearlessly to death and gallant sacrifice. Now, happily, there are no contending sides in this glorious commonwealth, or in any part of our common country. The men who opposed each other in dreadful battle a third of a century ago are once more and forever united together, under one flag, in a never-to-be-broken union.

"The glory of Tennessee is not only alone in the brilliant names it has contributed to history or the heroic patriotism displayed by the people in so many a crisis of our national life, but its material and industrial wealth, social advancement and population are striking and significant in their growth and development. Thirty-five thousand settlers in this state in 1880 had increased to 1,109,000 in 1890, and today it has a population closely approximating 2,000,000. Its manufactures, which in 1860 were small and unimportant, in 1890 had reached $72,000,000 in value, while its farm products now aggregate more than $62,000,000 annually. Its river commerce on three great international waterways, its splendid railways operating nearly 3000 miles of roads, its mineral wealth of incalculable value, form a splendid augury for the future. I am sure no better workmen could be found than the people of Tennessee to turn these confident promises into grand realities.

"Your exposition shows better than any words of mine can tell the details of your wealth of resources and power of production. You have done wisely in exhibiting these to your own people and to your sister states and at no time could the display be more effective than now, when what the country needs more than all else is restored confidence in itself. This exposition demonstrates directly your faith and purpose and signifies in the widest sense your true and unfailing belief in the irrepressible pluck of the American people, and is a promising indication of the return of American prosperity.

"The knowledge which this beautiful and novel exposition gives will surely stimulate competition, develop your trade, increase your output, enlarge your fields of employment, extend your markets and so eventually pay for all it cost, as well as justify local sentiment and encourage state pride. Men and women I see about me from all parts of the country and thousands more will assemble here before the exposition is closed. Let ourselves and let them always remember that whatever differences about politics may have existed, or still exist, we are all Americans, before we are partisans, and value the welfare of all the people above party or section. Citizens of different states we yet love all the states. The lesson of the hour then, is this—that whatever adverse conditions may temporarily impede the pathway of our national progress, nothing can permanently defeat it."

AS TO WHITE PINE.

Statement Made By Senator Pettigrew is Disproved.

Washington, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—The statement of Senator Pettigrew that there are only 25,000,000,000 feet of white pine in the United States and all owned by twelve companies has been proved to be utterly fallacious. A telegram sent to a prominent Northwestern lumberman by congressman Interested in the duty on white pine brought the following reply:

"Kelly, Nelson, Smith and McKnight, of Minneapolis estimate that there are between 35,000,000,000 and 45,000,000,000 feet in Minnesota alone, owned by 150 companies, and more than 1000 individuals, not counting homesteaders and farmers. William Irwin, of Chippewa Falls, estimates from 20,000,000,000 to 25,000,000,000 feet in Wisconsin, owned by 500 individuals, and telegrams from Michigan state that there are nearly 20,000,000,000 feet of white pine standing in that state and more than 300 individual owners."

These figures conclusively disprove Pettigrew's statement that it is possible to form a combination to control the price of white pine and increase the price to the extent of the $2 duty. With the variety of owners such a combination would be utterly impossible.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

South Dakotan Shoots His Girl and Himself.

St. Paul, June 11.—A Pipestone, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: F. N. Bliven, of Pipestone, yesterday shot and probably wounded a daughter of Frank Weigel, a German farmer, living in Moody county, South Dakota. Bliven hired a livery rig, drove to Wiegel's house and asked the girl to elope with him. Upon her refusal he pulled his revolver and fired four times, four shots taking effect in her body. After the shooting he fled northwest to the Percheron horse farm. Before he could be arrested by the officers he placed the pistol to his heart and fired. Death resulted almost instantly.

STORM IN COLORADO.

Cloudburst on Pike's Peak Does Much Damage.

Denver, Col., June 11.—Four railway washouts, a $25,000 fire and a host of minor losses epitomize the results of the evil storm which prevailed in Denver and throughout the eastern section of the state generally from 7 o'clock last evening until a little after midnight.

A cloudburst on the slope of Pike's peak shut off traffic on the Rio Grande and Midland lines between Manitou and Colorado Springs. Sixteen miles out of Denver the Julesburg tracks were washed out in spots for miles in length. The 10:30 Pacific train for Chicago is stalled at the Union depot. The washout on the Burlington & Missouri road occurred near Barr station, so the 9:50 train over that line for the East was not able to leave Denver until this morning.

GAS CONSOLIDATION.

Four Companies in New York Have Combined.

New York, June 11.—The practical consolidation of the gas companies of this city and Brooklyn has caused a sensation in financial circles. Those who have been engaged in the effort to amalgamate the four corporations have vigorously denied that the consolidation had been finally settled, but it is practically completed and the plans agreed to by those most largely interested in the four companies. The plan of the companies is to manufacture all the gas used in Greater New York in one great plant, which is now the property of the East River company. This plant is located at Ravenswood, L. I. The real estate belonging to the Consolidated, the Equitable, and the Standard along the East river is to be disposed of and outstanding bonds on all the companies are to be retired with the money realized on the property. A handsome surplus will remain.

A BICYCLE TURN OVER.

Boston, June 11.—The assertion is made by an authority in cycling circles that within a short time the League of American Wheelmen will turn over to the recently organized National Cycling Track association full control of the cycle racing sport. The league, it is said, has found that it cannot justly govern the sport without capable and salaried officials, appointed or elected especially for that purpose.

TERRIBLE

Granaries, Barns, Residences and Stock Were Swept Away.

St. Paul, June 11.—A Lyle, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: A terribly destructive cyclone struck this vicinity last night, laying waste a track about 200 yards wide and ten miles long. The funnel-shaped cloud made its first appearance twelve miles west of here, where it swept to the ground and immediately rose and struck six miles further east and began its work of devastation.

Thousands of dollars are in waste. The barn on the Funda farm was the first to suffer; J. C. Owen's fine farm improvements, residence, barn, granaries, etc., are entirely destroyed. He and family all went to the cellar and none were injured. At Howard's all outbuildings were wiped away. Charles Howard, a son, was going from the barn to the house when the wind struck him, and he grabbed hold of a large rock and escaped being carried away. The Woodbury school house was demolished. Charles Severstin's fine farm property was all destroyed. His skull was badly fractured and it is feared he cannot live. William Stipe's farm buildings were picked up and smashed into kindling wood. The entire family got into the cellar before the storm struck. Mrs. Stipe, however, was badly injured. Mrs. Berg's new house was next destroyed. At John Johnson's all were in the cellar when the house was swept from over them, but nobody was hurt. Joseph Wyborney's barn and house are gone, scattered to the four winds. One of his horses was picked up and landed eighty rods distant and not scratched.

Henry Hanson's buildings are all destroyed and Hanson is a corpse, and P. K. Johnson and Hanson's wife and two children are in a critical condition. Johnson was found hanging to a wire fence very badly cut and unconscious. The Minnereka school house is totally destroyed. August Webber's barn and windmill are gone and John Webber's barn and residence are wrecked. At Willis Bryan's is a scene of total destruction. He gathered his family, consisting of a wife and three children, into a corner of the cellar and stood over them. As the house was lifted from above them a stone weighing over 200 pounds rolled down over his back, inflicting ugly wounds and pinning his leg to the cellar floor. Christian Peterson's property is all destroyed and he cannot live. His son is also in a critical condition. Peter, another son, is badly hurt.

The cyclone struck this town about twenty rods north of the business portion. Both the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul and the Illinois Central roads had a number of freight cars wrecked. Wreckage crews from both roads are now here clearing up the wreckage. The city water tower is stopped. Peter Hanson and his family were temporarily living in a new barn. This structure was totally crushed. Hanson had a leg broken and is injured internally. Mrs. Hanson is badly hurt, as is also the son, Robert. Mrs. M. L. Hughson and Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks, of Clarion, Iowa, were visiting there, and all are injured.

Charles Larson's cottage was destroyed and he and his wife were badly hurt. For several hours their little 12-months'-old baby was lost, but it was finally found penned in between some timbers. Chris Christensen's new house was wrecked, and Dr. Frazer's barn destroyed. East of here Mrs. Ole Nelson's barn was blown down and some stock killed. Chris Meca's barn is down. There were nineteen persons injured, one killed and three fatally injured; two are doubtful. A careful estimate puts the total property damage at $80,000.

Denver, Col., June 11.—After a two weeks' trial a verdict of guilty has been returned in the case of Matt Adams, ex-clerk of the district court, on the charge of embezzling $40,000. Adams' flight from Denver about a year ago created a sensation. He was arrested in Southampton, England, after evading the officers for several months.

There is no music like the melody of health. When every life-string is in perfect tune, and the pure, rich, red blood dances through the arteries to the quick-step of health, life is truly worth living. But the human body is the most delicate and intricate of all instruments. Just one little string out of tune will make a general discord. The body may apparently be in the best of order in every way, save that there is a slight disorder of the digestion. The sufferer hardly notices it, and does not think it worth troubling about. It is just one little string out of order, but it soon puts every organ in the body into a jangling discord. The blood no longer receives the proper supply of life-giving elements with which to build up new and healthy tissue. Instead it receives the poisons thrown off by improperly digested food and the effete material with which the intestines are clogged. Diseases of the blood and skin or wasting diseases like consumption are the result.

The best of all known medicines is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It keeps every life-string in perfect tune. It corrects all disorders of the digestion. It invigorates the liver. It makes the appetite hearty and keen and assimilation perfect. It fills the blood with the vital elements that build new and healthy tissues, firm muscles, and strong, vibrant nerve fibers. Acting through the blood it tears down inert, half-dead tissues and causes them to be carried off and excreted. It acts upon every organ of the body driving out impurities and disease-germs. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It cures every kind of humor from the common simple blotch or eruption to scrofula. It cures eczema, saltrheum, and all skin affections. It cures 98 per cent. of all cases of consumption. Thousands have testified to its wonderful merits. All good druggists sell it.

TO RECOVER A LOST MINE.

An Undertaking Upon Which Depend Many Millions.

Negaunee, Mich., June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—An expert diamond drill runner of this place, George B. Mitchell, has been asked to take charge of an important piece of work at Silver islet, just north of Isle Royale, and will probably go there to begin the job in a short time. The foregoing statement may sound trivial, but upon the success or failure of the work which is to be done there under Mr. Mitchell's charge will depend many millions of dollars.

In the early sixties the most profitable silver mine in the world, with the exception of the big mines of the Comstock lode, was on Silver islet, a mere reef of rock, only a few acres in extent, lying not far north of Isle Royale, and within the dominions of her Britannic majesty, Isle Royale being the northernmost possession of the United States in the waters of Lake Superior. Only a small force of miners was employed, and efforts were made to keep the richness of the mine secret, but such news could not be suppressed, and it soon became known that the owners of the Silver Islet were operating the richest silver mine ever opened. The precious metal was not in the form of an ore, but was found in virgin state, and the minin carried on was more like the despoiling of the treasure vault of some Oriental potentate, or the looting of a fairy grotto, than ordinary mining. The white metal was abundantly bestowed through the narrow vein which carried it, and the finest and most valuable specimens of silver that were ever secured from the standpoint of the mineralogist came from this little island mine far out in the blue waters of the big lake.

The mine was operated but a few years and in a primitive manner, but millions of dollars were secured in that time, and the actual expenses of the mine, as compared with the revenues, were trivial. The owners were all made wealthy men, but in an unlucky moment the mine was swallowed by the waters. The amygdaloid vein carrying the silver in such profuslon underlaid the bed of the lake, and a careless blast by the miners broke the thin wall separating the workings from the waters, and the openings were so speedily flooded that the miners barely escaped with their lives. The island was so small that all attempts to reopen the mine were fruitless, and it was abandoned a quarter of a century ago. If the expedition under Mr. Mitchell proves successful, the Silver Islet mine will again make millionaires of its owners, for old miners are unanimous in saying that the mine was as rich in silver as the Calumet and Hecla is in copper, and the silver was joined for a few cents an ounce.

Surveys in Itasca.

Some time ago Surveyor General P. H. Kirwan received a petition from the settlers in the northern part of Itasca county, holding agricultural and timber lands, for the survey of three townships, comprising in all some 70,000 acres, most of which is farm land. Mr. Kirwan has dispatched Deputy Surveyor H. L. Chaplin, of Duluth, to Itasca for the purpose of making the asked-for survey of townships 154 and 155 in range 25, and also township 155 in range 26. The surveyor general says that the country in Northern Itasca county is being populated by persons who have been attracted away from the Rainy river by the fertile soil further south.

It seems to you that that tickling, hacking cough is all in the throat. But your doctor will tell you that this sensation is often deceiving. The cough is often the signal of deeper trouble in the bronchial tubes or in the lung tissue itself. These inflamed membranes can only be healed by treating the system. For all lung troubles, especially in the earlier stages, no remedy equals Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil. Its special power is in healing the inflamed tissues of the lungs.

HANGED

Murderer Gordy Thought He Was Going to Heaven Sure.

By This Time Probably He Has Found Out His Mistake.

Georgetown, Del., June 11.—James M. Gordy was hanged at 10:26 o'clock this morning for the murder of his wife. He died game, and protested his innocence to the last. He made a statement on the scaffold, reviewing at length the evidence on which he had been convicted, pointing out what he considered the inconsistencies therein, suggesting connivance of his sister-in-law with the detectives to secure his conviction. His greatest grievance, however, was against the newspapers. In this connection he said:

"In regard to the nespapers, I'm sorry people believe all they say. They are the greatest falsifiers that I ever heard of, and are largely responsible for people thinking so ill of me today. I thank God, though, that a day will come when newspaper men will have to give an account of the deeds done in the body. In spite of all I can still put my trust in the Lord, who will never leave or forsake me. He is greater than man."

After a long and somewhat rambling statement of his religious hopes and beliefs, he concluded: "For the sheriff, his assistants, the minister, my counsel and all others concerned, I have only kind words to speak. They, I believe, have done what they could for me. To all I say good-bye. You believe I'm guilty. God and I know I am not. believe I'm going to heaven. I do hope you who hear and those that read my statement will ultimately enter the rest that remains for the people of God. Farewell."

The crime for which Gordy was hung was the murder of a woman whom he had married in New York only about two weeks before. Gordy was a widower, and there was strong suspicion that his first wife had been murdered. In December, 1896, the body of a woman was found floating in the river, near Georgetown, with the skull crushed in. Investigaton proved that Gordy had been seen with her near the river shortly before the body was found, and further search proved that he had clandestinely married her in New York about two weeks before. Other damaging evidence was found, including a hammer with hair and blood stains on it in Gordy's barn. It was on circumstantial evidence that he was hung.

DANGER IN SODA.

Serious Resu'ts Sometimes Follow Its Excessive Use.

Common soda is all right in its place and indispensable in the kitchen and for cooking and washing purposes, but it was never intended for a medicine, and people who use it as such will some day regret it.

We refer to the common use of soda to relieve heartburn or sour stomach, a habit which thousands of people practice almost daily, and one which is fraught with danger; moreover the soda only gives temporary relief and in the end the stomach trouble gets worse and worse.

The soda acts as a mechanical irritant to the walls of the stomach and bowels and cases are on record where it accumulated in the intestines, causing death by inflammation or peritonitis.

Dr. Harlandson recommends as the safest and surest cure for sour stomach (acid dyspepsia) an excellent preparation sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. These tablets are large 20-grain lozenges, very pleasant to taste and contain the natural acids, peptones and digestive elements essential to good digestion and when taken after meals they digest the food perfectly and promptly before it has time to ferment, sour and poison the blood and nervous system.

Dr. Wuerth states that he invariably uses Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in all cases of stomach derangements and finds them a certain cure not only for stomach, but by promptly digesting the food they create a healthy appetite, increase flesh and strengthen the action of the heart and liver. They are not a cathartic but intended only for stomach diseases and weaknesses and will be found reliable in any stomach trouble except cancer of the stomach.

A Peculiar Accident.

A peculiar accident occurred Tuesday evening at the residence of George E. Springler at 904 West Fourth street. Some boys were anticipating the national holiday by exploding some ordinary paper torpedoes. The infant son of Mr. Springler very much admired the display, and he begged for one of the torpedoes. He was given one, and while the attention of the donor was directed another way the young man did what nine out of ten babies would do—he put the torpedo in his mouth. It exploded there, tore up the lips, and the little pebbles which fill the torpedoes embedded themselves in the child's mouth. The accident was not serious, though blood-poisoning was feared at first.

Apply For Deposits.

At a meeting held yesterday afternoon in the county auditor's office the board of audit received two applications for county deposits. They were from the American Exchange bank and the Duluth Trust company. The bank asks for $150,000, and the trust company for $20,000, and each offer to pay 2 per cent on monthly balances. No action was taken, as the applications were not accompanied by bonds.

FROM DEATH'S DOOR.

How the Indian's Secret Guided D. T. Campbell Out of the Valley of the Shadow of Death.

Hope, Life and Happiness Now His.

An Example and the Warning That If Followed Will Mean Life and Health to Others.

Mr. D. T. Campbell, residing at Clarkfield, Minn., was a sufferer from a terrible malady, hemorrhages and inflammation of the bowels. The best physicians attended him, without giving him relief. They would patch him up for a few days, when he would have a severe relapse and would be worse than ever. He realized the fact that he was growing worse and worse from day to day, until he at last made up his mind that the medicine he was taking was helping to kill him by inches. The poisonous drugs given him only added fuel to the flame of disease. He was reduced in weight to 135 pounds. He was so nervous he could not endure the sound of a human voice, was subject to fainting spells and it seemed as though he would die from utter exhaustion, and all of this on account of a derangement of that great vital center of the body, the stomach. It improperly performed its duties, poisonous secretions gathered and became active in his bowels, his kidneys, and his liver became diseased, his blood impure, until it was a matter of a short time before death would have stepped in, had he not as a last resort tried Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. Here is what he says: "When I first began to take your Sagwa was so weak I could hardly take a half teaspoonful. Took this four times a day, using the Oil on my bowels and limbs at points where I experienced the most pain. The Oil would stop the pain almost instantly. On the third day after beginning the Sagwa I began to have an appetite and noticed a marked change. Had no more sinking spells, my bowels became regular and I increased the dose of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa to a tablespoonful, and continued to gain right along. Three months' time found me cured, weighing 178 pounds. Fifteen dollars' worth of Kickapoo Indian Medicines did for me what several hundred dollars paid to the doctors failed to do. I thank God for his having given me the courage to try the Kickapoo Indian remedies, and I implore all suffering humanity to give them a trial."

The above example should be followed by others. Do not despair. While there is life there is hope, and with life and the systematic use of Kickapoo Indian Remedies, health will be restored, sickness become a thing of the past, and to the sufferer who uses these remedies will be given a long life without sickness as was ever enjoyed by the Indians. Kickapoo Indian remedies can be bought of all druggists everywhere.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Col. O. M. Towner is dead of apoplexy. He was one of the most noted pioneers of Towner county. He came from Missouri in the latter part of the '70s, opening the country west of Larimore. Later on he was instrumental in opening the country near Devil's Lake and Cando. Towner county was named after him, also the town of Towner. He has brought hundreds of people to North Dakota and has been interested in many big schemes, but died a poor man. He was a member of the state legislature at one time, also held an officer in the Confederate army. At the time of his death he was interested in a big colonization scheme for a Chicago company.

William Rogers, a resident of Larimore, broke into the slaughter house of Louis Brooks in that town Tuesday night and appropriated a considerable amount of furs and hides. Deputy Sheriff Spaulding was called and followed the man to East Grand Forks, where he was arrested. He refused to come to North Dakota unless requisition papers were secured.

Anderson & McCarthy Bros.' elevator at Mayville was totally destroyed, with contents, 800 bushels of wheat, 4000 bushels of flax. Loss, $4000 on elevator and $7000 on contents, all fully insured. The fire is supposed to be the work of tramps.

Hans O. Larson, who was recently sentenced to Hillsboro to serve ninety days in jail and pay a fine of $700 escaped from the Fargo jail yard, where he was a trusty. He was there for safe-keeping.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

At Sioux Falls the jury in the case of E. S. Wemple, accused of the embezzlement of $800, found the defendant not guilty, after wrestling with the case all night. On the first ballot the jury stood six to six. The indictment charged Wemple with embezzling "lawful money of the United States," and three of the jury held out on the ground that if Wemple took anything it was checks and drafts.

Harry Clark, a young man, stole $100 worth of cattle at Hurley and run them off to another town, realizing only $5 on them. He will have his trial for grand larceny at the next term of court.

Fire broke out yesterday morning at 4 o'clock in the rear of F. P. Malloy's drug store at Montrose and was under good headway when discovered. The bucket brigade arrived and with great difficulty succeeded in putting it out after it burned the storehouse and the north end and nearly all of the roof off.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Thomas Benton and Maggie Benton, his wife, mortgagors, to The Union Building and Loan Association, mortgagee, bearing date February 3rd, 1894, and duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on February 6th, 1894, at 8:30 o'clock p. m., in Book 60 of mortgages, page 251; which default consists in the non-payment of monthly interest and premium on the principal sum of said mortgage for more than a space of six months after the same has become due.

And whereas, said mortgage contains a provision that in case of default in the payment of monthly interest or premium, or any part thereof, for the space of six months after the same shall have become due, or should the said four shares of stock described in said mortgage be sold for the non-payment of dues, then in either or any such case, the whole principal debt secured by said mortgage shall immediately become due and payable, and the mortgagee in either such case is authorized to sell the mortgaged premises at public auction to satisfy the mortgage debt, interest and premium and all costs and charges, and also the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00) as attorney's fees. Said mortgagee has elected and does hereby elect to declare the whole debt due because of such defaults as aforesaid, and there is claimed to be due and is actually due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the sum of seven hundred seventy-three and 50-100 dollars ($773.50).

And whereas said mortgagors made default in paying insurance premium for insurance upon the buildings upon said premises, and the mortgagee paid six dollars ($6.00) on April 20th, 1897, for insurance premium, which the mortgagee had the right to do under the terms of the mortgage, and said amount is to become a part of the mortgage debt and be secured by said mortgage.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, will, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash to pay said debt of seven hundred seventy-three and 50-100 dollars ($773.50) and six dollars ($6.00) for insurance premium, and fifty dollars ($50.00 attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 26th day of June, 1897, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

The premises described in and covered by said mortgage and which will be sold as aforesaid are situated in St. Louis County, Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit:

The easterly twenty-five (25) feet of lot fifteen (15), in block fifty-five (55), Endion Division of Duluth, being a strip of ground of uniform width of twenty-five (25) feet of the easterly part of said lot and of the full depth of said lot, all according to the recorded plat of said division.

Commencement Exercises of Public Schools to Be Held Next Week.

Exercises Begin With the Sermon By Dr. Forbes Sunday Evening.

Next Monday is the beginning of the end for the class of '97 in the Duluth high school. It is the first day of the last week of their public school lives. Some of them will continue their studies in college, others will not, but at any rate the class will be scattered and its members will never again bear the same relation to each other as they have in the past. For those who purpose a collegiate career next week's events are but a stepping stone to new school associations. For those whose school days end with the public school, next week is the place where they emerge from the world of books and enter their alloted places in the world of activities, the world about which they have studied exhaustively for years, but about which they will have many new lessons to learn in the harsh school of experience. Next Thursday night sixty-two young men and young women will step forth from their class room, and face the world, sheepskin in hand.

The week, as usual, will be attended with a number of events. The first will take place at the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, when Rev. Robert Forbes, D.D., will deliver the commencement sermon, the subject of which is not yet announced. Dr. Forbes will be introduced to the congregation by the class president, Eby G. Gridley.

The next event will be the class day, which will take place on the evening of Wednesday, June 16. As on the following evening the hall will be decorated with the class colors, yellow and white. The program will be as follows:

Following the program Principal Loman will present the class, after which Superintendent Denfeld will give an address. T. W. Hugo, president of the board of education will then present the coveted diplomas.

The class of '97 came into the high school four years ago, 165 strong. The class this year numbers sixty-seven, of whom sixty-two will be graduated next week. The class colors are yellow and white, the class flower the marguerite, the class motto, "Semper parati," and the class yell is as follows:

"Hickety! spickety! rickety! ran!
Hickety! spickety! rickety! ban!
Who can? We can.
Class of '97 can."

The officers of the class are Eby Gridley, president; Ruth Scott, vice president; Mary Merritt, secretary; Reuben Smith, treasurer. The Zenith, the annual production of the senior class, is fully up to the standard set by those of previous years, and in many respects it is superior. The board of editors was made up as follows: Reuben Smith, editor-in-chief; Eby G. Gridley, business manager; C. Herbert Poirier, assistant business manager; Sabra M. Ellison, secretary; Coleman F. Naughton, artist; Anna L. Lindbeck, Margaret W. Whiteford, Gertrude M. Kennebrook, associate editors. A prominent feature of this year's Zenith are the drawing of Coleman F. Naughton, with which the book is plentifully sprinkled. These show a remarkable degree of skill and cleverness and they are especially commendable for their originality. There are also clever drawings by Ralph Miller, India Willcuts and others. The book contains some bright little stories and poems by Ruth Scott, Gertrude Kennebrook, Will L'Estrange, Jessie Brownell, Gertrude Wallace and others. There are excellent likenesses of all the instructors and an affectionate word for each, and the usual bright skits on pupils and teachers. In short, the book is full from cover to cover with bright, interesting matter, very creditable to the class and the board of editors.

The grade exercises also will be held next week. The closing exercises of all the grade schools will be held Thursday, while the graduating exercises of the ighth grade will take place Friday evening at 8 o'clock in the Assembly hall. This class numbers 150, most of whom will enter the high school as freshmmen next year. The program is as follows:

DECLINED

Early Rise Was Due to the Bullish Government Crop Report.

Liverpool Was Also Higher and Big Decrease in Visible Expected.

Wheat opened strong and at a substantial advance. Liverpool was 5d higher, but the overshadowing factor was the government report, which was much more bullish than expected. Traders, however, generally discredited the report, claiming the conditions given were much too low, especially for spring wheat. Northwest receipts were small, 228 cars against 314 last week and 471 a year ago. Free selling, however, followed the opening advance and prices tended steadily downward. A reduction of about 1,500,000 bus was the general estimate on the visible supply and that will in all probability be, like the guesses on the previous week's visible, within 1,000,000 bus of the correct amount. The government report indicated a crop of winter and spring wheat together of about 20,000,000 bus heavier than that of the year before, but the trade has not concluded that notwithstanding what the government suggests, the increase at present promised is nearer 100,000,000 bus.

Trading was dull on the Duluth board. July wheat opened ⅛c higher at 71⅞c, but soon began to decline and touched 70⅝c at 11:50. Ten minutes later it rallied to 70¾c, but soggin weakened and dropped to 70⅝c. The close was at 70⅜c bid, a decline of ⅜c for the day. The mills bought 25,000 bus of cash stuff all the way over July, and shippers took 15,000 bus at ⅜c over July. It is estimated that wheat stocks here will show a decrease of 500,000 bus this week. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 71⅜c. No. 1 northern, cash, 71¼c; July, 70⅜c bid; September, 69⅞c bid. No. 2 northern, 68⅝c. No. 3, 63⅝@64⅞c. Rejected, 47⅝@62⅝c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 71⅜c; No. 1 northern, 71¼c. Rye, 34¼c. No. 2 oats, 21c; No. 3 oats, 20⅝c. Flax, 76c.

Car inspection—Wheat, 94; oats, 60; rye, 6; barley, 24; flax, 12. Receipts—Wheat, 71,228 bus; oats, 88,223 bus; rye, 1,896 bus; barley, 29,270 bus; flax, 12,867 bus. Shipments—Wheat, 220,007 bus; oats, 252,000 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, June 11.—Cash, wheat, No. 2 red, 77@79c; No. 3 red, 73@75c; No. 2 spring, 69@70½c; No. 3 spring, 64@66c; No. 2 hard winter, 68½c; No. 3 hard winter, 63@66c; No. 1 northern spring, 71@72c. Corn, No. 2, 24½@24¾c; No. 3, 23¼c. Oats, No. 2, 18@18¾c; No. 3, 17@19c. Close, wheat, June, 69¾c; July, 68¼c; September, 62⅝c; December, new, 65½@65⅝c; old, 65c. Corn, June, 24½c; July, 24½c; September, 25½@25⅝c. Oats, June, 17½c; July, 18c; September, 17⅝c. Pork, June, $7.42; July, $7.45; September, $7.55. Lard, June, $4.32; July, $3.57½3.60; September, $3.70; December, $3.77. Ribs, June, $4.27; July, $4.27; September, $4.35. Barley, cash, No. 3, 27@33c. Rye, cash, 32c. Flax, cash, 75½c. THE MINNEAPOLIS MARKET.

Minneapolis, June 12.—Wheat weak and lower; June, 70c; July, 68¾c; September, 61⅝c. No. 1 hard, 72c; No. 1 northern, 70¾c. Receipts, 134 cars.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 10 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, June 11.—The government report exceeded the expectations of the most rampant bull in its low figures, but foreigners and local longs put so little faith in its correctness that they seized upon the strong opening to sell all the wheat they could. The absence of cash demand, light clearances, small four sales and summer weather all favored the selling side. Exporters reported no inquiry and late cables came weak. When clearances are expected to continue small as most of the new business done is for new crop loading. Long July wheat came out readily today and the market broke and closed at the put price, a cent under yesterday. September wheat was weak early but well supported at the close showing the presence of a probable larger short interest than in July. Outside markets were all weak and harvesting reported in sections of Kansas.

Corn was as weak today as it was strong yesterday, losing all its advance at the close. There was no reason except the better weather and the fact that the easily scared shorts got in yesterday. We think corn should be bought on all declines. Oats eased off in sympathy.

Provisions did not share in the general weakness but ruled firm without special feature.

Puts, July wheat, 67½@67⅝c.
Calls, July wheat, 68⅝@68¾c.
Curb, July wheat, 68⅝@68⅞c bid.

Was Dull in Court.

In district court this morning the day's setting of cases melted rapidly, and but three were left at noon. They were all on trial. All were uninteresting matters. Judge Ensign was hearing the case of Samuel Loeb against Campbell & Doran to determine the ownership of a narrow strip of ground on Superior street, beneath the side entrance to the Ideal restaurant. There is involved in the case a dispute as to the lot boundary.

Adjourned to Afternoon.

The county commissioners were to have held a special meeting this morning for the purpose of acting on the bond of the American Exchange bank as county depository. The bond was not at hand, however, so the board adjourned to this afternoon. It was expected that the board might take up this afternoon the question of extending the Miller Trunk road north from Virginia to the Tower and Itasca road.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of Weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), June 11.—The storm has moved northeastward across Minnesota and Wisconsin, attended by general showers, and thunderstorms in those states, and the northern portions of Illinois and Michigan. Its center is now north of Upper Michigan, and thence southward over Michigan cloudy weather prevails, with rain falling at Sault Ste. Marie and Detroit. Showers have occurred, also, in sections of Colorado, North Dakota, Manitoba and Missouri. The largest reported amounts of rainfall are .38 inch at Denver, .48 inch at Moorhead and .16 inch at La Crosse. The air pressure is now highest in South Dakota, and fair weather prevails in all reporting districts, except from Lake Michigan eastward. A low pressure area has advanced to the region north of Montana, and the temperature is rising in that section, with southerly winds.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today, 56; maximum yesterday, 82; minimum yesterday, 45; rainfall for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. today, .08 inch.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Fair tonight and Saturday; fresh westerly winds becoming variable Saturday.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, June 11.—Forecast until 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Generally fair tonight and Saturday; cooler in eastern, cooler in extreme south portions tonight; warmer Saturday; fresh westerly winds. For Minnesota: Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in west portion tonight; warmer Saturday; variable winds, shifting to fresh southerly.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC'S GAME.

The claim put forth by the owners of the Gray & Stevens mill that the disputed portion of the track on Arthur avenue at the foot of the Duluth-Superior bridge crossing is necessary for the proper conduct of their business, and that the removal of the crossing would cause them serious inconvenience, is not sustained by an examination of the locality. The Herald yesterday caused a careful inspection to be made of the mill property and the existing rail communication which it enjoys, and it was found that the portion of the track which crosses the street railway line is not by any means a necessity. This portion of the track is used solely for the purpose of shipping out slabs, which are taken by teams from the mill to the point where the cars are now loaded. There is no good reason, however, why the slabs could not be loaded at another point, nearer the mill and on the other side of the crossing. If, however, the mill management contends that this would be a great inconvenience, why cannot the track running up the north side of Rice's Point, which passes within five feet of the end of this Gray mill track, be used for that purpose? The fact is, as anyone can see by an inspection of the locality, that the mill track on the north side of the crossing is not a necessity, and as it creates a dangerous grade crossing it should be removed.

The Northern Pacific railway has an ulterior purpose in view. There can be no doubt of this fact. It is not so very anxious to preserve the track in order to haul slabs from the Gray mill property as it is to maintain a crossing at a point where it can delay the movement of trains passing over the new Duluth-Superior bridge. Every train that will pass over the new bridge will lessen the traffic over the Northern Pacific bridge and reduce the receipts of the Northern Pacific company from that source. This is the secret of the fight that the Northern Pacific is making. It would compel every railroad that desires an entrance into Duluth to pay tribute to it, and it now seeks to make the use of the new bridge as difficult and dangerous as possible. The people of Duluth have waited for a long time for direct street car connection with Superior, and they are not in a mood to quietly submit to the malicious interference of the Northern Pacific railroad, which has not even the slightest claim upon their consideration, because of the miserable train service it has always given, or to permit the maintenance of a deadly grade crossing which would endanger the lives of every person crossing to and from Superior.

Advertisers take up a considerable portion of the space in today's issue of The Herald, and they have contracted for a large amount tomorrow. They recognize the fact that to reach all the people The Herald is the best medium.

What, now, is so rare as a day in June?

Warm weather is welcome.

THE INSTITUTE EXERCISES.

Entertainment By Sacred Heart Pupils Last Evening.

The entertainment by the pupils of the institute of the Sacred Heart at the Lyceum last evening was attended by a large audience, and a nice sum was netted for St. Mary's hospital. The program was rather lengthy, but was well given. The pupils sang "The Time of Youth" as the opening chorus. Piano solos were given by Miss C. Fiebiger and Miss Cora Mackey, piano duets by Miss Mary Gowan and Miss Edna McGarry, Miss Laura Nelson and Miss Cecelia Grimes, Miss L. Monroe and Miss Gowan, and a piano trio by Misses Monroe, Marie Sullivan and Catherine Smythe. A vocal duet was given by Miss Gallagher and Miss Lyons.

There were two graduates, Miss Mary C. Miller and Miss Jennie Pember. Miss Pember read an essay on "Zenith City: Past, Present and Future." She gave a brief description of the growth of the city, and predicted a glowing future. Miss Miller read a carefully prepared and thoughtful essay on "The Education of Woman."

There were two pantomimes that were very pretty, both in the sentiment and in the posing and tableaux. A series of poses and tableaux movements, presenting mythical subjects, was also given. A mandolin, guitar, autoharp and piano orchestral number was given, and also a mandolin number by a quintet. "What is in the basket?" was an amusing thing, given by the junior pupils.

At the close of the entertainment Bishop McGolrick delivered a short address. He spoke on ecuation, speaking principally of the education of boys. He believed it would be well if boys were kept out of school until they reach ten years of age. If their early education were confined to what they learn from nature, he believed that a better foundation for the education would be laid. He commended the idea of a general education as opposed to cultivation in one particular branch.

The Bridge Dedication.

Preparations for the dedication of the Duluth-Superior bridge July 1 are rapidly approaching completion. Addresses will be delivered by Mayor Truesen, Mayor Starkweather of Superior and others. A large crowd is expected to be in attendance. Seats for Northern Pacific officials will be reserved, probably, if they want to go. It has been suggested that they might prefer to sit on the cars of slabs blockading Arthur avenue and make faces at the speakers.

Gun Club Shoot.

The Central Gun club's shoot yesterday afternoon was well attended and some good scores were made. In the medal shoot of twenty-five birds, Nelson was first with twenty-one, and Hugo second with twenty. There were also four practice shoots of ten birds each. In the first Nelson made ten, in the second Mendenhall and Brooks made ten each, in the third Brooks made ten, and in the fourth Loud made nine.

WEST INDIAN FAILURE.

New York, June 11.—A special from St. Pierre, Martinique, says: Intense excitement prevails here in commercial circles owing to the failure of the house of Aries & Co., which has suspended payment, with liabilities amounting to more than $1,000,000. There are large assets, but unavailable at present.

The failure carries in its train the stoppage of six or seven sugar factories, which have been supplied with funds by this firm through the sugar making season, and will throw several thousand persons out of employment.

The British Colonial bank has ceased selling drafts on New York, and the general outlook is gloomy.

PLUMBING COMMISSIONERS.

St. Paul, June 11.—Governor Clough yesterday afternoon appointed as members of the state board of commissioners of practical plumbing D. J. Harrington, of St. Paul, and A. W. Scott, of Minneapolis, to represent the master plumbers; John O. Watson, of St. Paul, and William Bradley, of Duluth, to represent the journeymen. The fifth member of the board who is to be one of the plumbing inspectors of the city of the first class, has not been appointed.

C. N. Cosgrove, of LeSueur, was appointed a member of the board of control of the state schools to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of John Byers.

T. N. Rasby, of Beveridge, was commissioned judge of probate of Beltrami county.

DELEGATES SELECTED.

St. Paul June 11.—Delegates from the Republican league clubs of the state met at the Commercial club yesterday afternoon to select thirty-four delegates to the national convention of league clubs at Detroit. There were present representatives from St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, Mankato and other cities. The Sixth district delegates selected are: H. L. Hamilton, Aitkin; George R. Laybourn, Duluth; W. E. Culkin, Wright county; D. W. Bruckart, St. Cloud. The next state convention of league clubs will be held at Minneapolis on March 15.

ODD FELOWS' ELECTION.

Minneapolis, June 11.—The grand lodge of Odd Fellows continued its session yesterday, taking up as the first business the election of the grand lodge officers, who had not been elected by the subordinate lodges. The election resulted as follows: Grand master, D. A. Stimson, of Austin; deputy grand master, Walter Elliott, of St. Cloud; grand warden, C. A. Lammers, of Stillwater. Three trustees of the Odd Fellows' home were elected. They hold office for three years and are as follows: C. H. Budd, Montevideo; J. A. Newsalt, T. W. Hugo, Duluth.

WORSHIPPERS CREMATED.

Tacoma, June 11.—More than 100 persons perished at Tien Tsin, China, late steamer reports indicate, in the burning of a temple dedicated to the Queen of Heaven. A festival was in progress, and the edifice was crowded, mostly with women and children.

MORRIS AND WILLCUTS.

The Two Senators Are Making the Appointment.

Washington, June 11.—(Special to The Herald.)—Some facts which have leaked out today indicate that if Levi Willcuts is appointed collector of customs at Duluth, he will not be under any particular obligations to Congressman Morris for securing this fat prize.

It is insinuated by those who ought to know that Senators Davis and Nelson simply agreed upon Willcuts and then gave Congressman Morris the privilege of endorsing him and taking the papers to the treasury department. Morris' influence will cut no figure in the matter, as it is really the senators who are making the appointment. The enthusiastic manner in which Davis and Nelson speak of Willcuts would seem to bear out this report.

D. 1890, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds for St. Louis County, Minnesota, on October 2nd, A. D. 1890, at 2 o'clock p. m. in Book 52 of mortgages on page 271; and

Whereas said mortgagors failed to pay the taxes against said property as provided in said mortgage, and the undersigned on May 12th, 1896, paid delinquent taxes with penalties, interest and costs on the same on the property amounting in all to the sum of three thousand seven hundred ninety-eight and 70-100 dollars ($3798.70), being for the years 1895, 1894 and 1893; and

Defaults having been made in the payment of the semi-annual installments of interest which became due on the first day of April, 1886, the first day of October, 1886, and the first day of April, 1887, each being for the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven dollars ($177); which defaults have continued to the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by Adaline Hammond and Eleazar S. Hammond, her husband, mortgagors, to The Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, mortgagee, bearing date the first day of April, A. D. 1876, and with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds of St. Louis County, Minnesota, on the 11th day of April, A. D. 1876, at 11:15 o'clock a. m. in Book 99 of mortgages on page 67; and

Whereas, said mortgagors made default in paying special assessments against the property, which have become delinquent, payment of which was provided in said mortgage, and the undersigned under the terms of said mortgage on May 10th, 1886, paid said special assessments which had become delinquent, with penalties, costs and interest, amounting to the sum of one hundred twenty-two and 16-100 dollars ($122.16); and

NOT FOLLOWING THEM.

Mr. Patton Says Fredrickson Ignores Specifications.

City Engineer Patton yesterday morning ordered Contractor Fredrickson to stop work on his contract for rebuilding the pump house walls, on the ground that the specifications of the supplementary contract for this work were not being complied with in any particular. Mr. Patton found that the contractor had not torn down the walls of the boiler room, as was provide should be done, and in addition was not putting the pilasters in the boiler room and the footings for the columns for the support of the crane in the engine room as directed. The specifications for this work in the boiler room provide that the pilasters shall be built into the foundation wall. Instead of so doing, the contractor, it was found, was building against the wall merely, a stone being run into the wall at intervals to tie the pilasters to it. In the foundation of the engine room the rubble on the inside of the walls was being torn out merely and the footings built in, whereas the specifications direct that the wall shall be cut clear through and the footings bonded in.

Mr. Patton then and there jumped on Mr. Fredrickson hard. Mr. Patton says that Mr. Fredrickson pleaded ignorance of the requirements of the specifications; inasmuch, Mr. Patton says, as the specifications were carefully gone over with him, it seems strange that not one but so many important particulars should have escaped his notice.

F. L. Young, the last sector appointed by Mr. Reed, was found in charge of the work. He was notified by Mr. Patton to leave the work and the appointment of E. S. Palmer, as inspector, was renewed.

Work was began again this morning under the direction of Mr. Palmer, and the specifications will be followed.

WILL RECOGNIZE REED.

Board Still Believes He is City Engineer.

The board of public works will continue to recognize D. A. Reed as city engineer. So President Smith and Mr. Flood of the board said today. They said that the board had received no opinion from the city attorney, and that the point cuts no figure anyhow. "If there is anything in it," said Mr. Smith, "we have no engineer at all, for, according to our view, Mr. Patton never qualified for his second term."

T. F. McGillvray, city engineer-elect, is expected to arrive here tomorrow. Nothing has been heard from him by the board of public works.

IGNORES THE RESOLUTION.

Fire Commissioner McGregor Will Not Resign.

President McGregor of the board of fire commissioners has not yet resigned, nor will he do so, he says; at least not at present. The mayor ignores the resolution passed by the council Monday evening requesting Mr. McGregor to step out. The mayor says the resolution is of no effect anyhow, being entirely out of the province of the council.

Several of the aldermen, who are hostile to Mr. McGregor, are figuring now on how to get Mr. McGregor out. Mr. McGregor, meanwhile, is calmly resting behind the opinion rendered by the city attorney, to the effect that his sub-contract with the Prescott company does not disqualify him from acting in his capacity as commissioner.

A Christopher Excursion.

Next Saturday the whaleback steamer Christopher Columbus will give an excursion for the benefit of the Women and Children's Home. It will be the first and only week day excursion of the big boat before it leaves for Chicago. It will leave West Superior at 9 o'clock, and Duluth at 9:30 o'clock, and will run to the Apostle islands and Bayfield, returning at about 9 p. m. A band of music will be on board, and refreshments will be sold. Tickets will be sold at $1 for adults and half price for children. The ladies of the Home society have an excellent offer from the boat, and expect to make a good sum.

WEST END

John Sullivan Injured at the Ore Dock Yesterday Afternoon.

Fell to the Deck of a Boat and Broke Several Ribs.

Dead Cow Found Near the City Today By an Officer.

John Sullivan, of West Duluth, who is employed on the Missabe ore docks, met with a serious accident Wednesday afternoon which resulted in the fracture of several ribs. He was at work on the ladder at the mouth of an ore pocket, punching on some clogged ore to permit of its free passage to the barge Belle, when he slipped and fell. A rope was tied about his body as a precaution against such an accident as befell him, but the strain given by the fall jerked the fastening loose and he fell to the deck of the boat. He was at once removed to St. Mary's hospital.

FOUND A DEAD COW.

Patrolman Gus Schroeder this morning discovered a dead cow in the brush near the corner of Sixty-ninth avenue west and Cody street, where it had been taken by its owner evidently for the purpose of saving the expense of having it carted away by the city scavenger. The police will have the carcass removed today and then institute a search for the owner, who will be prosecuted if found.

THOMAS SIDNEY'S TRIAL.

Hearing Today on the Charge of Shooting Redd.

The hearing in the case of Thomas Sidney on the charge of assault in the second degree came on before Judge Boyle this morning. Sidney is the colored man who shot Bud Redd, colored, through the thigh during an affray in St. Croix alley several days ago. The witnesses detailed the circumstances of the shooting, substantially as already given. During the examination of Redd, he stated that he and Sidney were about fifteen feet apart when the shooting began.

"Did you get any closer during the firing?" inquired the county attorney.

"No, sah; I didn't get any closah, but I don't know how much closah Mr. Sidney got," replied the witness.

Later Redd had a hearing on the same charge and was also held in the same amount.

DASTARDLY OUTRAGE.

Kansas City, June 11.—A special to the Star from Leavenworth, Kan., says a diabolical attempt was made upon the life of Governor Andrew J. Smith of the National Soldiers' home and his wife and daughter, between 4 and 5 o'clock by some dastard who is yet unknown. Dynamite was employed in the outrage and the explosion, which all but demolished the governor's beautiful residence, aroused the residents of the city and houses trembled as if undergoing an earthquake shock.

EVIDENCE IS WITHHELD.

Inquest in Hoffman Case Promises a Sensation.

San Francisco, June 11.—The coroner's inquest in the Hoffman case will be held next Tuesday. Chief Lee promises to produce evidence not yet made public. He says that it will be proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Figel's horse racing operations were known to both Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Rothschild long before the latter went East.

Ed S. Rothschild, of the firm of Hoffman, Rothschild & Co., arrived from New York last night. He brought with him autographic evidences of Figel's falsifications of the accounts and of his shortages, and for himself denounces as slanderous the statements that these irregularities were known and consented to by the partners of the man who was killed. He denies that Hoffman was engaged in any outside speculation. As regards prosecuting Figel, he will take the advice of his attorneys.

IRON AND STEEL.

Swank's Annual Report Shows Decrease in Production.

Philadelphia June 11.—James W. Swank, general manager of the American Iron and Steel association, has issued his annual report for 1896. The report contains complete statistics of the iron and steel industries of the United States for 1896, and a review of their present condition; also statistics of the iron and steel industries of foreign countries in past years.

In 1896 the United States made 8,623,127 tons of pig iron, 3,919,096 tons of Bessemer steel ingots, 1,268,700 tons of open hearth steel and 5,281,689 tons of steel of all kinds and roled in all 5,515,841 tons of finished iron and steel, including rails; there were also shipped in the same year 9,916,035 gross tons of Lake Superior iron ore and 5,411,602 tons of Connellsville coke. These figures all show material decrease as compared with the corresponding items of production in 1895.

The foreign value of all the iron and steel manufactures imported into the United States in 1896 was $19,596,587, a decrease of $6,265,549. The exports of iron and steel from the United States fo rthe same period amounted to $48,760,218, an increase of $13,598,675.

DEADLY WEAPONS.

New Pistols and Carbines For German Army.

New York, June 11.—A dispatch from Berlin says: Following the re-equipment of the German field artillery, the celebrated gun manufacturer, Mauser, has announced that he has perfected a new and remarkable repeating small arm.

His new invention embraces pistols and carbines, 6-shooters, 10-shooters and 20-shooters, all of which are self-loading after the first shot, the soldier having nothing to do but to aim and shoot. Including the time consumed in the consecutive loadings of the magazine a practiced marksman can make sixty shots per minute with the 6-shooter, eighty with the 10-shooter and ninety with the 20-shooter. Trials with both guns and pistols have proven surprisingly successful.

Serious Trouble Reported From the Northern Frontier of British India.

Notorious Fanatical Priest Mullah of Pewindah Said to Be Leading.

British Troops Repulsed With Loss of Many Officers and Men.

Bombay, June 11.—A dispatch received here from Simla, the residence of the Indian government officials during the heated periods of the year, announces serious trouble on the northern frontier and the massacre of a number of British officers and native soldiers in the government employ.

From the particulars obtainable at present it seems that two guns belonging to a Bombay mounted battery, escorted by 300 men belonging to the First regiment of Sikhs and the First Punjab infantry, were treacherously attacked in the Tochi valley by a large force of hostile natives. The first report said that Col. Bunny, two officers and twenty-five privates had been killed and that three officers and twenty-five men had been wounded. In addition a number of mules and horses are reported killed.

Indications are that the affair is more than a mere conflict with warlike natives, and that the notorious Mullah of Pewindah is at the bottom of the trouble. The latest advices are that a political officer, Mr. McGee, was visiting Shirani with an escort of troops, when he was attacked at Maiza by vastly superior forces. The British troops were compelled to retreat and were followed for several miles by overwhelming numbers of the enemy. The fighting was desperate. All the British officers were severely wounded. Capt. Browne of the First Sikhs, a son of the late Sir James Browne, and Lieut. Crookshank of the Royal artillery were killed, and Surgeon Higginson, Lieut. Higginson of the First Sikhs and Lieut. Seaton-Browne of the Punjab infantry were wounded.

The second dispatch does not mention the death of Col. Bunny, but from the fact that it says that Col. Gray, from Miranshah, has taken over the command of the British force engaged, it is inferred that Col. Bunny is also among the dead, as at first announced.

Tochi valley lies north of Guamel on the road to Ghuzni and Waziristan. It has been controlled since the determination of the Indo-Afghan frontier, but the tribes there have always been turbulent, and fear is felt lest the other tribes rise against the British.

The Mullah of Pewindah is well known to the British Indian authorities. He is a notorious fanatical priest and has always been hostile to British influence. Owing to an attempt which the Mullah recently made to stir up a rebellion he was expelled from British territory. This caused him to be deserted by his own people, and he has since lived in Afghanistan and is understood to have been actively plotting against the British. He took part in the attack upon the British camp at Wano in November, 1894.

While Col. A. H. Turner, the British commander, was engaged in 1894 in delimitating the Indo-Afghan frontier his camp at Wano was attacked on Nov. 3 of that year by a large force of Wazizi tribesmen. The British lost about twenty private soldiers and twenty camp followers killed before the Wazizis were repulsed. The latter left over 250 dead on the field.

PATTON TO THE BOARD.

He Writes a Rather Spicy Letter to the Members.

City Engineer Patton, having been assured by the city attorney, in the opinion published in The Herald yesterday, that he is, as it were, the "only pebble on the beach," proceeded yesterday afternoon from his now well-fortified position, to call down the board of public works. Mr. Patton addressed to the board a letter well saturated with ginger in which he took the board to task for having recognized as city engineer "one D. A. Reed."

The letter states that the writer has failed to find, by a diligent search through the charter, any authority for the board to transact the official business of the engineering department with one who "has never been elected or qualified for the discharge of the duties of the office of city engineer." Then follows an arraignment of the board for having, as the writer states, hindered him, Mr. Patton, in the discharge of his duties; giving orders to contractors to receive instructions from Mr. Reed, and approving Mr. Reed's appointments, thereby "involving the city in needless expense and causing uncertainty to the contractors." The letter charges that the board has "endeavored, by promises of favor and employment, to induce employes of this department to turn over to irresponsible persons the property and record of the office," which are under the writer's control as city engineer. Mr. Patton then advises the board to reconsider its previous acts in the matter and to allow the city charter to regulate its conduct. He concludes by calling the attention of the board to the city attorney's opinion holding that Mr. Reed has not qualified for the position of engineer.

President Smith of the board of public works on receipt of the letter called on Mr. Patton and told him that the board would consider the communication, provided that Mr. Patton would erase the portion containing the charge that the board had made offers of favor and employment to induce the employes of the engineering department to turn over the records to irresponsible persons.

Mr. Patton refused to do this, saying that he had received his information from a person who had been approached, and Mr. Smith retired to his quarters.

In the afternoon yesterday Mr. Patton chanced along as Mr. Reed was taking some specification forms from a cabinet. Mr. Patton told Mr. Reed that if he wanted anything from the city engineer's office to apply to the city engineer for it. Mr. Reed kept on plowing around in the cabinet, finally coming to the surface with a handful of specifications. Mr. Patton took them away from him, whereupon Mr. Reed calmly went down for some more. Mr. Patton gave the cabinet door a slam. It struck Mr. Reed's knee and was shivered from top to bottom. Without a word Mr. Reed pawed up some more specifications, arose and passed out of the office with a "never-touched-me" expression on his face.

HANSON A BIGAMIST.

Chicago Suicide Was Leading a Dual Life.

Mexico, Mo., June 11.—A letter from Chicago purports to reveal that C. R. Hanson, who killed himself in the presence of his wife here last week, was a bigamist, having a wife and three sons at 992 West Huron street, Chicago. His widow here claims up to this time to have been ignorant of his dual life, although she is satisfied of it now. It is stated that Hanson mysteriously disappeared from Chicago about eight years ago, and it now appears that he married his second wife, who was Miss Minnie Crawford, at Weyesville, Wis., a few months after deserting his Chicago family.

WAR IN ARGENTINA.

Uruguayans Land Troops and Sink a Vessel.

New York, June 11.—A special from Buenos Ayres, Argentina, says: The government of Argentina has been officially informed that the gunboat Suarez, of the Uruguayan navy, has landed a force of Uruguayan troops on the Argentina coast. After the troops had been landed the Suarez sunk a vessel flying the flag of Argentina.

Immediately upon receipt of this information an Argentina gunboat was ordered to proceed to the point where troops were landed and capture the Suarez and to pursue and take the vessel at all hazards if she as still in Argentina waters. Every preparation is being made for war.

A dispatch from Montevideo, Uruguay, says that the rebels are concentrating their forces, and a decisive battle with government troops is imminent. The disputes beteen Uruguay and Argentina are the result of filibustering expeditions from Argentina bearing arms, ammunition and stores to the Uruguayan rebels.

Washington, June 11.—The members of the committee on contingent expenses of the senate have agreed to report adversely the Tillman resolution for an investigation of the alleged speculations in sugar.

Hawaii is to become a territory of the United States, ceding all her ports and crown lands, in exchange for the protection of the United States. The United States shall assume the debt of the Hawaiian republic to the limit of $4,000,000.

MR. FAIR'S WILL.

Pertinent Home Thrust By Attorney For Heirs.

San Francisco, June 11.—The Craven-Fair case has taken an unexpected turn. The attorneys for the heirs and executors have called Mrs. Craven to the stand and secured from her the admission that in 1895 she had taken the disputed deeds to Sacramento and there shown them to two men named Cullen and Bonner. Then she was asked the significant question by Attorney Wheelock, "Now, Mrs. Craven, have you entered into any agreement or contract whereby Mr. Cullen is to be given, directly or indirectly, a contingent interest in the property in dispute in the event that you win this case?"

Attorney Delmas objected. "I expect to prove in part by this witness," replied Wheelock, "an organized conspiracy in which, by means of forged documents and perjured testimony, the Fair estate was to be looted." "Proceed," said Delmas, but adjournment of court cut further questions off temporarily.

Has Just Returned From an Extended Trip Through Cook County.

Two Diamond Drills Are at Work Near Gunflint Lake.

George Rupley, who has been engaged in promoting a railroad enterprise which has for its object the construction of a line from Grand Marais to connect with the Gunflint extension of the Canadian Pacific road from Port Arthur, returned yesterday on the steamer Dixon from an extended trip to the country back of Grand Marais that will be traversed by the proposed line. Mr. Rupley, in an interview with a representative for The Evening Herald, said that he could say nothing at this time for publication in regard to his plans.

It will be remembered that two or three months ago an instrument was filed with the register of deeds of Cook county, giving Mr. Rupley an option on forty acres of land on Grand Marais harbor for $150 an acre, by the terms of which Mr. Rupley agreed to pay taxes on the property of S. F. Howenstine to the amount of $600 on or before May 31, and to begin the actual construction of a railroad from the harbor of Grand Marais to the iron fields of Cook county on or before Feb. 1, 1898. Mr. Rupley stated today that he had not seen the parties interested with him in the project since his return home, and could not say whether the condition of the option requiring the payment of Mr. Howenstine's taxes had been complied with or not.

There are many reasons for believing that there is a good prospect for the early construction of this line of road, which has been waited for so many years by the residents of Grand Marais. Since the spring break up prospectors have been actively at work in the mineral regions in Cook county that would be opened up by this line of road, and many options on land supposed to contain rich minerals deposits have been purchased. Near Gunflint lake two diamond drills have been in operation for the past month on iron lands, which has involved a heavy expense and which could prove of no possible benefit to anyone, no matter how good nor how large a body of ore was found, unless a railroad would be built to give any possible output a means of reaching a market. It has been reported among prospectors that the drills are being operated by a representative of the Consolidated company, which is said to have purchased a number of options on Cook county iron lands. William H. Cook, who has done a great deal of drill work for the Consolidated, has the contract for the work now in progress in the Gunflint district, but who his employers are is not known. These rumors have given rise to the report that John D. Rockefeller is back of Mr. Rupley's railroad enterprise, but all knowledge of the Cook county explorations or the proposed railroad is denied by the officers of the Consolidated in this city. Certain it is, however, that considerable money is being expended in work preliminary to the construction of this road and the development of the mineral deposits of Cook county, and it is probable that if the explorations now in progress show conclusively that iron ore is to be had there in sufficient quantities to make the opening of mines profitable, the road will be built.

KNAUF SISTERS,
Over Smith & Smith's Drug Store.

DISTINGUISHES HIMSELF.

Ex-Alderman Cox and Thomas Bindickson came together this morning on Superior street, near First avenue east. People in the vicinity at the time were not able to see much of the affair, as about all that was visible to the observers was a cloud of dust, out of which a shower of splinters from the ex-alderman's cane flew, with a foot protruding occasionally, as the belligerents alternately changed position from resting on their feet to standing on their shoulders as the fortunes of the battle ebbed and flowed. Mr. Bindickson finally backed out of the cloud with a black eye, and Mr. Cox soon afterward emerged slightly flushed but unscathed.

Mr. Cox says Mr. Bindickson is a boarder in the family of a tenant of one of the former's houses on Piedmont avenue. There had been some trouble over the rent, and finally, Mr. Cox says, the boarder took a hand and tried to stir up a fight with him. This morning Mr. Cox was fixing a tree in front of his Piedmont avenue row, when Mr. Bindickson stepped out on the veranda of the house where he boarded and made some uncomplimentary remarks to Mr. Cox. The latter finally invited the former to come out in the street. The invitation was not accepted, Mr. Cox says, and he left. Subsequently the parties met, with the result noted. Mr. Cox says Bindickson is a bigger man than he is, but he felt this morning as if he could thrash about seven of his opponent's size.

Police Strike a Clew.

The police say that they have reason to believe that the man known as William Miller, who is supposed to have killed young Smith, on the Yolton farm last fall, is in the Rainy Lake country. There will be no effort made to catch him by the local authorities, however, the necessary funds not having been appropriated.
